

Shinnston Native Named U.S. Pacific Fleet Master Chief

FLEET MASTER CHIEF JAMES R. TOCORZIC

By LEIGH C. MERRIFIELD

News & Journal Editor
A former Lincoln High School graduate has certainly earned a lot of respect since joining the U.S. Navy. It was recently announced that Force Master Chief James R. Tocarzic has been selected as the 19th Fleet Master Chief for the U.S. Pacific Fleet. He will relieve Fleet Master Chief James Honea who has served as the Pacific Fleet senior enlisted leader since January 2018. In his new assignment, Tocarzic will be the senior enlisted leader for the world's largest naval command with more than 130,000 active duty and reserve Sailors who operate approximately 200 ships and submarines as well as 1,200 aircraft. "Master Chief Tocarzic was selected from the Navy's most dedicated and highly qualified senior enlisted leaders," said Adm. Samuel Paparo, commander of U.S. Pacific Fleet. "With his extensive operational experience, operational acumen and inspiring leadership, he is precisely the leader we need on our winning team. His energy and unwavering commitment to our Sailors and their families is infectious. It will be my absolute honor to serve alongside him as the 19th U.S. Pacific Fleet Master Chief." Tocarzic was selected into the Command Master Chief Program in 2009 and served as the final Command Master Chief onboard USS John L. Hall (FFG32), which decommissioned in March of 2012. Some of Tocarzic's additional Command Master Chief tours have included: Strike Fighter Squadron 213 (VFA-213), Carrier Air Wing 1 (CVW 1), USS Theodore Roosevelt (CVN 71), and USS George Washington (CVN 73). He recently was a Force Master Chief for Commander, Naval Air Forces in San Diego, CA and has served as the Deputy Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy since July of 2020. He is also a graduate of the Navy Senior Enlisted Academy, Command Leadership School, Keystone and NSLS. His personal awards are numerous – the Legion of Merit, Meritorious Service Medal (two awards), Air/Strike Medal (two awards), Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal (five awards), Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal (five awards), and various other unit awards. Master Chief Tocarzic is authorized to wear the Enlisted Aviation Warfare Specialist, Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist, Naval Aircrewman and Enlisted Information Warfare Specialist breast insignias and is also a designated Master Training Specialist. Tocarzic is a Shinnston native and a 1989 graduate of Lincoln High School. He entered the Navy through the Delayed Entry Program and arrived for basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes in December 1989. He said that he turned to the military following high school because he felt the structure would be good for him and lead him to make good life choices; however, the Navy was not his original intention. "I actually had an appointment to meet with a Marine Corps recruiter that day, and he didn't show up. While I was waiting, there was a Navy recruiter there and our conversation led me to sign up. I left for boot camp within days!" he explained. "Looking back, I'm glad now that the Marine recruiter didn't show because being in the Navy has been a blessing for me. It has offered me many opportunities and allowed me to see the world. And that's how I met my wife who also served in the Navy for

Shinnston Resident Qualifies For The 125th Boston Marathon To Be Held In October

Coulter is pictured here (center) at the Rail Trail trailhead in Shinnston surrounded by his supporters wearing Boston Marathon t-shirts. He learned that he would be among the Marathon runners after his qualifying race in Erie, PA. Many in this group are members of his boxing class who were celebrating his entry into the 125th Boston Marathon.

EVERYONE has heard of the Boston Marathon, but for Shinnston resident James Coulter, it has been his lifelong goal to be a participant in that race ... and this year he qualified! James is originally from the eastern panhandle of West Virginia (Berkeley County) where he grew up in Hedgesville. He started running in the eighth grade, ran track all four years at Hedgesville High School, along with two years of cross country. He continued running cross country at Fairmont State University, where he graduated with a degree in Finance as well as an associate's degree in Architecture. It was while attending Fairmont State that he met his wife, the former Kelley Burnett, a Shinnston native. Since becoming a Shinnstonian, James has become active in the community; he served six years on Shinnston City Council, several years as Treasurer of the First Baptist Church of Shinnston, and is an 11-year board member of the Shinnston Development Authority. Coulter is also an FBI Citizens Academy alumni and a graduate of Leadership Harrison. He is currently the Assistant Vice President of Commercial Lending at Fairmont Federal Credit Union.

Despite his career responsibilities and community involvements, James still finds the time to run; in fact, it is more or less a part of his everyday routine. "I run at least 50 miles a week as well as do boxing and weightlifting and anywhere from 15 to 18 workouts each week," Coulter said. "It is an important part of my runner's training. I

Lincoln High School Prom's Outdoor Venue Offers A Genuine "Bella Notte"

Pictured here, moonlight cast faint lighting through the canopy that sheltered the opulent seating area for couples attending Lincoln's Senior Prom.

The Lincoln High School Prom's outdoor setting at Ferguson Memorial Park was nothing short of a spectacular "Bella Notte" for those who attended, offering an enchanting evening that offset a most perplexing couple of years.

By LEIGH C. MERRIFIELD

Proms have always been a major social event for high school students and there was much disappointment last year when, due to COVID-19 restrictions, 2020 became a non-prom year. However, this year the situation was a little different. Although the planning stages may have called for some creative thinking, for the most part, schools were allowed to hold proms – although it was suggested that an outdoor venue would better allow for safety considerations. A noticeable change was made at Lincoln High School. Arrangements for prom events have typically always been handled by the Junior Class with high school juniors making up the Prom Court. However, since last year's Junior Class at Lincoln had funding raised and plans made only to have the pandemic shut down their celebration, students decided (with administrators' approval) that since members of that class are now seniors, they still deserved to put their plans into motion.

It is expected that from this point forward, the LHS Prom will be coordinated by the Senior Class. Payton Hawkins, President of the 2021 Senior Class, stated, "We had all worked very hard and had raised $12,000 for our prom celebration last year. We had a theme and colors chosen and all the planning details were in place. We appreciated

If you listen to any group of adults talking about today's youth, you will probably hear many of them lamenting how today's youth are not like those from the "good old days". The days of "Leave it to Beaver", the popular television show from the 1950's, where kids said yes ma'am and yes sir, seem lost on these modern kids. I've always smiled when I hear people talking like this and know that they probably have not sat down and talked at any length to some of the incredible young people that make up this "modern" group of young people. Kids who have dealt with issues like school shootings, social media bullying, pandemics, drug proliferation, climate change and countless other issues have grown up in a world their parents and grandparents could hardly imagine. It is with this in mind that I highlight one of these young people who I believe is an example of the quality and character of a new generation of youth in our country.

About a dozen years ago, our granddaughter Ali would often come to our house after school and one of her young classmates would be staying with his

The Value Of True Friendship

Many young people in our area have been celebrating or are preparing to celebrate their high school graduation. It is a time of mixed emotions for most of them. Some may breathe a sigh of relief and some may be dealing with some regrets. Some may be joyful and excited about moving on to the next phase of their lives, while others may feel anxiety about the future. And nearly all will be somewhat nostalgic, already wondering if their friends moving in different directions may bring an end to their closely connected lives. Hey, we were all there once; we know how it feels! That's why this week I feel compelled to write about the value of friendships.

These young people will find that there are all kinds of friends – there are new friends, old friends, good friends, best friends, common interest friends, e-mail friends, Facebook friends, fair weather friends, dependent friends, inspiring friends, supportive friends, and I could go on and on. Friends will come in all shapes and sizes, accompanied by different personalities and talents; they will have distinctive strong points, and they all will have faults as well. But the most wonderful part of friendship is that the relationship remains intact despite everyone's weaknesses and faults. A friend is someone who thinks you're a 'good egg', even though you may be slightly cracked and sometimes a little scrambled!

those rare people who asks how you are and actually wants to hear your answer, you've found a real friend. He or she will listen attentively even when you say nothing at all and will "hear" that something is wrong without you saying a word! Friendship is a little mathematical too; it adds to and multiplies your joys and subtracts from and divides your sorrows. Friends may not be able to make your problems disappear, but they are the ones who won't disappear when you're facing problems. They stand beside you and if nothing else, that trusted friend will allow you to just vent.

Friendships give people a sense of belonging, of self-worth, and a feeling of security. A positive network of people is helpful when it comes to dealing with the stress of tough times. And there is no one better with whom to celebrate your triumphs! A good friend will be just as happy to share in your successes as he or she is to understand your disappointments, and they will never get in your way UNLESS you happen to be going down!

There is so much emphasis placed today on having a long list of Facebook friends, but that is really not what is important. Let me just say this – I can't stress enough about having at least one friend, a TRUE friend, who can read your 'face' like a 'book' and ask, "What's wrong and what can I do to help you?" THAT, my friend, is a FRIEND!

I was an only child, and I think I would best describe my really GOOD, CLOSE friends (both male and female) as the "siblings" that I chose to become a part of my family. And, now at age 70, those old friends are still there for me, just as I am for them. I've been blessed! Even my mother, now in her 90's, still has a couple of old high school buddies still living; they continue to stay in contact, sharing both the ups and the down, and always seem to make one another laugh even on a bad day. These young grads will learn that they will have friends during each stage of their lives, but only the lucky ones will have a few of those old friends who will remain in their lives for a lifetime! As the saying goes ... make new friends but keep the old.

Here is a great analogy. Compare the relationship between friends to the relationship between your two eyes. Your eyes blink together; they cry together; they see things together; and they close and sleep together. They work best as a pair, and yet they never see each other. So even during the times when busy schedules can't be coordinated to permit in-person social interaction, make every effort to stay in touch whether by phone, text, e-mail, or sending a card. You can't underestimate the value of true friendship! Just some 'food for thought' that all of our work was not just cast aside, and we were able to carry out those plans this year. The only thing that really changed was the location. Instead of holding our prom in the Commons Area at our school, we moved it to Ferguson-Memorial Park, and it worked out just fine."

Members of the Prom Court were also seniors this year rather than from the Junior Class. This, too, seemed to be doubly advantageous, giving this year's Junior Class an extra year to raise funding for their prom in 2022.

The park, having been recently given an impressive facelift, was in beautiful condition, and although the amphitheater area is under roof, to add more protected space in case of rainy weather, an additional canopy was installed and decorated with miniature white lights. The prom theme was "Bella Notte", meaning 'beautiful night' in Italian. The colors chosen were purple, green and gold. Fortunately, the school had white chair covers and gold sashes in storage, and purple table covers were added to adorn the tables, which by the way, Hawkins said class members spent months prior to the prom ironing!

A ramp was also built and a long archway was added that was complemented by barrels of grapes and wine bottles filled with more miniature white lights. Even benches and a fountain were placed on the premises for photo opportunities. The focal point of the amphitheater was a four-foot round chandelier suspended from the ceiling that featured cascading lavender and white wisteria.

Light refreshments were available and a DJ provided music for what turned out to be a magical evening! Even the weather cooperated and an early, light shower was all that threatened the students' "beautiful night".

Hawkins stressed that the event was a team effort with each class officer heading a variety of committees and working under the direction of a faculty advisor. Even the sophomore class volunteered their help with cleanup following the prom.

"The pandemic really affected our final couple of years of high school, but everyone felt that being able to hold our prom before graduating this year compensated for it. Any remaining prom funds will be used for our graduation exercises, and we're hoping the weather will again be favorable for us since they are to be held outdoors as well," Hawkins concluded. "We offer our thanks to all who helped us ... and to everyone who supported us through the challenging times we dealt with during the pandemic."

Members of Lincoln's 2021 Senior Prom Court included: Emily Akers and Ashton Hursey; Abbie Ash and David Tate; Hayley Brown and Zak Cain; Kaylea Cook and Sam Gianettino; Emily Duffy and Payton Hawkins; Hanna Ferris (Maid of Honor) and Zach Bittinger (Knight); Emily Jett (Maid of Honor) and Logan Hostuttler (Knight); Alison Proffitt and Luke Wentz; Natalie Proffitt and Zach Snyder; Courtney Ramage and Bobby Bart; Ryleigh Richards and Ethan Shaver; and Avery Riley (Queen) and Corey Prunty (King).

am 41 years old and have always wanted to be in the best shape of my life in my 40's. For a runner, the Boston Marathon is the biggest race in the entire world, and since it has always been my ambition, I have spent as much time as I can preparing for it."

If the Boston Marathon has not been your dream, you need to know that a runner doesn't just send in his or her name and entry fee and show up on the day of the race! Boston Marathon entrants must meet certified qualifying requirements, and this year, more than any other year, it was a good thing that Coulter remained so dedicated to training ... and here's why ...

Last year's race was the first time in the Boston Marathon's history that it had to be cancelled, and this year, although it will be held, the number of runners has been reduced significantly. Only 14,609 runners in the entire world will be taking part, which is less than half the number that typically participates. Coulter noted that in order to reduce runner numbers, qualifying was made even more difficult. Runners in each age group were expected to be much faster – by at least 7 minutes and 47 seconds! So only a select percentage met this qualification.

Coulter was in the top 2% of runners that will run the Boston Marathon, but he says he is still not a lead runner. "Me winning the marathon is not even in the equation, I don't think. I'm just thrilled to be a part of it," he continued.

While not only celebrating the fact that he himself qualified, James is also ecstatic that Brian Reider of Bridgeport, with whom he has been training, also qualified. AND, perhaps making this race an even bigger delight is that his father will be in the race too!

"My dad still lives in the eastern panhandle of our state and, at 61 years of age, he has been training for it just like I have. This will be the first time running in the Boston Marathon for both of us, and to be able to do that during the same year when qualifying was so tough, is really a triumph for both of us ... and even more special because we can share this experience," he concluded.

The Boston Marathon is usually held on Patriot's Day, a state holiday in Massachusetts (the 3rd Monday in April). Along with limiting the field of runners, this year's date was moved to October 11th so that hopefully more progress could be made in containing the COVID-19 risks.

The course runs 26 miles and 385 yards of winding roads and city streets in eight Massachusetts cities and towns in the greater Boston area. It is considered one of the most difficult marathon courses because in addition to the length of the race, several hills along the course are quite challenging. This event attracts approximately 500,000 spectators each year, making it New England's most widely viewed sporting event!

I'm Very Proud Of All My Family Members Who Honorably Served In The Military

GRAPEVINE

By Rosalyn Queen

This poem, written by John McCrae in 1915, is carved into many of our brains as we remember Memorial Day -

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row
That mark our place.....

Memorial Day is celebrated the last Monday in May. It is to honor the men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice with their lives in defending our country. In Europe, the poppy was one of the first flowers to reappear on the surface of the ground where the battles were fought. This is how the poppy became the symbol of Memorial Day and it is worn in honor of the dead. Memorial Day is not celebrated as much as it once was, but we can still honor those who have given their lives to protect our freedom.

My father, who was an Italian immigrant, came to the United States about 1911. He became a citizen and about 1925 he enlisted into the Marine Corps. He trained in Quantico and then served in Nicaragua. He never talked much to us about this phase of his life, but when he was ready to retire, we discovered that he said he was a year older in able to join the Marines. We found several pictures that he had taken but never really knew just exactly what his duties were. We only knew that he was proud to have been able to serve our country and that he felt that only the best could make it as a Marine.

I have been able to secure the address of the Marine Library and I'm hopeful that in the very near future I will be able to secure information about his service and maybe even secure a photo.

Although our family was fortunate enough not to have lost a member in the service, many of them served. My father, my uncles Rocky, Ted and Pete, my children's father, Fray Queen and my brothers-in-law, Virgil Smith and Dan Fisher all considered it an honor to serve their country.

As Memorial Day sort of marks the beginning of summer and now that the pandemic has calmed down, some things will return to normal. Perhaps we will be planning vacations, going on picnics, swimming and even traveling to visit friends and relatives. However, we may not be out of the dark with COVID and we should still be cautious with our plans and activities.

Take care, enjoy a great summer, stay healthy, and until next week, "Now You Have Heard It Through the Grapevine."

A Tribute In Honor Of My Friend Thomas Baca

Pine Bluff News

By Pat Matheny

I should have written this column last week, but like I've said before, I'm always a week behind. I would like to pay tribute to a friend and great American, Thomas Baca of Albuquerque, NM. He passed away from cancer last year on August 30, 2020.

I first met Tom in 2011 at a 145th CAB Reunion in Ft. Rucker, AL. Tom served in the same aviation company that I did in Vietnam, but he arrived two months after I had left. There was an instant connection. He started out as a helicopter Crew Chief (like me) in the Army and then went through Warrant Officer School to become a Pilot.

Tom spent two tours in Vietnam ... one year flying UH-1 Hueys and one year flying fixed wing reconnaissance aircraft. On his second tour, he was given a direct commission to 2nd Lt. For his heroic efforts during his tours, he was awarded the Soldiers Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, and 38 Air Medals. His exploits about earning the DFC are depicted in a one-hour documentary produced by a British film company for the National Geographic and Smithsonian Channels called, "Helicopter Wars: Vietnam Firefight".

Retiring after 20 years of service as a Major, he flew commercial and private aircraft for several years doing what he always loved. He served as Aviation Director for the New Mexico Department of Transportation from July 2004 until his retirement in October 2009.

Tom and Jack Swickard were instrumental in encouraging me, along with several other Veterans, to return to Vietnam on a 14-day tour with them in 2015. I'm forever grateful to both for the experience which helped to lay some demons to rest.

The following are remarks from the group:

Ed Knighten: "He was to me a man that would go out of his way to help anyone in trouble. A little set in his ways and beliefs, but good at heart. Meeting him and going back to Vietnam allowed me some closure on things I needed to let go. I will always cherish and be thankful for that."

Marc Cullison: "Tom was one of those rare individuals who believed people are better than they actually are. I will always aspire to be the man he believed me to be."

Ken Bartholomew: "Tom and I met at Ft. Benning, then again at Ft. Carson. We were both assigned to D 1/10 Cavalry. Our families became friends. Our children played together. Tom would do anything to help a friend. I will be eternally grateful for his friendship and for giving us the opportunity to go back to Vietnam. As Ed said, that return trip helped to fix some things. It also gave me some new great friends!"

Dinh Ngoc Truc: "He was a great friend of mine and Vietnam. From former enemy, to good friend."

Dennis Gulich: "Tom was a man who didn't hesitate to let you know how he felt about things and yet he was a very kind and thoughtful man. He was a guy you wanted for a friend. And he was a very gracious host any time I saw him in Albuquerque."

Tom was just a nice guy. He is buried at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Angel Fire, NM.

Until next time, have a great week and remember our Veterans.

Bridgeport Native Claire Ramsey Selected As Fulbright Scholar

Six Ohio University students, five alumni and a professor have been selected as recipients for the Fulbright Program, through which they will work to promote international, educational, and cultural exchange in host countries across South America, Europe, Africa, and North America.

The scholars include students Ryanne Morr, Hannah Posedel and Claire Ramsey and alumni Abby Hearne, Sue Ryu, Andrew Steinke and Dakota Tackett, who were selected for the Fulbright U.S. Student Program; students Rhea Lanier, Maya Meade, Kennedy Rasberry and alum Nile Harris, who were selected for Fulbright Canada's post-

COVID-19 Challenge; and professor of political science Myra Waterbury, who will spend four months in Budapest at the Minority Studies Institute at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences.

"These truly exceptional students will be working toward building relationships on an international level, while they are learning more in their areas of study through new, cultural experiences as part of the Fulbright Program," Ohio University President M. Duane Nellis said. "We are very proud to have so many students, as well as alumni and a professor, able to participate in such a prestigious and important program that elevates both their and OHIO's global reach." Claire Ramsey, an educational administration doctoral candidate specializing in comparative and international educational leadership, from Bridgeport is the first OHIO student to receive a grant to travel to Finland through the Fulbright U.S. Student Program. She will research rural teacher self-perceptions as global citizens.

"I am honored to be selected for this prestigious award and eager for the opportunity to conduct research in the Finnish education system through the perception of its rural educators," she said. "I would like to specifically thank Dr. Chris Lewis, director of Ohio University's Office of Nationally Competitive Awards; Dr. Emmanuel Jean-Francois, associate professor of Comparative and International Education at OHIO; and my husband, family, friends, and colleagues for their ongoing support and encouragement through this process."

The Fulbright U.S. Student Program is one of the most competitive academic exchange programs globally. The program fully funds U.S. students as they research, develop creative projects, and/or teach English abroad, all while dedicating part of their time to building greater understanding between the United States and host countries.

"A Good Kid"

grandparents just up the street. I can remember the first time I met young Timothy Murphy. He barely came up to my knee and had a smile that lit up the room. For several years, Ali and Timothy were inseparable, and it was not unusual for them to be at our house for several hours at a time. Our sidewalk was decorated with chalk drawings and we always had to be on the lookout for bicycles and scooters lying on the driveway. As they progressed through school, I would see Timothy at band concerts and other school events, and he was always ready with a big smile and a wave. I made it a point to ask him about school and what was going on in his life. He was always polite and seemed genuinely interested to be sharing a little about his soccer games or playing drums in the band.

Around the time that Ali and Timothy entered Robert C. Byrd High School, I would see his parents post things about their kids on Facebook and it allowed me to see some of the things that Timothy was doing as a young high school student. In addition to playing soccer and tennis, Timothy was very active with his church and I saw some videos of him sharing about his faith and working on projects that the church did in the community. I can remember telling my wife how proud I was of Timothy and what a good kid he was.

I saw Timothy at a tennis tournament recently and he told me that he had decided to attend Liberty University in Lynchburg, Virginia and pursue a religious degree. It has been a pleasure watching this amazing young man grow into a leader and person of faith. His growth within his church and within his community has been impressive. The reassuring thing about this is that Timothy Murphy is just one example of the many young people in our community who will soon take our place, as teachers, lawyers, doctors, nurses, ministers and a thousand other professions.

So, to those who may doubt the quality and character of today's young people, please rest assured that they are up to the challenge and are ready and able to help build a better society for all of us. And to my young friend, Timothy Murphy, as you and Ali go off to explore your futures, please continue being that "good kid" that I have been privileged to know for so many years!

BUSINESS MATTERS

WorkAble Industries – Employing Veterans & Persons With Disabilities

The Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal, in conjunction with North Central West Virginia Airport, has named WorkAble Industries as June's Business of the Month.

Surveyor stakes are one of the top requested items prepared by participants at WorkAble Industries, Inc. in Stonewood.

Whether you are in the mood for a delectable salad, sandwich or wrap, a screened T-shirt, need documents shredded or stakes for right-of-ways or other uses, look no further than WorkAble Industries (pronounced Work Able) in Stonewood. If the name does not sound familiar, think back to previous names such as the Harrison County Sheltered Workshop, The Sheltered Workshop or Empowerment Through Employment. No matter what name you know this agency by, you will still get quality products or a delicious lunch at a reasonable cost.

WorkAble Industries, Inc. began as the Harrison County Sheltered Workshop, Inc. in 1964 in the basement of Christ Episcopal Church in Clarksburg. The Sheltered Workshop became an independent non-profit corporation in 1969 when it moved from the basement of the church. One of the first contracts received was for surveyor stakes for the West Virginia Department of Highways. As word spread throughout the community, other contracts followed for other services. Client-workers or participants also refinished furniture, operated a woodworking shop and screen-printing shop, caned chairs, and did document destruction and mailing services. From July 2013 until 2019, the Sheltered Workshop was known as Empowerment Through Employment, and then the name changed again to its current name - WorkAble Industries, Inc. At present, all participant employees make at least minimum wage and the organization is a job training and readiness center for veterans and persons with disabilities. Brenda Oliverio has served as WorkAble's general manager since 2012. She said the youngest employee, called a participant, is 24 with the oldest being 73. She then corrected herself and said, "We have one gentleman who comes a couple of times a week in a wheelchair from the VA Nursing Home. He is 85 and is good at anything he touches." Oliverio also noted that WorkAble has a waitlist for participants to enter their program. The group's goal is to provide services to veterans and persons with disabilities through actual work, age appropriate and self-improvement activities so that they may attain their optimum level of social and vocational functioning. Greg Morris serves as the CEO of WorkAble. Oliverio is eager to tout the programs and

Fairmont State University To Expand Student Program Offerings

In mid-April, the Fairmont State Board of Governors approved curriculum proposals from the Academic Affairs Committee to establish five additional areas of study for students.

receiving support from the Board will transition into the next stages of approval from the Higher Education Policy Commission, including a Bachelor of Science in Respiratory Care and Bachelor of Science in Exercise Science with concentrations including Exercise Physiology and Kinesiology. Upon approval, Health Information Technology and Administer in Training concentrations will be available to students pursuing a Master of Science in Healthcare Management. A Police Academy concentration, minor and certificate to be offered through the College of Liberal Arts were also among the curricula presented.

has introduced 10 new programs within the past three years. As Pierpont Community and Technical College continues efforts to vacate Fairmont State campuses, a result from a Memorandum of Understanding between the two institutions, it is the hope the separation will lead to opportunities for partnerships and the creation of new academic programs in the future.

"The mutual agreement to separate Fairmont State and Pierpont will provide positive outcomes as we move forward. We'll now be able to utilize more of our spaces on campus to increase instruction capabilities," said Rusty Hutson Jr., Fairmont State University Board of Governors Vice Chair. "This will afford us opportunities to improve existing programs. As Pierpont vacates Fairmont State's campus, we will also look to President Mirta M. Martin's leadership to expand our academic programs and the one-of-a-kind opportunities offered to Fairmont State students."

The Memorandum of Understanding written and signed by representatives from both Fairmont State and Pierpont was established with full support of West Virginia Governor Jim Justice and the HEPC. The document outlines plans for the transfer of assets from Fairmont State to Pierpont, along with an agreement upon an exit of Pierpont from all Locust Avenue Campus spaces by June 30, 2022. The document also details the transfer of ownership of the Gaston Caperton

Homecoming And Big Wins!

The Bottom Line

By Bill Nestor
Sports Editor

Shinnston native Brett Vincent has made his way back to the Mountain State landing in Buckhannon where he will lead the West Virginia Wesleyan women's basketball program. It doesn't seem that long ago that Vincent was lighting up North Central West Virginia en route to becoming the player of the year in 1986. Vincent's love for the game was apparent then and even though years have passed, nothing has changed. Most recently, Vincent has spent one season shy of a decade at Chowan University (located in Murfreesboro, NC) as the head men's basketball coach. Vincent had unprecedented success during his time running the Hawk program. Vincent has seen the game from every imaginable view. After his standout high school career, he extended his hardwood time on the next level with stops at West Virginia, Robert Morris, and Marshall. His coaching career has ranged from the high school level to the collegiate scene. Vincent is also very familiar with the MEC Conference, spending time at Alderson Broaddus and Fairmont State respectively. West Virginia Wesleyan jumped at the chance to nab Vincent. The Bobcat women's program is coming off of a 6-11 record a year ago and have had their fair share of hard luck campaigns as of late. They have amassed a total of 31 wins in the last five seasons combined. Looking at Vincent's track record, it won't be long before WV Wesleyan will be competing for conference titles. Speaking of big wins, Lincoln Baseball Head Coach, Mark Starkey reached an impressive milestone recently. Starkey garnered his 500th career win when the Cougars edged Notre Dame. The come from behind victory over the Fighting Irish put Starkey into elite diamond status in North Central West Virginia. Ironically, Starkey started his coaching career at Notre Dame spending 20 years at the helm of the Fighting Irish program. Starkey has done a magnificent job in Shinnston and his team has had an impressive 2021. Starkey is an old school coach that runs his program the right way. Starkey doesn't take shortcuts, instead he builds teams and more importantly, his players the right way. Starkey is a player's coach and is quick to give all of the praise to them. Congratulations to one of the classiest coaches you will ever find. Phil Mickelson is coming off of the biggest win of his golfing career. Mickelson's win at the PGA championship made him the oldest major championship winner in history. Heading into the event, many thought he was closer to obtaining his AARP card than he was to claiming another major but Lefty showed that a golfer's life doesn't end at 50. Mickelson refused to get caught up in the moment which led to a series of events, all of which went in his favor. Mickelson slowed everything down to a crawl on Sunday. He used lengthy delays through visualization and deep breathing tactics that seemed to infuriate his playing partner, Brooks Koepka. Even though Mickelson looked to be a half breath away from a siesta, his methods served the madness on the way to the victory. It goes to show that in sports it doesn't really matter what anyone thinks, it's the results that matter. The outcome is far more important than the style points that so many athletes desire. That will do it for now. Until next week...take care and God Bless!

It's that time once again to acknowledge the efforts of Harrison County's student athletes. Each week a panel will take a look at the information collected to make the best choices possible. They will review the performances of the athletes from the six schools (Bridgeport, Liberty, Lincoln, Notre Dame, Robert C. Byrd, and South Harrison) in our county.

The Shinnston News and Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week Award is an avenue that is used to promote the youth of our county, while bringing attention to their athletic accomplishments.

This past week's winners are Bridgeport's Lyda Sandy and Cam Cole.

Indian softball player, Lyda Sandy helped her team to a win over North Marion this past week. Sandy was 2 for 3 with a home run and a double against the Huskies. Sandy also scored three runs and drove in three runs in the victory.

Indian baseball player, Cam Cole had an exceptional week. Cole came into last Monday's game against University in relief in the first inning. Cole went the rest of the way on the mound for the come from behind win. Cole was also 5 of 7 in two additional Tribe wins this past week over Morgantown and Robert C. Byrd. In those outings, Cole scored five runs and stole four bases.

Congratulations to Bridgeport's Lyda Sandy and Cam Cole for being named the Shinnston News and Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week!

Ride For Life Fundraising Event At Snowshoe GNCC Set For June 26

Rory Mead, a former XC1 Pro Bike Racer who himself suffered a catastrophic crash back in 2014, will be riding his hand bike up the six-mile steep, curvy mountain road up Snowshoe Mountain as a fundraising event for Lucas Grounds.

The Grand National Cross Country (GNCC) Ride For Life fundraising Series presented by Specialized, an AMA National Championship, is pleased to announce the event with former XC1 Pro bike racer, Rory Mead, at this year's Snowshoe GNCC on Saturday, June 26. Rory Mead, who himself suffered a catastrophic crash back in 2014 and became paralyzed from the waist down, came up with the idea to take on Snowshoe Mountain by riding his hand bike up the six-mile steep, curvy mountain road as a fundraising event for Lucas Grounds. "I've been wanting to ride up Snowshoe Mountain for a few years now, as I have some great memories from that place," said Rory. "After taking part in a benefit bicycle ride for Lucas at the Hoosier GNCC, it had me thinking that I'd love to give my support in a way that people would get behind, but also shine some light and inspiration for Lucas, proving what can be done from a wheelchair." Lucas Grounds was injured in December while out riding when he crossed a wooden covered bridge. The front end washed out and he was tossed into one of the side pillars. Grounds continues to make amazing strides in physical rehab, but still has a long way to go in his recovery process. "It's going to be a challenge, it's a six-mile

Recreation Complex Open For Rentals Once Again

From The World Of Parks & Recreation

By Doug Comer

The County Commission gave the thumbs up for rental opportunities at the Recreation Complex and all other owned properties during its weekly meeting, thus lifting a 15-month stoppage from opening the building or other properties to the public for events or special occasions. Director Mike Book says this will open more opportunities for seasonal rentals at the pavilions as well as the main room.

"We lost a ton of revenue when COVID-19 hit," said Director Book. "Weddings, showers, birthdays and even the fundraisers can bring income into our department and that helps the county as a whole. The purpose of the building is to have a place to showcase events like that and make money in the process. It is a great building and having it open back up will be good for the community."

For those who have not been to the rec complex, the main room holds as many as 240 people at one time, it has a patio overlooking a golf course across the street, as well as a full kitchen for catering companies to use to keep food warm as well as a freezer and fridge. Ice is provided by an automated machine and there is a food warming station. All in all, you will have all the amenities needed for your event.

Scheduling the place is easy as calling the office and setting a date. Due to COVID this year, those who were on the calendar will get first option to keep their date (only a year later), but then it is open to anyone who would like to rent the building or the pavilions. Book hopes for a full calendar this year.

"Our summer months are consistent with events and we should get back up and running with a full book this year. It is a great place to host and many in the county will be pleased with the setting once they book a tour of the place."

If the indoors are not your thing, then you can rent one of the pavilions towards the back end of the property or at one of our other outlying properties. There are areas for cooking as well as picnic tables to sit and celebrate. And having the playground as part of the package makes things all more enticing for the family wanting to celebrate a birthday or event.

"The playground pavilions are always busy once summer hits and it's a perfect place to celebrate kid's birthdays," said Book. "There are plenty of activities to do at the playground and the seating is accommodating for everyone. We have picnic tables that meet ADA requirements and grills for those who want to grill hot dogs and hamburgers. All-in-all, it is a great venue for the price."

As many have noticed, the rates for many facilities have changed and the Recreation Complex has adjusted its pricing as well to cover

Shinnston Native Named Head Coach Of WVWC Women's Basketball Program

BRETT VINCENT

Shinnston Native, head coach of the West Virginia Wesleyan women's basketball program.

Vincent takes over a Bobcat women's basketball program that finished 6-11 overall in 2021 including a Mountain East Conference Tournament quarterfinal appearance.

In high school, Vincent was the 1986 Morgantown Touchdown Club West Virginia Boys Basketball Player of the Year at South Harrison in 1986. He went on to play two seasons for the Mountaineers at West Virginia before transferring to Robert Morris. Vincent finished his collegiate career at Marshall where his 43.6 percent shooting clip from beyond the arc still stands as the highest all-time career 3-point shooting percentage in program history. He earned a bachelor's degree in sports management from Marshall in 1991 and a master's degree in education from Salem-Teikyo in 2000.

Vincent is coming off a nine-year stint (2012-21) as the head men's basketball coach at Chowan University in Murfreesboro, N.C. He turned around a Chowan climb, straight up,” Rory added. “I’ve raced my hand bike all over the world, at multiple world championship events, but have never attempted anything like this. It’s going to be tough, but I’ll be fighting for Lucas the whole climb.”

The Ride For Life event will start at the bottom of the mountain, with Rory beginning his journey up the mountain around 10 a.m. with intentions of making his way into Snowshoe Village for the start of the afternoon ATV race. Riders, families and fans are asked to line the starting area to cheer on Rory as he makes his way to the top. This event was also made possible with the help of Tely Energy and K Wolfe Media. Rory continued, “It is amazing how far Lucas has come, and I know from experience how important the physical rehab aspect of this injury is, especially early on. Aggressive rehab is essential during the acute stages post spinal cord injury, but it’s also very expensive. The more we can help Lucas and his family get through this, the better the outcome for Lucas and his quality of life moving forward.”

A GoFundMe page has been created, with all proceeds going to the Grounds family. Also, keep up-to-date with Rory’s efforts on his Instagram - @ three years.” Toczczic stated that his intention at the time was to give the Navy four years and then look into entering the Police Academy, but that didn’t happen. Now, at nearly 50 years of age, he has given the Navy 31 years and with no regrets.

Known to his friends in high school as ‘Smitty’, he says he remains in contact with some of his friends like Jerry Miles of Haywood and Aaron Parsons of Enterprise. And he is still remembered and spoken of well. Parsons, for example, said he was always loved by everyone who knew him. Local resident David Harbert coached him in Little League as a youngster and recalls bringing him home after practice to share dinner the Harbert family until his mother was able to pick him up after work.

Two local Navy veterans, David Minor and Bruce Grimes, neither of whom knew Toczczic personally, commented that they were nevertheless proud of this Shinnston native and his naval accomplishments. Minor said Toczczic being named the head of the Pacific Fleet is “a big deal” and that this honor would never have been bestowed upon him had he not been genuinely worthy.

Grimes, who was himself a Master Chief in the Navy prior to his retirement, stated, “He will be the top and most senior ranking enlisted person of the Pacific Fleet and this is a huge honor. He will answer only to the Admiral and something like this happens to only the most deserving; it is something to be proud of.”

Jerry Toth, who was Principal at Lincoln High School when Toczczic was a student there, commented, “He was a good student and I remember him as being highly disciplined and very respectful as a student, and he was respected in return. He served as a good role model for other students. I could have nothing but the most positive remarks to offer about him. What he has accomplished is evidence that another Lincoln High School alum has done well.”

Toczczic says he also has some former teachers who are Facebook friends and often messages back and forth with the former LHS secretary Carol Gainer.

He has never forgotten his roots. Toczczic has fond memories of growing up in Shinnston. He remembers many evenings and weekends being spent on the grassy lot beside what at that time was Erwin Supply.

“It was a gathering place where kids played ball, listened to music and just hung out,” he recalled. “I think that is a good thing about growing up in a small town – everyone knew everyone and it was like a huge family. While some people dream of heading off to a big city and bright lights, I am still proud to have grown up there where people worked hard and had values... something that is diminishing in today’s world.”

‘Smitty’ currently resides in the D.C. area with his wife and two daughters; his oldest daughter is continuing her education at the University of Alabama, and his youngest daughter is a junior in high school. The family will be moving soon and relocating once again to Hawaii.

“Moving is sometimes hard,” he noted. “For example, this will be the third high school my youngest daughter has attended! We have lived in seven different locations – California, Virginia, D.C., Florida, Hawaii, Chicago and in Maine – always near the water of course. And I have lost track of the many countries I’ve seen while serving in the Navy. It has been a good life though. This tour will station me once again in Hawaii for three years. Then I will decide to either retire or compete for Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy.”

Smitty’s father is deceased, but his mother – Bobbie Toczczik, who once worked for the City of Shinnston – resides in Fairmont now with his older sister. He noted that fortunately, COVID risks had reduced enough to allow him to pay her a surprise visit for Mother’s Day this year!

He seemed touched to be thought of so fondly and supported by people in his hometown. He concluded, saying, “If folks there think of me as a nice person, I have to give all the credit to my parents that I turned out that way. That is how I was taught to live.”

FSU To Serve As Host Site For Youth STEM Camp

As a kid, Todd Ensign’s propensity and curiosity for science earned him the nickname “Space Cadet” from his classmates.

“I would sit at my desk and draw pictures of rockets,” said Ensign.

Today, Ensign’s imagination and ingenuity have taken shape as a livelihood focused on fostering an interest in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) fields among elementary, middle and high school students through his role as Program Manager of the NASA IV&V Education Resource Center.

This summer, Ensign and the ERC will be bringing STEM education to Fairmont through an event called Destination SPACE – Satellite Week, a satellite technology camp hosted in coordination with Global Science & Technology Inc., Destination SPACE and Fairmont State University.

The University’s residence halls will house high school students attending the five-day residential camp as they learn about everything from remote sensing and 3D printing to model rocketry and robotics from prominent NASA scientists as well as professional engineers, educators and former Satellite Week campers.

“What a special week this will be,” said Mirta M. Martin, Fairmont State University President. “The campus will be positively humming with youthful energy, as these young students explore the exciting world of STEM. Fairmont State is committed to educating and preparing young people not just for the jobs of today, but also for STEM-related careers that haven’t yet been invented. I can’t think of a better place for these bright, young minds to start than Destination SPACE.”

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, last year’s Destination SPACE event was held virtually. This year, Ensign is looking forward to having in-person interaction with the students. Campers will participate in team-building activities, complete hands-on projects and take field trips to locations like the West Virginia Robotic Technology Center at the I-79 Technology Park.

“Our mission is to engage, inspire and educate our youth so they can pursue STEM degrees and career pathways,” said Ensign, who is also a member of the faculty at Fairmont State. “We place an emphasis and focus on recruiting underrepresented populations and making opportunities available to students so they can learn about things like remote sensing, computer-aided design, soldering, coding and other skill sets that will hopefully gear them toward a career in one of the areas of STEM.”

Satellite Week runs Monday, July 12 through Friday, July 16, but students are expected to arrive on campus on Sunday, July 11. A limited number of students are accepted to the camp, and those who are interested must submit an application by Sunday, May 30 to be considered. The cost to attend is a $200 donation. For more information or to apply, visit www.destinationspace-stem.org/summer-programs.

The ERC will also host a variety of other programs throughout the summer, including: Virtual Coding Camp from June 14 through July 2 as well as July 12 - 30

Robotic Day Camps in Morgantown (June 7 - 11), Charleston (June 14 - 18), Fairmont (June 2 - 25), Martinsburg (June 28 - July 2) and Huntington (July 19 - 23)

Center in Clarksburg and all adjacent land, along with the Braxton Campus from Fairmont State to Pierpont.

In addition to Fairmont State’s Locust Avenue Campus facilities, Pierpont will vacate the Robert C. Byrd National Aerospace Education Center to construct a new hangar with 2.5 million dollars in funds provided by the state for its Aviation Maintenance Program ... therefore, allowing Fairmont State to grow student program offerings through its Aviation Center of Excellence (ACE), the only program within the state to earn the Federal Aviation Administration Approved Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) part 141 pilot training center accreditation. The separation enables Fairmont State to further broaden aviation training opportunities as the ACE prepares to welcome its inaugural class of cadets to the summer 2021 U.S. Air Force Junior Reserve Officer’s Training Corps Flight Academy. Fairmont State is one of 25 universities throughout the nation that has partnered with the U.S. Air Force to provide opportunities to JROTC cadets, while also expediting flight training for future airmen.

“We are sharply focused on providing quality, transformative educational opportunities at Fairmont State University, and continuously seeking ways to ensure we are best serving our students,” said David Goldberg, Fairmont State University Board of Governors Chairman. “As Pierpont vacates our campuses and develops their programs in their own facilities as a sovereign academic organization, we look forward to increased capacities for instruction and the expansion of programs, further enhancing the high-touch Fairmont State experience. We look forward to ongoing collaboration with Pierpont to find ways to enhance the workforce and grow talent right here in our community to benefit our growth and viability for the region we serve.”

This year, Fairmont State University has recorded increases in enrollment and revenues and decreases in expenses. In addition, Fairmont State recorded the highest Composite Financial Index in the state among four-year state institutions. The University has successfully navigated the COVID-19 pandemic on campus without furloughing any employees and has continued providing face-to-face instruction since August. The future of Fairmont State is sound, and the University is strongly positioned financially and academically to continue to soar to new and greater heights.

projects available at WorkAble Industries. “The Beehive Café is WorkAble’s newest venture and features a lunch menu from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday,” she said, adding, “The menu features a variety of sandwich box lunches and wraps with such names as The Norwood, The Glen Elk, The Fort New Salem and The Robinson Grand, and salads known as The Benedum or The Nathan Goff and the list goes on.”

Visitors can stop in and eat at the Beehive, pick up box lunches, or they can be delivered to businesses throughout Harrison County, with participants often riding along on the deliveries.

Participants at WorkAble Industries do more than earn a wage for a particular job. They develop skills they can rely on for the rest of their lives and learn that they are able to pay their own way. Many participants learn for the first time that they are valuable and contributing members of society.

“The wood shop has been standard for many years,” said Oliverio. “Kindling wood is bundled and stakes are pointed for use by the oil and gas industry and other businesses in our area.”

Participants at WorkAble also work on a shredding task. “They separate clean from dirty documents and remove staples and manila envelopes,” Oliverio added. “The documents are then sent to PACE Industries in Morgantown for the actual shredding.”

The screen-printing shop has been very popular over the years and various groups throughout the area have utilized this unique shop for T-shirts, sweatshirts and sweat pants. “The participants will remove strings from sweat pants and box pants when removed from the heat,” said Oliverio.

Participants also work in the area providing janitorial services in state buildings, office buildings and United Way, locally and in Buckhannon, Bridgeport and Charleston. In addition, participants work in temporary services, providing clerical services in Preston and Taylor counties and in Charleston and Morgantown for the Department of Health and Human Resources, WV Rehabilitation Services and Mining and Safety. WorkAble has 22 onsite participants and another 22 participants working offsite.

WorkAble also dispatches persons to monitor trucks crossing bridges for appropriate axles, permits, licenses and weight limit. Diana Cross supervises this program statewide from the Stonewood location.

“Some participants work two days a week and they are slowly returning to work since the COVID pandemic,” Oliverio continued. “Four to six participants work daily in our Stonewood facility. Survey stakes and screen printing are our two big money makers locally. We are getting ready to go ‘live’ on eBay and will take orders and ship our wooden stakes.”

In addition to various grants, WorkAble Industries receives funding from the WV Department of Rehabilitation Services and the United Way of Harrison County to cover general expenses.

said Chairman Lane. “Customers deserve to receive the service they are paying for.”

The Commission has received nearly 1,900 complaints from West Virginia customers regarding Suddenlink’s telephone and cable television service since Suddenlink is the second largest telephone provider and one of the five largest cable television companies in the state, serving up to 350,000 customers in 31 counties in West Virginia.

awarded since last Monday’s successful program launch. Restaurants and other food and beverage businesses across the nation could see funds in their bank accounts as early as Tuesday, May 11.

“Just one week after launching the $28.6 billion Restaurant Revitalization Fund, I am pleased to officially report that the SBA has begun to fund applications and that more than 16,000 restaurants and other food and beverage business owners will get much-needed relief in their hands,” said SBA Administrator Isabella Casillas Guzman. “We know that this help is urgently needed by so many who have suffered disproportionately from this pandemic and have often been unable to access relief. Restaurants are the core of our neighborhoods and propel economic activity on Main Streets across the nation.”

Under RRF, restaurants are eligible for funding equal to their pandemic-related revenue losses, capped at $10 million per business and $5 million per location. The SBA will continue to fund approved applications until all funds have been exhausted. SBA has prioritized a customer-centric approach to the delivery of economic aid, eliminating cumbersome application requirements, streamlining the application process, and by partnering with point-of-sale vendors to provide seamless ways to apply to the Restaurant Revitalization Fund.

Following the 21-day priority period, all eligible applications will be funded in the order in which they have been received. While the SBA will continue accepting applications from any eligible establishment until funds are exhausted, the number of applications received so far could exhaust the funds authorized to fund the RRF. Interested onsite food establishments may still apply through SBA-recognized POS vendors or directly via the SBA online application portal: <https://restaurants.sba.gov>.

Marion County Student Wins Statewide 'Kids Kick Opioids' Contest Winner

Wright's winning design features a drawing of a woman crying with a thought bubble depicting prescription pills above her head.

Attorney General Patrick Morrisey announced a north central West Virginia student as the statewide winner of this year's Kids Kick Opioids contest, a public service announcement partnership with elementary and middle schools that encourages students to raise awareness of prescription painkiller abuse. Judges selected Liliona McKenzie Wright, 14, of Rivesville Elementary/Middle School in Marion County as the statewide winner. They chose the eighth grader's artwork from entries submitted by students across West Virginia.

Wright's winning design features a drawing of a woman crying with a thought bubble depicting prescription pills above her head. "She was beautiful like a porcelain doll until she picked up the bottle, beauty began to fade as the doll cracked and shattered..." the illustration reads.

"Liliona's design shows the grim reality of the opioid epidemic and how opioid abuse can destroy lives," Attorney General Morrisey said. "My congratulations to Liliona, our runner-up and all of our regional winners for their hard work in promoting awareness of opioid abuse. We must do everything possible to attack the root causes of addiction and teach our youth the serious consequences of drug abuse."

Liliona's design will soon appear in newspapers across West Virginia as the Attorney General's next public service announcement.

Judges recognized winning entries from 67 students overall. Liliona and each of the regional winners will have their work displayed at the State Capitol in the fall. Kids Kick Opioids represents one of many initiatives through which the Attorney General has sought to combat West Virginia's drug overdose death rate, including a lawsuit against the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration that achieved sweeping reforms to the nation's drug quota system.

The Attorney General also has combated the opioid crisis with civil litigation, multistate initiatives, funding to target opioid abuse, criminal prosecutions, new technology, engagement with the faith-based community and education.

The West Virginia Board of Pharmacy, West Virginia Association of School Nurses and the Capitol Police assisted the Attorney General in judging the public service announcement contest.

Attorney General Morrisey's June Mobile Office Stops

Attorney General Patrick Morrisey announced a representative from his office will meet with north central West Virginia residents in June to discuss consumer-related issues and answer any potential questions.

"These public events are a great way for consumers to talk one-on-one with our consumer representatives," Attorney General Morrisey said. "Residents can easily get questions answered, learn what is going on in their area and how to keep personal information safe and secure."

Pam Krushansky, a consumer outreach and compliance specialist with the office, will host the local events as scheduled below:

June 1: 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. – Taylor County Senior Citizens Center front porch, 52 Trap Springs Road, Grafton
June 3: 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. –

Mannington Senior Center pavilion, 1 Senior Drive, Mannington
June 8: 11:00 to Noon – Harrison County Senior Center parking lot, 500 W. Main St., Clarksburg
June 8: 1:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m. – Shinnston Public Library, 40 Bridge St., Shinnston

For information on additional requirements specific to any location, attendees are encouraged to contact Pam Krushansky at 304-741-5834.

Smart529 'When I Grow Up' Essay Contest Winners Announced

State Treasurer Riley Moore this week announced the 15 regional student winners and statewide teacher winner of this year's SMART529 "When I Grow Up" essay contest.

The winners were unveiled during a Facebook event last week just ahead of national 529 Day, an annual celebration on May 29 (5/29) that raises awareness for 529 college savings plans around the country.

Parents, students and educators from around the state tuned in to hear the winners announced and learn more about the SMART529 program and 529 Day.

"This contest is a great way for parents to work with their children to prepare for the future," Treasurer Moore said. "It also inspires our kids to dream of who they might be when they grow up."

In its fourteenth year, the SMART529 "When I Grow Up" essay contest asked students in kindergarten through fifth grades to write an essay about what they want to be when they grow up. The teacher portion of the contest asked elementary school teachers to submit an essay about how they would use the contest in the classroom.

More than 2,300 students around the state participated in the contest. Essays from three age groups (grades K-1, 2-3, and 4-5) were judged in each of the five geographic regions, for a total of 15 regional winners.

Each regional winner will receive $500 invested into a SMART529 WV Direct account. An additional $4,500 will be awarded to a grand prize winner, who will be randomly selected in the fall. Each regional winner's school will also be awarded a $500 cash prize to support school programs.

"Each of these winners have a bright future ahead of them," Treasurer Moore said. "Due to pandemic and classroom shutdowns, it was a challenging year to enter. I am so proud of every student who submitted an essay."
