Students lauded for artistic endeavors

Jan. 29 marked the first time the Lincoln Middle School Wildcats danceline won the county championship.

Dance team wins

By Mary Heinrich

Thanks to confidence, focus, and a beautifully executed performance, the Lincoln Middle School Wildcats danceline mauled the competition on Jan. 29, beating out three other schools in the county dance championship.

Led by eighth grader Chelsea Boyles, the team also consists of eighth graders Danica Gherke, Kadee Kis; seventh graders, Addison Riley, Heidi Thomas, Payton Van Pelt; and sixth graders Audrey Rodeheaver, Aralyn Southern, and Lorelai Wolfe.

Lincoln High School played host to the contest, opening their doors to danceline teams from Bridgeport Mountaineer Middle, Middle, WI Middle, and Lincoln Middle.

Even though danceline is a fairly new sport to the area, having arrived in 2010, the gymnasium perform two routines, each two and a half to three minutes in length. Before the competition, the teams chose a number from a bucket to decide the order in which they would perform.

Organizers canceled the competition in 2020 and 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. But team members did dance during that time. They performed during football and basketball games, and most of the girls take dance class outside of school.

But there is nothing like competition to bring out the best in an athlete. This year brought a new energy the gymnasium, to and when the Lincoln Middle School Wildcats took the floor, the room came alive.

This group of nine girls commanded the attention of everyone in the room. Wearing sleek black and gold unitards with thick, black headbands, they stood out from the other teams dressed in more traditional, sparkly dance costumes.

Time for another sledding story

Things were a little slow in the Bluff this week, so it's time for another sled riding story. At least once every winter, my brothers (John and Jack), Tom McIntire, Don Cecil and I would tackle Peora Hill (main road) when it would be snow covered. We'd sandpaper down our sled runners and drag our sleds up the hollow (a mile) to Peora. On the Peora side of the hill, the road is roughly half a mile long, crooked, and steep. At the bottom, there is a small bridge in a turn. To get to the top of the hill, we'd wait for someone that we knew to come along. We would get behind the vehicle, lay down on our sleds, and reach up and grab a good handhold on the bumper. Sometimes there would be four of us across. For obvious reasons, you never hooked the sled rope over the bumper guard; the guy might not stop at the top. Then the driver would take off for the top of the hill. Your position on the bumper determined what you would experience in transit. If you were behind a tire and he started spinning, you'd get covered up from the slinging snow. If you were behind the exhaust pipe, you'd get the welcomed warmth, but you would stagger around a little after reaching the top from all the fumes.

If the driver was doing a lot of spinning, you'd be sucking a lot of fumes. Now, on this hill, there was no way of knowing if a vehicle was coming up the hill. So, you were on your own on the way down. By the time you got to the first turn (at the old watering trough), you were dragging your toes (brakes) trying to slow down while shifting your body (half on sled, half on ground) to the right to make the right-hand turn. After negotiating that turn, you'd pick up your feet and build up speed through the two next turns and hit the long straightaway. About halfway down the long stretch, you'd start applying the brakes again (toes of your four buckle Arctics). Then you'd make it around the next two turns and end up on Cunningham Run Road.

Our Dad could never figure out why we were so rough on boots. Once there were three of us coming down at the same time and we ran into a four-wheel drive pick-up truck on the way up; now there's an adrenaline rush for you. I was on the left, Tommy was in the middle, and John was on the right. John swears that Tommy passed under the middle of the truck. I can't confirm it because I was kind of incapacitated. When I saw the truck, I jerked the sled into the ditch. The

I would have to make do by playing pickup games after class or in the evenings. At least, that's what I thought until a cold day in October, when I saw a group of guys standing around the bulletin board, looking at a flier, labeled WVU Freshman Basketball Team Tryouts. It said that it was open to any full-time freshman and was signed, Chuck Windsor, WVU Freshman Basketball Coach.

remember walking Ι the Field House and seeing about fifty guys waiting to try out for the freshman team. I recognized a few of them from our pickup games, but most of them were new faces. At 6 foot 4 inches tall, I was one of the taller guys and thought that might be to my advantage.

The tryouts consisted of a lot of running up and down the court, under the watchful eye of Coach Windsor and his new graduate assistant Carl Head. We would then divide up into teams and scrimmage for the remainder of the tryout. As one of the big guys, I worked a good bit with Coach Head, a former player at WVU, who was working on his graduate degree and helping with the freshman team. The recruiting class for WVU that year was getting a lot of press, with All-American Will Robinson and West Virginia's first 7-footer, Mike Heitz, leading a talented group of scholarship players.

We learned that the official practices for the freshman team wouldn't begin until the fifty nonprospects scholarship eight lucky guys. I didn't want to get my hopes up and was somewhat resigned to, once again, having my dream to play at WVU crushed.

After two weeks of intense workouts, the coaches said that the list would be posted on the bulletin board at the Field House on Wednesday at 4 p.m. I was working at my work-study job in the speech department and didn't get off until 4 p.m. I hurried down to the Field House and saw a group of guys crowded around the bulletin board and squinted to see if I could see the list of names. As the crowd thinned out, I got up close and couldn't believe my eyes, I was on the list for the 1968-69 WVU freshman basketball team!

Government is doing big things in West Virginia, but House Bill 4260 will make it harder for you to know it.

Just last year, the West Virginia Legislature passed a law to create a government website to add online publication of the state's public notices and legal advertisements to the traditional newspaper publication.

That law increased public notice. All West Virginians benefited.

Now this year — before that website is even complete — some Delegates want to change the law and reduce public notice.

HB-4260 could eliminate the second and third public notice you now get in the local newspaper, making it less likely residents will see news about items such property forfeitures, tax sales, changes in mineral and natural gas rights, plans to locate waste facilities and many other issues that could impact you.

> Let your Delegate know you oppose HB-4260 Find your representative's contact information at wvlegislature.gov

It's simple: Keep public notice about your community in your community
