A steady stream of hungry customers formed lines outside of the Mr. Taco Food Truck, parked in off-street parking at 413

Pike St., The Soapbox, for most of the day on Tuesday, March 7.

Alma and Kenneth Tyson, co-owners of Mr. Taco, had brought their food truck to town and plan to for at least the next several months, on every first and third Tuesday.

In between cooking, Alma Tyson said every dish she makes, she makes with love.

“I’m really, really happy when I’m cooking,” she said. “I’m thinking of other people, because I want to share my traditions, my recipes, my food, my culture from Mexico to share with everybody.”

“You ever notice your grandma’s food tastes different? There’s a reason,” her husband added.

All their dishes are made from scratch with fresh ingredients.

Abigail Deitzel, who said she’d frequented the taco truck in several places, said she noticed that authenticity and appreciated the fresh ingredients.

ate,” she said.

The Tysons, who’ve been married 20 years, said it was their third year owning the truck and they’d taken it to various surrounding locations, as well as Shinnston and to their regular stops at the VA Medical Center, where they contribute 10% of sales that day to the VA.

But stops will increase in frequency now that the restaurant they opened last year in Glen Elk is more established.

The Tysons said the day was a kick-off for their taco truck season since the weather is getting warmer.

They’d wanted to spend more time in Shinnston and said city officials had been helpful.

“It was hard for us before because we were using the green space and we were parked on the side of the road and there was a lot of people coming and there wasn’t any place for them to kind of be, so we had to have the police direct traffic,” Kenneth Tyson said.

“This works out perfect because now the people can come and they can sit inside,” he said, gesturing to customers sitting in The Soapbox to eat. “They have restrooms right here they can use. It’s almost like a restaurant but right on the street.”

“We just want to thank Shinnston for allowing us to come and we hope everyone comes and enjoys us being here,” he added.

$1 million offered for crime recognition technology

By Erin Beck

Last week, Shinnston City Council approved applying for a $1 million project that would include cameras tracking license plates and monitoring traffic, as well as new school safety technology.

The approximately $1 million in guaranteed funding comes from Congressional discretionary spending thanks to Senators Shelley Moore Capito, a Republican, and Senator Joe Manchin, a Democrat.

There was no explanation of the project before the members unanimously voted in a roll call vote to give City Manager Chad Edwards permission to apply for the funding.

“The details will be coming,” Edwards said.

“Anybody have any questions?” asked Amy Haberbosch Wilson, executive director of the Harrison County Economic Development Corp.

“I mean, it’s an opportunity to get a million dollars in the city of Shinnston,” said Councilmember Maryann Ferris. “I am in favor of it, regardless of what we have to do, as long as it’s not dancing naked in the street.”

Edwards said he believed they’d be the first “Smart City” to receive the $1 million pilot project funding. Haberbosch Wilson then said they could designate another title other than “Smart City” if they liked.

According to the provided fact sheet, the city aims to “improve public safety and critical infrastructure by leveraging smart technology and concepts. By using sensors for traffic counts, incident verification, safety in schools, license plate readers and facial recognition, we will be able to create and maintain a safer environment for our residents, businesses, and visitors.”

Technology components would include:

- city-wide video management to inform public safety efforts, monitor traffic, and use license plate recognition and facial recognition
- Smart School technology including computerized door locks with alarms, automatic notification and lock down systems in all schools, back-up power for school phones and other areas of safety discovered as the three-year project continues

“One of the big concerns that you all can explain to some of the parents or even the police, it does

The Key West Drag Races

Several years ago, my wife and I planned a trip to one of our favorite places, Key West, Florida. We had been there several times and always enjoyed the great weather, good food and wonderful music. We were excited because they had just implemented direct plane service and we did not have to fly on the small, propeller planes, crammed in like sardines. As we got off the plane, we saw a sign hanging in the lobby of the airport that said, “Welcome Race Fans” and learned that they were having a drag racing event during our stay. While I have gone to several NASCAR races and even went to the Indianapolis 500 one year, I had never been to a professional drag racing event. When I pointed to the sign, my wife made a frown and I realized that she intended to lay out at the pool and enjoy margaritas and was not going to be going to a noisy racing event on this trip.

We went to our bed and breakfast and got checked in and jumped in our swimsuits and headed for the pool. One thing that we love about Key West is that you can pack a couple t-shirts and shorts and be well dressed for any of the bars and restaurants along Duval Street. As we lounged by the pool, we enjoyed some snacks and talked about our schedule for the next couple of days. It consisted of some bicycling, a visit to the Earnest Hemmingway house and stops at our favorite bars and restaurants. We also wanted to be at the dock to watch the sunset, and mingle with the hundreds of visitors, milling around and watching the street performers juggle and do magic tricks for tips.

The third day of our trip we headed for Duval

USDA helps rural entrepreneurs

By Ryan Thorn West Virginia State Director USDA Rural Development

West Virginians have a strong entrepreneurial spirit and it's important for us to foster that culture and make sure they have the resources they need to succeed.

Rural entrepreneurs create good-paying jobs for people living in their communities. They start businesses and industries that expand financial opportunity while delivering products and services that improve our lives.

Just how is USDA supporting rural entrepreneurs and investing in small businesses? At Rural Development we're doing this through programs such as our Value-Added Producer Grant Program, which helps agricultural producers enter value-added activities to generate new products, create and expand marketing opportunities, and increase producer income.

Last year, through the Value-Added Producer program, we awarded $249,660 to Mountain Steer Meat Company in Greenbrier County. This investment was used to assist with the development and start-up of a retail location. The funding allowed Mountain Steer to not only create new jobs but make fresh, locally raised and processed beef readily accessible to consumers in West Virginia.

We're also helping entrepreneurs and businesses bolster their bottom line with the Rural Energy for America Program (REAP), the program provides eligible small businesses with grant funding to make energy efficiency upgrades at their operations or to install renewable energy systems. REAP will receive an additional $2 billion in funding over the next decade through President Biden's historic legislative package, the Inflation Reduction Act.

For instance, in December 2022 we awarded $69,128 to Handley House, Inc. in Marshall County. The funds are being used to purchase and install LED lighting and a heating and air condition system. This project will help this small rural business save $7,738 per year in energy costs.

Supporting entrepreneurs is about more than just financial assistance. Starting a business can be intimidating and it can be difficult figuring out where to begin. That's why Rural Development has created a Resource Guide for Rural Entrepreneurs designed to help rural entrepreneurs start and grow businesses, create good-paying jobs and strengthen West Virginia's economy.

West Virginia's rural entrepreneurs are critical to the success of our nation's economy. USDA Rural Development is committed to advocating for rural business owners and building brighter futures for everyone in rural West Virginia.

Fostering a strong business climate and providing resources for new businesses is crucial to their success. At Rural Development we're assisting communities with this through programs such as the Rural Business Development Grant Program, which supports technical assistance and training for small rural businesses, the creation of entrepreneurship incubators, assists with the acquisition and redevelopment of publicly owned land and buildings used to spur economic development, the creation of workforce training programs, and so much more.

Last year, we invested $11 million through our business and cooperative programs to support rural entrepreneurs and small businesses in West Virginia. We do this because when rural communities succeed, West Virginia succeeds, when West Virginia succeeds, our nation succeeds and by continuing to work together, West Virginia will continue to prosper.

You can learn more about our programs by visiting our website or by calling 304-284-4860.

Street and noticed that a large crowd was gathering along the street. It looked like they were getting ready for a parade, but I spied a banner above the street, and it said, "Welcome to the Key West Drag Races". Surely, they were not going to be drag racing down this narrow street. As we got closer, I saw several grocery carts on the street and some official looking people dressed in black and white striped shirts. The PA announcer blasted away with the announcement that all entrants were to be at the starting line in sixty seconds. Much to our surprise, about a dozen drag queens walked over to the starting line, each dressed in sequins and high heels. It was such a sight, and the crowd went crazy. It was such a fun afternoon and my wife, and I enjoyed every minute.

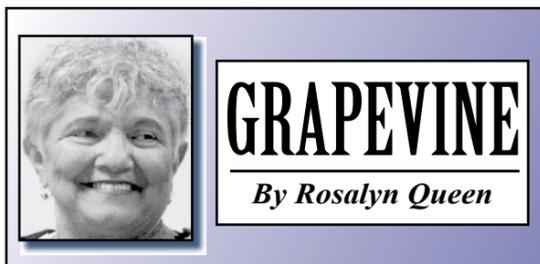

I was reminded of this wacky event while reading the news reports of state legislatures putting laws into effect to ban these so-called "Drag Shows". There has also been threats of violence towards venues that host such events. We seem to have entered a period that resembles the Salem Witch Trials or the McCarthy Hearings of the 1950's. No data suggests that there is even an inkling of concern with these events, but our legislators spend taxpayer funded time on stirring up ignorant people to hate and ridicule people who chose a different lifestyle. I'm sure that they are already preparing legislation to rescind Robin William's Golden Globe Award for his performance in Mrs. Doubtfire or to place the popular TV series, Bosom Buddies and it's starring actor, Tom Hanks on a Blacklist in Hollywood.

It might be funny if it were not so serious. Like the hate filled attack in 2016 at the Pulse nightclub in Orlando, Florida or the horrific killing of Matthew Shepard in Wyoming in 1998, ignorant sycophants need only a spark to trigger their deadly violence.

We should be better than this!

LongHorn Steakhouse celebrates grand opening

This past week individuals gathered at the new Harrison County LongHorn Steakhouse for the grand opening. I had the opportunity to sit down with Patrick Safran, Pittsburgh region director of operations, and Cindy Kramer, managing partner, and discuss items of interest to the public.

The restaurant is decorated in a western motif with much interest on the longhorn. It has an open atmosphere which encourages friendliness. It has a family atmosphere and focus on feeding the family.

Approximately 500 applications were received when the word got out that LongHorn was coming and would be hiring. 80 individuals were hired and Safran and Kramer had nothing but praise for the employees.

Safran emphasized that all foods were prepared fresh and never frozen. The menu carried such items as steak, chicken and fish. There is a special children's menu and an $8.99 lunch menu is featured daily. Safran commented that their chicken sandwich will certainly rival that sandwich prepared down the street. There is no buffet and they do not have areas for meetings. They do prepare take outs.

The LongHorn management and employees will focus on being a part of the community and working with nonprofit groups in the area.

The word is out that Longhorn is open and ready to cater to the families in our area. Plan on stopping in and talking to the management and employees and enjoying a family atmosphere.

Stay healthy, take care and until next week "Now You Have Heard It Through The Grapevine."

March 20, 1936: Recurring storms led to major flooding on the Potomac River, hitting record levels at Harpers Ferry. The Ohio River at Parkersburg reached 10 feet above flood stage.

March 21, 1914: The first West Virginia boys' high school basketball tournament began in Buckhannon. The event was sponsored by West Virginia Wesleyan College, which at the time had West Virginia's largest and finest gymnasium.

Indians and Hawks are southbound

The Bottom Line

By Bill Nestor
Sports Editor

Bridgeport picked up its 18th win of the season this past Wednesday, and it was by far the biggest of the season as it propelled the tribe into the state tournament. It also happened to be the most dramatic of all of their victories this year and it came as an extreme underdog to their opponent, Wheeling Park. The Patriots claimed a 17-point win over the Indians back on Dec. 17 in Wheeling in the second and final lock-up for these two squads in the setting. Bridgeport had previously won a sectional crown which meant this battle would take place in tribe territory. Indian stand-out Anthony Spatafore had shot tons of shots prior to this epic battle on his home floor and he received a “shooters roll” on the game winner as time expired. Spatafore took a pass from Ashton Curry on the right wing where he proceeded to go to work. Everyone in the gym, including the five Wheeling Park players, knew that the ball would end up in Spatafore’s hands. However, knowing where it is going and stopping the tribe’s scoring leader from scoring well; that is another story. Spatafore collected the ball, took a pair of dribbles toward the hoop, and his sweet spin left a Patriot defender in disbelief. He put up a floater in the lane over the outstretched arms of a duo of players, and then it seemed as if time has stopped. Eventually, the high arching shot would come down on the rim, hit the backboard and drop through the net to give Bridgeport the 49-48 win.

The Indians started the contest and trailed 15-6 after the first period. That would change in the second quarter and the host hit for 17 points (the most by either team of the night), to draw to within a single point at the halftime break.

After three segments the squads were all even and it went back and forth with the buzzer beater from Spatafore. Spatafore would lead all scorers with 24 points. He would also rip down a game-high nine rebounds, collect three steals, and dish out a pair of assists. Tyler, Randolph and Curry would chip in with six points apiece for the Indians.

South Harrison punched their ticket to the state tournament with a consuming win over Petersburg. The Hawks were the heavy favorite heading into the lock-up and they played like it jumping out to a 53-23 halftime lead. South Harrison extended its advantage to 77-31 after three quarters and ran away with the 79-41 victory.

The Hawks were led by Corey Boulden. Boulden knocked down four three-pointers en route to a game-high 26 points. Noah Burnside narrowly missed a double-double with 18 points and nine rebounds. Caden Davis netted 15 points and Brevan Robinson added 13 points to round out the double digit scorers. Austin Peck scored seven points, handed out a game-high ten assists, and recorded a game-high four steals. South Harrison takes a 23-2 mark into the state tournament and they lost a pair of games by a total of five points.

Lincoln ended its season with a 77-39 setback to Fairmont Senior. The Polar Bears jumped out to an early lead and the deficit was too much for the Cougars to overcome. Lincoln was led by Aiden Rice. Rice finished with a team-high ten points. David Burdette, Brayden Edgell, Noah Sears, and Nate Swiger all added six points apiece. Maddox Perine rounded out the scoring with five points.

That will do it for now. Until next week... take care and God Bless!

Athletes of the Week

It's that time once again to acknowledge the efforts of Harrison County's student-athletes. Each week we review the performances of the athletes from the six schools (Bridgeport, Liberty, Lincoln, Notre Dame, Robert C. Byrd, and South Harrison) in our county.

The Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal's Athlete of the Week award is an avenue to promote the youth of our county while bringing attention to their athletic accomplishments.

This week's winners of the Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week Award are Bridgeport's Rachel Mason and Cam Cole.

Indian softball player Rachel Mason led her team at the plate this past week. Mason was seven of 11 including a four of four effort against Wheeling Park. She also scored a pair of runs in the initial match-up versus the Patriots.

Indian baseball player Cam Cole helped his team to a 3-1 week. Cole was eight of 15 including a pair of doubles. Cole recorded six stolen bases, scored three runs and drove in a pair of runs.

Congratulations to Bridgeport's Rachel Mason and Cam Cole for being named the Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week!

“Pi Day,” March 14, is our day

From The World of Parks & Recreation

By Doug Comer

Happy anniversary to my best friend

This week, I'm thinking about the roads we travel and the people we meet along the way. Throughout our lives we do make a few stops, only to realize that it is not the best area to live in. Then, one day you come across a stretch of highway that has been untouched for years, with plenty of potholes and other obstacles to make the road more challenging to drive.

Once you get through that stretch, you notice an area that just draws you in. You stop, visit and realize that you have made it home. And for eight years now, I have completed my journey knowing that this is exactly where I want to be.

I met Jeovanna over a decade ago and finally got the nerve to ask her out about 18 months later and never looked back. There was an instant connection between us. While we are so different in ways, it gives us a balance in life and I will never understand why she said the words, “I do.”

My wife is scheduled; I am not. She is structured and again, I am not. We could make a laundry list of the differences between us. But, for some reason, we just click. And our relationship is contagious in a sense because our families are not only happy that we have found each other, but truly have a love coming from both sides of the union.

My dad texts her every morning asking how his favorite daughter-in-law is doing. Jeovanna's mom always makes sure that I have a plate of food that she made that day, and of course it is of the Italian variety. The bond is strong between the two of us and everyone around can see it and feeds off of it. Both parents hoped that the two of us would find peace and happiness.

In just a few months, we knew that we wanted this to happen. And just like we do, we did it as a team. I did not want to get a ring that she may not have liked, so I asked her to come with me and pick out the one she wanted. It is unconventional, but she got exactly what she wanted. Happy wife, happy life, as they say.

Most people know that I like to moonlight during the winter as a basketball official. I started before I met Jeovanna and my body is telling me that I am on the descent of a long-term career. This work is for celebrating our anniversary. We try to find a weekend that makes sense for both of our schedules and officiating the games pays for the trip. The grandparents get the kids and the puppy and we have a little break from our crazy lives to share a little “us” time.

I always get the “you're the lucky one to have me” comments especially when I need reminded. In fact, everyone that she meets should be lucky they have met her. She is professional in work and in life and we always look forward to that weekend away where no one will know us and we can just be us – husband and wife, partners in crime and most of all, best friends. Happy anniversary to my rock.

MARCH IS NATIONAL NUTRITION MONTH

Eating healthy does not mean sacrificing your budget. By following these tips, you can create healthy meals on a budget and save money on your grocery bill.

People often think it is more cost effective to buy less nutritious food than nutritious food. How can you eat healthy on a budget?

The key to eating healthy is to plan your meals for the week based on your food budget.

- Make a grocery list. This will help you save money by buying only what you need and prevent you from buying impulse purchases.
- Look for cheaper vegetables/fruits based on what is in season.
- The goal is to cross utilize ingredients that you can use for more than one dish

Can comparison shopping make a big difference in your grocery budget?

Absolutely. You can become a savvy shopper by comparing and reading labels when grocery shopping.

- Locate the "unit price" on the shelf sticker near the item price.
- Compare different brands and sizes for the best money-savings option. Often, the store brand is the real bargain.

What are some ingredients that can help all of us to stretch our food dollars?

- Buy less expensive ingredients such as beans and substitute them for meat. In certain recipes like chili, spaghetti, or burgers, beans make a great alternative.
- Adding canned or frozen vegetables will bulk up your meals. Typically, it will provide enough food to have leftovers, saving you money.

Is it possible to save money on your herb and spice rack?

Walking down the spice and herb aisle at the grocery store and reviewing the prices can be intimidating. Stretch your budget by growing herbs like basil and oregano inside your home. Small gardens can be grown on a windowsill or a kitchen counter.

Fresh fruits and vegetables can be unaffordable. What can you do to ensure you get the nutrients you need?

Frozen or canned fruits and vegetables are a healthy alternative to fresh ones. You will find that frozen and canned products:

- Typically cost less
- Last longer
- Often have resealable packaging
- Allows you to buy "off-season" for cheaper

What are some easy ways to save on your grocery bill that most consumers often overlook?

- Buy larger quantities of foods that store well, such as grains, canned or dried beans, and frozen vegetables.
- Take advantage of store coupons, manufacturer's coupons, and app rewards. App rewards can allow you to scan your receipts to save points and get gift cards for many different retailers.
- Store brands can save you money. It may seem like pennies, but the savings quickly add up.
- Check the produce section for "gently bruised" or special markdowns.

not have to be facial recognition,” Haberbosch Wilson said. “This can be weapon recognition, which I wasn’t aware of. And that’s huge too.”

She added that the city is not required to match funding or provide labor.

“But absolutely capitalize on the opportunity to use all of the software and the data from it,” she said. “Because at the end of three years, if you want to end it, sell the cameras, do whatever, you’re going to be able to use that data for 10 years.”

She said the Economic Development Corp. is also looking for Congressional funding for the Enterprise-Interstate 79 connector project, discussed for decades, and spoke about the economic growth possibilities due to Shinnston’s proximity to aerospace businesses.

Police Chief Jon Harbert also spoke, saying cell phones could already be tracked. Council member Amanda Sayers added, “if you’re not doing anything wrong...”

House of Delegates adjourns from session

Submitted by Ann Ali

House of Delegates Deputy chief of staff and communications director

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The House of Delegates adjourned Saturday, March 11 at midnight, after another history-making regular legislative session.

A total of 332 bills completed the legislative process, including adopting a balanced budget during the regular legislative session for the fifth year in a row, again eliminating the need for the extended budget session of years past.

The first session of the 86th Legislature marks the first time in West Virginia history the state is represented by single-member House districts. This Legislature includes 31 new members and 88 Republicans, the largest number of Republicans in modern history.

The full Legislature passed House Bill 3035 with a near-unanimous vote to boost reading and math in early grades. House Speaker Roger Hanshaw, R-Clay, described the bill as a true team effort among the executive branch, the state Senate and the House of Delegates.

“The bill was introduced as a governor’s bill, but it’s something we’ve worked on here at the Legislature for the past two years and it represents one of the biggest investments we’ve made in early childhood education since Gov. Arch Moore established the statewide kindergarten program,” Hanshaw said. “With this bill, through the hard work of the Education Committees in both the House and the Senate, we’ll be able to expand on the successful assistant teacher program we’ve had in the state for kindergarten classrooms to eventually put an additional trained, caring adult in every first-, second- and third-grade classroom.”

Members of the House took time on the final day of the legislative session to recognize the seven inaugural recipients of the Medal of Valor. House Bill 3552, which also completed the legislative process on the final day of the regular legislative session, will give counties a new process to receive certain regional jail reimbursements when municipal police arrest an inmate who is taken to the regional jail.

“With this legislative session, we have successfully divided the biggest state agency to make it more effectively serve every single resident of this state and provided the largest tax break in the history of the state to the tune of $750 million, on top of another well-deserved state employee pay raise,” Hanshaw said. “We should all be proud of the work we were able to accomplish together for the state of West Virginia in these 60 days.”

Foster Parents and Advocates React to DHHR Application for Reimbursement of Fees

On February 10, DHHR announced that payments for thousands of children living with kinship families and legal guardians would be delayed by one week due to problems with the conversion of data from the old FACTS data system to the new PATH data system. Almost three weeks later, the delays have impacted kinship, foster, and adoptive families and legal guardians. Many are still waiting to receive their children’s funds. These funds are provided by DHHR to assist in meeting the needs of children who have been separated from their birth families.

In a letter sent to lawmakers and DHHR on February 21, Marissa Sanders, Founder and Executive Director of the WV Foster Adoptive & Kinship Parents Network, an advocacy organization for families involved in the child welfare system, called for a $1,000 supplemental payment to all impacted families to ensure they are made whole. This figure is based on average fees reported by families and an estimated average of the monthly funds sent to families. “I have been in constant communication with families impacted by delayed payments. People are facing overdraft fees, late fees, even disconnect and eviction notices as a result of these failures. I have connected some families with help acquiring food, gas, and assistance with bills after other community resources were unable to meet their needs,” Sanders said.

Many families had automatic payments set up in anticipation of receiving those funds on their normal schedule. When the funds did not arrive on time, their account quickly began accruing overdraft fees. As payments were returned, this led to cascading problems of late fees and additional overdrafts when bills were resubmitted to the bank. One adoptive family, speaking on condition of anonymity out of fear of retaliation from DHHR said, “I had so many overdraft fees that my mortgage company would no longer accept payments from that account. I had to close the account and open a new one. Now I have to change my direct deposit information, which will delay next month’s payment.”

Other families had to delay or cancel important sports registrations, school events, or therapies for their children. “When I finally received the funds for my children, nearly 75% went to overdraft fees. This meant that as the next round of bills came through, I became overdrawn again. As a result, I have been unable to pay for soccer fees and equine therapy for my children,” said another family speaking on condition of anonymity.

Most families who have called

DHHR for assistance report that multiple calls to different numbers left them without answers about when their payment would be received or how to get help for immediate needs caused by these delays. As one family said, “Unfortunately, you get the same message no matter who you call: ‘Sorry, can’t help, it’s someone else’s fault.’ I am satisfied that I left no stone unturned, but I still don’t know when the deposit will be made.”

On March 1, DHHR announced a process for families to apply for reimbursement of fees related to the delayed payments. While impacted families appreciate this offer, most feel that a supplemental payment to all impacted families would be a more efficient and immediate way to provide relief, especially for families who are still struggling. Sanders said, “Families may not receive bills and statements that show fees until next month. By then they may have incurred more fees. Mailing documents and waiting for DHHR to process and reimburse these fees could take weeks that families can’t afford. This process creates more bureaucratic red tape for families who are already in distress.”

Network members felt the application process could be useful for families with unique or excessive losses beyond the $1,000 supplemental payment. They said the process should be tweaked to allow for mail or digital submission of documents and to provide a toll-free number caregivers can call with questions. It should also be expanded to include fees incurred in March for families who have not yet received their full February payment.

Going forward, families and advocates hope DHHR will prepare for the possibility of more delays, improve communication and collaboration with families, and establish effective ways to meet immediate needs when crises arise.

Insulin Co-Pay Cap Bill Completes Legislative Action, Heads to the Governor

(CHARLESTON, WV) – West Virginians for Affordable Health Care (WVAHC) praises the West Virginia Legislature as Senate Bill 577 (SB 577) completes legislative action and heads to the Governor for his signature.

“This is great news for West Virginians,” said Dr. Jessica Ice, executive director of West Virginians for Affordable Health Care. “SB 577 helps West Virginians who have health insurance be able to afford the care they need to stay healthy, avoid expensive health complications and emergencies, and to stay working and productive.”

SB 577 reduces the cost of insulin to $35 per 30-day supply and states that the cost of devices shall not exceed $100 per 30 days. The bill also removes the prescription for a blood test for ketones.

According to the American Diabetes Association, 232,000 West Virginia adults have diagnosed diabetes, and an additional 45,000 West Virginians have diabetes but don’t know it, greatly increasing their health risks. Another 35% of West Virginia adults are diagnosed as pre-diabetic, and the cost of managing diabetes continues growing unaffordable for many in the Mountain State.

“Imagine waking up to the prospect of making a heartbreaking choice: Should I pay for rent, or should I risk death by forgoing my medication?” said Mindy Salango, a Type 1 diabetic who lives in Morgantown. “Now, imagine having to make this choice relentlessly, without relief, every day. SB 577 will provide diabetics with much needed relief and peace of mind by creating reasonable patient out-of-pocket spending cost caps.”

SB 577 originated in the Senate and covered only private insurance. The House of Delegates adopted a House Health amendment to include PEIA. It has an effective date of January 1, 2024. The bill now heads to the Governor for his signature.

A Tribute to an R&B Legend Coming to Clarksburg

Clarksburg, WV – The Robinson Grand Performing Arts Center is bringing Chester Gregory and his tribute to Jackie Wilson to downtown Clarksburg on Friday, April 21, 2023, at the historic Robinson Grand Performing Arts Center located at 444 W. Pike St. in Clarksburg, WV.

Joined by a rhythm section, Chester Gregory performs a high-caliber tribute to Jackie Wilson and the artists he influenced. Chester is an award-winning actor and singer. He made his Broadway debut in Hairspray, performing in many more productions including the leading role of Berry Gordy in the hit show, Motown the Musical.

“This energetic show will have our audience dancing and singing all night long,” said Jason A Young, the program manager at the Robinson Grand. “Gregory has performed all over the world in iconic roles of stage and on screen.”

Chester Gregory began multi-award-winning career as an actor and singer when he landed the lead role in the critically acclaimed stage play The Jackie Wilson Story, which had a three-year run of sold-out performances at the Black Ensemble Theatre in Chicago.

The Jackie Wilson Story culminated at New York’s Apollo Theater and received rave reviews from the New York Times. In 2003, Gregory’s award-winning depiction of Jackie Wilson gave him the opportunity to perform of the legendary “King of Pop,” Michael Jackson, who gave Gregory a standing ovation. That same week, Gregory made his Broadway debut as Seaweed in the Tony Award Winning Musical Hairspray, and he went on to originate and star in many Broadway musicals including Tarzan, Cry-Baby, Sister Act, and August Wilson’s Fences and Two Trains Running. He also performed internationally while touring with Motown the Musical, Dreamgirls, and Sister Act.

“The talent of Chester Gregory elevates this show way above your boilerplate tribute show to more of a one-man live theatrical experience,” said Young. “If you miss this show you will be very disappointed.”

Tickets for Chester Gregory’s tribute to Jackie Wilson start at only $20, and go on sale to Friends of the Robinson Grand on Tuesday, March 7, 2023, and to the general public on Friday, March 10, 2023 at 10:00a.m. All tickets can be purchased online at tickets.therobinsongrand.com or by calling the Robinson Grand ticketing center at (855)773-6283.
