Inn opens door to Shinnston

Gillum House named Business of the Month

Gillum House Bed and Breakfast, which offers meals with local food to guests, has been named Business of the Month. Online reviewers rave about the delicious homemade breakfast.

By Kara Linaburg

Kathleen Panek's dream to open a bed and breakfast began when her children were young and they visited a bed and breakfast on a family vacation. After leaving that following morning, she thought, "I could do that."

Now, after owning and running her own for the last 20-plus years, she said, "I really enjoy it, because as I tell folks, 'people pay me to come entertain them.'"

After raising their children, Panek and her husband moved from Illinois back to Panek's home state of West Virginia. "On January 4 of 1995, the moving van was unloading in front of 35 Walnut St.," Panek Gillum House has had a wide variety of visitors the last twenty-some years, including former Congressman, David McKinley in March of 2022. Owner Kathleen Panek said she has had people from not only across the United States, but all over the world.

"And after most of it was unloaded, the helper was standing in the doorway looking around and he says, 'yep, you moved to Mayberry.'"

In July of 1996, the Gillum House Bed And Breakfast doors were opened. "I enjoy cooking; I enjoy cooking for my guests and making them feel special, because that's why you go to a bed and breakfast," Panek said. "I only have three rooms, and if I had a fourth room I don't know if I could manage it, but I only have three rooms."

Panek said that over the course of the last 20-plus years, her bed and breakfast has opened doors for people to visit Shinnston from all over. "I've had people come from all over the world that have been

Poetry competition participant learns to "say it with confidence"

Myah Riley, who represented Lincoln High School at Poetry Out Loud this year, said that Poetry Out Loud taught her to have a voice and stand up for what you believe in.

By Kara Linaburg

Forty-one high school students from around West Virginia competed in the state championship for Poetry Out Loud in Charleston, May 8-10. Lincoln High School 10th grader, Myah Riley, recited from memory two poems, one being "Acquainted With The Night," by Robert Frost, one of her all-time favorite poets.

"I'm a big Robert Frost fan and I just got the complete collection, and that was one I'd only read a couple times, but it kinda just struck within me," Riley said. "I was really nervous. It was my first

Lincoln students among rugby team players

A rugby team made up of high school students includes, from left to right in the front row, Christina Martin of Doddridge County High School, Emily Jozwick of Doddridge County High School, Trinity Wheeler of Lincoln High School, Whitney Knudsen of Ritchie County High School, Brooke DeHaven of Doddridge County High School, and Emma Chwalek of Doddridge County High School.

In the back row are Jocelyn Lipscomb of Doddridge County High School, Keely Stire of Lincoln High School, Jayden Powers of Doddridge County High School, Shanta McKinney of Doddridge County High School, Kylie Richards of Doddridge County High School, and Alyza Elliott of Doddridge County High School.

Not pictured are Julie (JJ) Taylor of Ritchie County High School and Mckenzie McIntosh of North Marion High School.

The Warhounds, the only high school rugby club team in West Virginia, will be taking the field for their second season this spring and includes Lincoln High School students, according to a news release.

Those students are Trinity Wheeler and Keely Stire.

The team operates through Doddridge County Parks and Recreation.

Head Coach Ray Bezjak will return as coach. "Our growth in the number of players and with our experience we will be competitive in every game we play this year," he said.

The Warhounds have added seven new members to the roster to compliment the returning rug- gers.

The team has been invited to compete in the Division II, West of Pennsylvania High School Rugby League. Along with league play they will be hosting several in-state tournaments.

The tournaments will help showcase their talents for friends and family and introduce the sport of rugby to the greater North Central West Virginia community.

The team would like to thank its sponsors for making this season possible – they couldn't do it without their generous support.

BUILDING AMAZING CITIES

Cherry Blossoms and Baked Alaska!

Charlie Dillon, left, manager of the restaurant Truluck's in Washington, bonded over West Virginia roots when he met Jim Hunt, columnist, during Hunt's trip for the National League of Cities meeting.

As I was driving to Washington, D.C. for the spring meeting of the National League of Cities, I heard on the radio that the cherry blossoms were just about to hit their peak beauty and I thought that would be a nice addition to the trip. After being there for a couple of days, my colleagues and I decided to take off for a couple hours and see the hundreds of cherry trees in all their glory. We took an Uber to the Thomas Jefferson Memorial and as we approached, we could see the pink blossoms surrounding the reflecting pond. It was amazing! We walked among the hundreds of visitors from throughout the country and the world. Since the cherry blossom trees were a gift to the United States from Tokyo's Mayor Yukio Ozaki in 1912, as a token of friendship, many Japanese tourists make their way to Washington in the spring to see

Household leaks drain your wallet

By Charlotte Lane, West Virginia Public Service Commissioner Chair

Did you know that households in America lose almost a trillion gallons of water every year? That's trillion, with a T. And most of that water is lost because of simple household leaks.

The earth is about 71% water, but we can't drink the water that is in the oceans or the polar ice caps. In fact, less than 1% of the water on earth is freshwater that is available for us to use.

The Public Service Commission observes Fix a Leak every March, but water conservation is something we promote every day. Visit our website at www.psc.state.wv.us and scroll down to Conservation to find a link called Lower Your Water Bill.

So, how can you help stop the waste? The most important thing you can do is chase down and stop household leaks. Start by checking your water bill. If there is an unexplained spike, you probably have a leak.

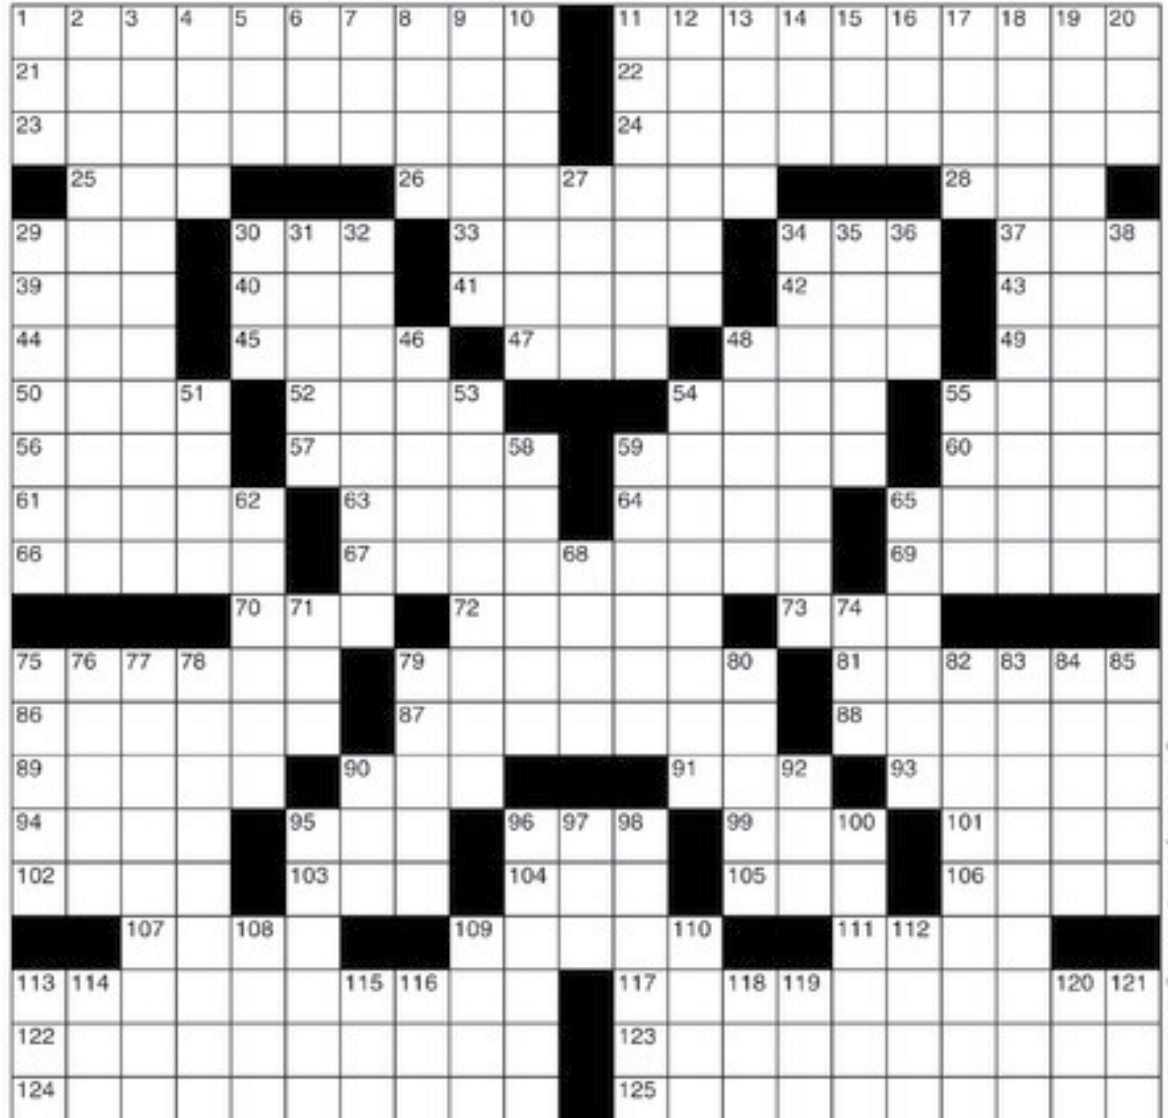

If any fixtures or appliances need to be replaced, look for the WaterSense label. They are guaranteed to use at least 20% less water and to perform as well or better than standard models.

Finally, do the toilet test. Put a few drops of food coloring in your toilet tank and wait 10 minutes. If you see color in the bowl, there's a leak. A simple flapper replacement is probably all you need.

The walk around the Tidal Basin is enjoyable and it leads past the Jefferson Memorial to the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial and finally to the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial. It was my first visit to the King Memorial, and it is a very impressive sculpture. The memorial alone is worth the visit to our nation's capital. I saw a group of young people and asked where they were from. They said they were from Caldwell, Idaho and this was their first visit to Washington. It took me back to the early sixties, when I took the train to Washington with the Linden Grade School, School Boy Patrol. It left an impression on me that continues to this day.

During a trip to Washington, Jim Hunt took in the beauty of cherry blossoms.

After our visit to see the cherry blossoms, we decided to go out for dinner and took the recommendation of the hotel's concierge to dine at Truluck's on K Street, just a block from the hotel. After being seated, a gentleman stopped by our table to light the candle and asked what brought us to town. I told him that we were here for the National League of Cities meeting and that we were from different parts of the country. After the waiter took our order, we sat back and enjoyed one of the most delicious meals we had ever had. The food was delicious, and the service was outstanding. More to the banquet's story

GRAPEVINE
By Rosalyn Queen

This past week, many of you as did I attended the Frank Loria Awards Banquet presented by the Columbian Club. This banquet has been very successful as it calls attention to the county football season honoring both students and coaches and presenting scholarships to the athletes.

As I sat there and enjoyed every moment, my thoughts wandered to the possibility of how many of you knew the other half of the story and if you did not, I feel that it is time to share it with you.

On that day in November, a plane crash took the lives of players and staff of Marshall University. Among those was the late Frank Loria. Living in Huntington was his wife Phyllis Fernandez Loria and his two baby daughters, Julie and Vickie. His wife did not attend that game as she was expecting their third child. That child, a boy was born on Dec. 30 and was named after his father, Frank Loria, Jr. Phyllis moved back to Clarksburg where her parents, Earl and Rose Cava Fernandez could assist her

Frank and Phyllis were both graduates of Notre Dame High School. After completing his education Frank accepted a position on the Marshall Football team as a coach. They were married at St. John's Catholic Church on Water Street in Clarksburg. After

The Bottom Line

By Bill Nestor
Sports Editor

Coach Jim Crutchfield

Jim Crutchfield grew up in Harrison County and was a 1974 graduate of Roosevelt Wilson High School. Crutchfield has always had a love for the game of basketball and he took over the basketball program at West Liberty University in 2004.

The Hilltoppers were coming off a 4-23 record in the year prior and in the 13 seasons prior had a 160-349 record. In the 13 years that Crutchfield was at the helm of the program, West Liberty never had worse than a 21-10 record, which happened to come in his first year at the school on top of the hill. During Crutchfield's tenure, the toppers were 359-61 with seven conference championships. Crutchfield brought an exciting and innovative brand of basketball with him to West Liberty which would attract some of the top players in the country.

Crutchfield also used the newer state-of-the-art sports complex as a major recruiting tool early on in his tenure. The 1,200-seat arena opened during the 2000-2001 season and it is still one of the nicest venues in the Mountain East Conference. West Liberty became a target for players far and near but Crutchfield was very selective, searching for a certain type of player to fit in his program. They had to be talented obviously, but that was just the tip of the iceberg. Intelligence, selflessness, and the work ethic of a workhorse were all required. If all four credentials weren't met by the entire roster, his teams would sink like the Titanic. His team would play baseline to baseline utilizing a full court press that would slap on a trap anytime anywhere. Multiple players would sub in at every opportunity, and playing time was shared among the entire rotation. In other words, if you were a player that was used to scoring tons of points, and playing heavy minutes, you would not fit into this system. However, if your emphasis was on winning at all costs, and you were willing to sacrifice for the betterment of the team then you were Crutchfield's kind of player.

The second season for Crutchfield brought a hard-nosed player to the program. Ben Howlett helped guide the Hilltoppers to four consecutive 20-win seasons. In his senior season, Howlett averaged 23 points and was the nation's fourth leading scorer. After his playing days were over, Howlett began his coaching career as an assistant coach under Crutchfield.

The 2017-2018 season brought major changes with Crutchfield at Nova Southeastern. West Liberty made Howlett the 16th head coach in program history. Howlett had kept the ball rolling and the old saying "it it's not broke, don't fix it" applied in Hilltopper territory. Howlett has followed the blueprint set in place by Crutchfield to accrue a 161-25 record in six seasons.

Crutchfield inherited a Nova Southeastern program that was coming off a 6-20 record the year prior. The only thing hotter than the Fort Lauderdale weather was Crutchfield's emergence in the Sunshine State. In six seasons, his record was 136-21 and duplicating his previous success as West Liberty further proved that it wasn't just the scheme that brought in the wins.

Ironically, these two teams would meet in the Division II championship game. The Sharks were undefeated leading into the lockup while the Hilltoppers hadn't lost since Jan. 21 and were riding an 18-game win streak. It was viewed by hoops fans in the Mountain State as a no-lose contest. If Nova Southeastern won then the West Virginia native was victorious, and if West Liberty claimed the win then the MEC would be king.

The teacher had one more lesson for the pupil — how to earn a National Championship. The Sharks garnered a 111-101 win. Ironically, both teams would set records for points scored, and the play on the hardwood lived up to the pregame hype that fueled the interest of fans around the country.

Maybe the two will meet again someday, and if so, class will be back in season once again.

That will do it for now. Until next week... take care and God Bless!

Harrison County EMS

Athletes of the Week

It's that time once again to acknowledge the efforts of Harrison County's student-athletes. Each week we review the performances of the athletes from the six schools (Bridgeport, Liberty, Lincoln, Notre Dame, Robert C. Byrd, and South Harrison) in our county.

The Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal's Athlete of the Week award is an avenue to promote the youth of our county while bringing attention to their athletic accomplishments.

This week's winners of the Shinnston News and Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week Award are Lincoln's Emalee Brown and Nick Kellar.

Cougar softball player Emalee Brown helped her team to a pair of wins last week. Brown was 3 for 4 with a pair of runs scored and two RBIs in a victory over East Fairmont. Brown went 2 for 4 with two runs scored in a 7-2 win over Philip Barbour.

Cougar baseball player Nick Kellar was perfect at the plate on a couple of occasions. Kellar was 5 for 5 with four runs scored and a pair of RBIs in a victory over East Fairmont. Kellar was 4-4, including a double, with five RBIs and three runs scored in game two of a double-header at Nitro. It was a loss to Nitro after a decisive game one victory. Kellar impressed in the opener going 3 for 4 with a home run. He also drove in three runs and scored three more in the win.

Congratulations to Lincoln's Emalee Brown and Nick Kellar for being named the Shinnston News and Harrison County Journal's Athletes of the Week.

Georgia on my mind

From The World of Parks & Recreation

By Doug Comer

It is a bucket list item for most golfers out there, but to be fortunate to walk the hallowed grounds of Augusta National Golf Club is simply a dream come true. And this past week, my wife and I can say that we walked on the same grass that legends like Nicklaus, Palmer and Woods left eternal footprints on over the years.

To draw comparison to other sports, this is the equivalency of walk-ing into Notre Dame Stadium or Lambeau Field. Watching a game in Cameron Indoor, home of the Duke Blue Devils. Going to Boston and seeing the Red Sox play at Fenway and even watching the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. Golf is important to my life and this is an opportunity to see Augusta with my wife.

Who would ever guess that a chance to see the best players in the world is on quite possibly the most familiar course in golf. Mention Augusta National to anyone in the world and they most likely know that it is the home of the Masters Golf Tournament.

Obviously, we were not there for the Sunday finish as this article is being sent to you on Thursday, which is the first round of play, but seeing the course during a practice round gives a little more advantage. Mainly the ability to bring phones onto property in order to capture brief glimps-es of the property to share to others.

You see, pictures are not allowed by spectators during the event and the feeling of going to the Masters for the tournament is almost like Sun-day church to me. That feeling of being polite to the players and those who help with the event. There is a ton of excitement and roars through-out the course, but it is just a little different compared to what you see at most events.

The game has taken a different approach to bringing more to the game. It is not a bad thing, but today's recreational game would not hold ground in Augusta. There is a ton of Mister and Misses spoken before their name. "Good afternoon Mister Mickelson and play well today." The talk is more polite and is the polar opposite of what you may see at a LIV golf event.

As far as the course is concerned, it is just perfect. The grass is a lit-tle greener and the pine needles are a little straighter than other courses that the PGA players normally see. The course, designed by Dr Alister MacKenzie with advice from Bobby Jones, is almost as perfect as a course can be. That is how I see it in my eyes.

Through time, just like almost anything, the course had to evolve and adjust to today's game. The course is longer to accommodate the long hitters that you see today due to technology with equipment and the workouts that the golfers have for strength. But, besides length, the teeth of the course is the greens and the undulation that make the drive to Ca-naan Valley appear almost flat. It is a test of nerve, skill and experience. Those keys makes you a Masters Champion.

The prestige of winning the event draws many benefits. First, if you win, you get a lifetime exemption to play in the event. Players in their 60s and older have participated in this event as a past champion and no matter the score, they can say they were a part of being there.

You win a green jacket that is yours to own, but can rarely leave property and is one of a very few events that offers something to that ex-tent. And the previous year's winner choses a Champion's Dinner for the current event. This is held on before the event starts and the winner chooses the menu. From sushi to Wagyu filet steaks, it is up to the winner to determine what will be consumed for those lucky enough to garner the green jacket.

I could go on forever with all the history involving the event, but I know that a new tradition has started and that is my wife and I sharing a tradition unlike any other....The Masters.

BUSINESS MATTERS

Business plans another summer of spooky history

Johnna Nester of Shinnston's Folklore and Historical Tours said the events kick off for the spring and summer season May 6. Nester said more dates will be released soon.

By Kara Linaburg

Shinnston's Folklore And Historical Tours kicks off for the spring and summer, Saturday, May 6, at 8 p.m. The two mile walking tour through downtown Shinnston is led by Johnna Nester, who has been researching and gathering new stories to share for the upcoming season.

"We (will) talk about one of the previous jails in Shinnston. I think people will find that interesting," Nester said of the content for the tours. She said that there will also be stories about the Shinnston tornado, the Confederates in Shinnston during the Civil War, among other stories that fall under both the historical and spooky umbrella. "It was my goal this winter to find content that is kiddo friendly," she said. "We definitely have tours that are family friendly."

According to Nester, the tours are "wonderful" for all ages, and even though the tours are around two miles long, they are focused along the Main Street of Shinnston, making for easy walking.

Nester is also interested this year in being hired to do walking tours for groups of youth such as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. "I would love to do group events for them," Nester said. "I'm open to large groups."

To contact Nester about a group event or to reserve your spot for the May 6 tour, message Nester on her Facebook page, Shinnston's Folklore And Historical Tours. Tours are $10 for adults and $5 for children. Another tour is also being scheduled for June.

Central West Virginia McDonald's to hire more than 200 people

Local McDonald's restaurants in Central West Virginia are looking to hire 200+ new employees immediately as restaurants gear up for summertime, according to a news release.

At McDonald's restaurants, you can receive on-the-job training, schedule flexibility, a fun work environment and a host of benefits available to suit the needs of any candidate. New this year, local McDonald's restaurants are announcing a perk that allows restaurant employees to access discounted McDonald's food at any participating McDonald's in the country, anytime.

Additionally, eligible restaurant employees can also earn a high school diploma, take ESL classes, get tuition assistance and receive free guidance from advisors through Archways to Opportunity, McDonald's signature education and career advising program.

Whether a candidate is looking for a summer job, a side gig or a career, McDonald's restaurant jobs have provided the foundation to help drive long-term success for generations.

"As small business owners, we take a lot of pride in being a part of the communities we serve, and we are grateful to be able to offer our employees benefits like tuition assistance, career opportunities and competitive pay," said John Ebert, McDonald's Owner/Operator. "We also know how important it is for employees to like where they work, and we can't wait to welcome more employees into our teams this spring."

Job seekers can visit jobs.mchire.com to learn more and apply to a restaurant near them, or text 'apply' to 38000 to start an application via text.

Mother's Day tea party planned

By Erin Beck

Imagination Station is preparing for a Mother's Day tea party and candle making event, said Tara Leverton, co-owner.

"It doesn't have to just be your mother," she said.

Leverton noted that the participants could bring maternal figures in their lives, or their mothers or daughters. Young girls who have their own imitation tea parties may also be excited by the event.

"You and your mom could have some time together, or your best friend that's a mom, if you want to bring her," Leverton said. "Your grandma, your aunts. If a husband wants to surprise their wife, the mother of the children and bring her to the event, I think it would be really nice."

The event will be Saturday, May 13, at 2 p.m. at 415 Pike St. Mother's Day is the next day.

Participants will choose from an array of teas. Imagination Station, which includes room for vendors and offers events as well, will provide refreshments, including macaroons and muffins.

Participants will choose a scent and pour wax, a soy and coconut mix, to make their own candles, then top their candles with flower and butterfly decorative molds.

There are 11 spots. Attendees may secure their spots by calling 304-203-3455 during store hours to reach Emma Johnson, co-owner, or message through Facebook Messenger, and Leverton will send an invoice through text message.

Imagination Station is also planning additional painting classes, which will likely give participants the opportunity to paint summer scenes, Leverton said.

Vehicle inspections bring more business

By Erin Beck

Road Warriors Auto Repair is seeing an increase in customers since beginning to offer automobile inspections this month, said co-owner Ashley Dytzel.

"Ever since he got the state inspections, you can only have so many a day, which I'm learning all this, but he has met his quota almost halfway through the day," she said. "That's just how busy he's been getting down there, so it's been exciting."

Road Warriors, located at 201 Pike St., is managed and run by Paul and Tina Owens. A new business, its ribbon cutting was Feb. 13. It's been successful, so it is in search of a new employee.

Road Warriors also offers a variety of services for vehicle needs, including oil changes, suspension repairs and diagnostics.

Crime prevention funding could have ecomic impact

By Erin Beck

Amy Haberbosch-Wilson, executive director of the Harrison Economic Development Corp., says that the about $1 million the city is set to receive from the federal government may have an economic growth impact.

The federal government funding is for cameras for crime recognition, including school safety and monitoring traffic. Councilmembers unanimously voted on March 8 to accept it, and Shinnston City Manager Chad Edwards said more details would be coming. A fact sheet said becoming a "Smart City" could entail city-wide video management to inform public safety efforts, monitor traffic, and use license plate recognition and facial recognition, as well as Smart School technology including computerized door locks with alarms, automatic notification and lock down systems in all schools, back-up power for school phones and other areas of safety discovered as the three-year project continues.

Haberbosch-Wilson said Shinnston would be a pilot city. She said once camera have been put up through the city, which are already up in Bridgeport, Clarksburg and Elkins, officials can track who's coming in and leaving, how long they're staying. Companies seeking to locate in the area, that officials are pitching to, may seek that information, she said.

Reviews on Facebook about the Gillum Bed And Breakfast, Business of the Month, often mention the beautiful, comfortable, bedrooms. “Kathleen always makes your stay a superb experience,” said one review on Facebook. “We hope to make it back soon.”

here, from Germany, England, North Wales, Korea, Spain, Singapore, Mexico, and Canada of course, and all over the United States. I had a couple from France of April of last year, and (in) May I had a family from England.”

The bed and breakfast offers elopement packages as well. Panek said that she has had couples come to elope at her bed and breakfast, where the package includes a night in the Gillum House, the minister, pictures, a small two-tier wedding cake, and more.

“Last August, I had a couple come back for their five year wedding anniversary because they eloped and were married here,” she said. “And when he booked the reservation online, he put in the comments, ‘I hope you still have the venison sausage available.’”

Guests get to choose their breakfast meat and time to eat, and Panek said that in the past when she’d allowed, some guests had chosen as early as 4 a.m.

Panek does what she can to make guests feel at home. She said that when she had a visitor from Canada who liked to leave at 3 a.m., she made sure to send her on the road with a to-go breakfast so she wouldn’t leave hungry.

Panek also loves that she is able to serve locally and West Virginia-sourced breakfasts. “I am able to serve fruit from my own yard during the summer. I have blackberry bushes and I have some blackberries in the freezer to get me through for the time when the season is done. I get my eggs locally. I buy a pig from the butcher from over in Flemington, so I know where the meat came from. My venison comes from Ritchie County, so I used locally sourced foods, and I really enjoy what I do.”

“Just all the personal stuff and the good cooking make it a wonderful place to visit,” Sandy Starek, once a frequent visitor to the bed and breakfast, said. She had only good things to say about Panek as a host, and said she couldn’t recommend Gillum’s house enough.

Aside from the time Panek spends working at her bed and breakfast, she said that she enjoys being involved in her community as much as possible. She is part of various clubs, director over the Lord’s Pantry, and serves as city clerk.

“I get to live in Shinnston,” she said. “It’s a wonderful place to live.”

time competing at Poetry Out Loud; it was my first time on a stage solo. And it was definitely nerve-racking.”

Riley said that after the competition, she listened back to hear how she’d done. She could hear her voice shaking for the first poem, but by the second one, she felt that there was more confidence in her tone.

Even though Riley didn’t place in the top ten, her teacher, Maria Osbourn said Riley had represented Lincoln well. “I am extremely proud of Myah. She did an excellent job with her poems and competed against over 50 other high school students throughout the state.”

Riley said that to prepare for the competition, she listened to other people recite the poems she’d chosen, watched herself recite them in the mirror, and credits the help of her teachers and fellow students. “A couple days before we left for Charleston, I recited in front of different classes throughout my school and asked for teacher feedback, student feedback, and that honestly really helped.”

Poetry is something Riley enjoys outside of school, and she said that she loves writing her own poems about sports, space and nature, and high school drama. “I am a huge poetry fan. I’ve been writing poems since fifth grade (and) I’ve been reading them even longer. I like that poetry allows people to write about feelings and emotions when you can’t find just the right way to describe it.”

“Her love of poetry was evident in her recitations,” said Osbourn of Riley’s love of the art. “And I think that’s why she enjoyed the weekend so much.”

According to a press release from the West Virginia Department Of Arts, Culture And History, there were more than 4,800 students who participated in Poetry Out Loud this year, and Riley said that she learned a lot during the competition.

“I learned to kinda just be confident, in not only myself but if it’s something I believe, to say it with confidence. And, that the world isn’t such a harsh place, because even if there are already people doing it, if you can do it, just work at it and one day you could be doing it the best and completely innovate the ways things are done.”

the accident Phyllis relocated to Southern Virginia where her daughters continued their education and Frank, Jr. went on to attend and graduate from West Point .

Phyllis is married to Rich Ricelli and they live in Virginia, both being retired. Both girls live close by and Phyllis and Rich enjoy their grandchildren. Frank resides in New Jersey.

Frank was invited to present remarks at the banquet and he chose the theme “Legacy.”

Phyllis has kept the connection to Clarksburg so that her children can interact with their many relatives in this area. The children will tell you that no matter how many times they see it the sign at the Clarksburg City limits that says “Home of Frank Loria” always touches a warm spot inside of them.

Now you know the other half of the story and the effort on behalf of their mother, Phyllis, to keep the children connected to their Loria family. Job well done. Phyllis.

Stay healthy and happy and have a faithful Easter. Until next week “Now You Have Heard It Through The Grapevine.”

Women’s Giving Circle to Host Annual Spring Bash Featuring Princess Sarah Culberson

Princess Sarah Culberson, who was adopted by a West Virginia family, later learned that her biological father lived in Sierra Leone, West Africa and she held the status of princess, according to her website.

Morgantown, WV – The Women’s Giving Circle of North Central West Virginia (WGC), a component fund of Your Community Foundation of North Central West Virginia, Inc. (YCF), is hosting its annual Spring Bash on Monday, May 1, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Morgantown Marriott at Waterfront Place.

The event is open to all women within the community who would like to learn about the WGC and how to get involved in a community of thoughtful, effective women philanthropists. Special guest, Princess Sarah Culberson, will be the featured speaker.

A Morgantown native, Princess Sarah is an internationally known thought leader, an honored recipient of the prestigious Trumpet Impact Award, and real-life Princess! Her story, “A Princess Found,” has been shared globally and is currently being adapted into a major motion picture for Disney Studios by award-winning filmmaker Stephanie Allain.

Admission is $40 per person and includes heavy hors d’oeuvres and drinks. Cash or check will be accepted at the door.

“We are so privileged to have distinguished speaker Princess Sarah attend our event to speak about the importance of philanthropy and how women can impact their society on a grassroots level,” said WGC Chairwoman Bessie Fooks.

The WGC is dedicated to engaging women of all generations in the power of community philanthropy. The mission is to build a community of thoughtful, effective women philanthropists and create a legacy to address the needs of women and girls in North Central West Virginia.

Each year, the WGC awards grants to organizations serving women and girls in the region. Since its inception in 2014, the WGC has awarded over $125,000 to local nonprofits.

For more information about the WGC, visit its website at www.womensgivingcircleofncwv.org.

To learn more about YCF, visit its website at: <http://www.ycfwv.org>, or call (304) 296-3433.

Fairmont State representatives attend climate change forum

On Wednesday, March 8, Fairmont State University Professor of Chemistry Dr. Erica Harvey and Mechanical Engineering student Eliza Keener participated in a forum hosted by the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy at the White House in Washington D.C., according to a news release. The forum focused on solutions for campus and community climate change.

“It was an eye-opening, humbling and tremendously energizing event,” said Harvey. “We got to meet and learn from knowledgeable, engaged attendees at universities that are nearly net-zero carbon emissions already or planning to be there by 2030, and see the multitude of community-specific paths being taken towards sustainability and resilience in the face of climate change.”

In addition to Keener and Dr. Harvey, the forum included U.S. Government officials and climate, sustainability, and resilience leaders and educators from colleges and universities nationwide. The series of keynote speakers and panel discussions explored innovative ideas and actions that can advance climate change efforts on college campuses while benefitting the surrounding communities and beyond.

“We connected with people across the country who are implementing rapidly developing technologies such as geothermal and green hydrogen, as well as large solar installations and other renewable technologies,” said Harvey. “It was incredible to see the big picture potential of sharing this kind of learning across the nation, to help accelerate the adoption and local adaptation of effective practices. I appreciated the focus on partnering with front-line communities, such as the coal-impacted communities of West Virginia, to ensure that the sustainability and resilience investments from the infrastructure bill and the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) will benefit everyone.”

During the forum, Dr. Harvey shared a 90-second “lighting talk” focusing on work done by six Fairmont State students in her Honors 3350 course, Abby Adkins, Jacob Bonner, Trace Freed, Trey Jones, Eliza Keener and Dylan Kolb. The “lighting talk” highlighted a semester research project done by the students, which focuses on expanding the use of solar energy on campus and how that would benefit Fairmont State University.

“Getting the opportunity to attend this conference with Dr. Harvey was incredible. There were so many amazing people there to share their insight and ideas on not only campus sustainability, but the world’s sustainability,” said Keener. “Going into this knowing very little, we were greatly surprised by what other campuses are doing. There are several campuses that are fully geothermal or solar. They are taking the initiative to make their campus and the environment a better place. I think that this is very important, and we should start putting in the same effort that others are putting forth.”

Keener served as a moderator and recorder for the breakout sessions during the forum. She was the only first-year undergraduate student at the event.

“It was an amazing experience that I’ll always carry with me. I met so many wonderful people that I made connections with and networked with,” said Keener.

Grandchildren of country music icons coming to Clarksburg

The Robinson Grand Performing Arts Center is excited to welcome Twitty & Lynn to downtown Clarksburg on Thursday, May 25 at the historic Robinson Grand Performing Arts Center located at 444 W. Pike St. in Clarksburg, according to a news release.

Tayla Lynn and Tre Twitty have country music in their blood. The grandchildren of famed duo Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty have taken to the road to honor their grandparents in an intimate evening of music and story that only they can tell. “Twitty and Lynn: A Salute to Conway and Loretta” is one of the most unique shows in all of country music.

“Tayla and Tre have great stories about their own incredible, personal journeys through life,” said Jason A Young, the Robinson Grand’s program manager. “When you combine that with the unique and exceptional way they perform the music of their grandparents, well, you have a great show on your hands.”

Through their memories of Memaw and Poppy, as they call their grandparents, the show takes on the quality of a family get together, and it often feels more like the audience is on the front porch with guitars and old family hymns than it does a concert. It is a fascinating opportunity to see two of country music’s greatest legends through their grandchildren’s eyes. The high-energy, heartfelt show highlights not only the bond Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty had as best friends and musical partners, but the unique bond Tayla and Tre have formed through years of an intertwined family history and their own musical relationship.

“May is very busy with dance recitals and graduation events,” said Young. “This means that live entertainment options can be a bit sparse, but if you can only see one show, this is the one.”

Tickets start at only $21 and go on sale on Friday, March 31 at 10 a.m. All tickets can be purchased online at tickets.therobinsongrand.com or by calling the Robinson Grand ticketing center at 855-773-6283.

Contractors Association rewards students

CHARLESTON, WV — The Contractors Association of West Virginia (CAWV) Scholarship Foundation distributed $27,500 this year to West Virginia college students pursuing an education and career in construction or engineering, according to a news release. The selection committee chose the recipients based on their academic performance, extracurricular activities, work experience, financial need and an interest in a construction industry career. Eligible schools include West Virginia University, West Virginia University Institute of Technology, Marshall University, Fairmont State University and Bluefield State University.

Trey Blain, a civil engineering student from West Virginia University (WVU), is this year’s top scholarship recipient and was awarded $7,500. Blain, a native of Wetzel County, is currently a junior and is a member of the WVU ASCE Student Chapter. He has interned with Litman Excavating, LLC, and most recently, Flatiron Construction Mid-Atlantic Division, assisting with the Wellsburg Bridge project.

“The internships I have experienced greatly increased my love for construction and validated that civil engineering is the right path for me,” Blain said. “I am thrilled to say I will be interning with Triton Construction this summer.”

“I would like to thank my parents for supporting me and pushing me to be successful in my academics and my work experiences,” he said. “I am beyond grateful for this opportunity and look forward to working in West Virginia’s construction industry.”

Blain expressed his thanks to the CAWV Scholarship Foundation, his professors and industry mentors during the CAWV’s State Meeting, held March 22 during the West Virginia Construction and Design EXPO in Charleston.

In addition to Blain, the Foundation presented eight other scholarships totaling $20,000. Students receiving scholarship awards were Chase Belcher, Bluefield State University; Alissa Butcher, Fairmont State University; Zachary Bowling, WVU Tech; Avery Costilow, West Virginia University; Malia Richardson, West Virginia University; Hunter Friel, Fairmont State University; Travis Mount, Marshall University; and Kristi Daetwyler, Fairmont State University.

“Once again, the CAWV Scholarship Foundation had a great group of applicants this year,” said Scholarship Foundation Chairman and CAWV Past President Gene Thompson. “All of the students we interviewed have impressive transcripts and leadership skills, with some already having work experience within the industry. They have committed themselves to educational excellence and each one of them will bring a unique benefit to West Virginia’s construction industry in the years to come.”

The CAWV, the state’s largest full-service construction association, represents over 475 firms in the building, highway and utility construction industry throughout West Virginia.

Folklife Center announces two final events for the spring 2023 season

The Frank and Jane Gabor West Virginia Folklife Center has two remaining events scheduled for their spring season: a storytelling concert on April 14 and a flatfoot dance lecture and lesson on April 16.

The West Virginia Storytelling Guild presents their spring concert at the Folklife Center on Friday, April 14 at 7 p.m. It is titled “Tadpole Tales: We are Hatchin’ and Hoppin’.”

“The West Virginia Storytelling Guild members are looking forward to welcoming story listeners to our concert, ‘Tadpole Tales: We’re Hatchin’ and Hoppin’,” said Guild president Judi Tarowsky. “It will be an evening of light-hearted tales just right for all ages to enjoy.”

The event is free for all students with a student ID and there is a $10 suggested donation for community members. All donations benefit the Folklife Center and contribute to programming, preservation, and education.

The featured storytellers for this concert are Mike Perry (Pittsburgh, PA), Linda Durrett (Bellington, WV), Katie Ross (Ridgeley, WV), Jo Ann Dadisman (Independence, WV) and Judi Tarowsky (Weirton, WV).

On Sunday, April 16 at 2 p.m. the Folklife Center will host award-winning flatfoot dancer Lou Maiuri. Mairuri will provide a demonstration and flatfoot lesson along with the Kennedy Barn String Band. The event is free and open to all.

Mairuri, born in 1928, is an award-winning clogger, flatfooter, and square dance caller known around the world. He was presented with the Vandalia Award in 2008 for this contribution to West Virginia’s folk heritage and he has been featured on numerous national media outlets.

The Kennedy Barn String Band plays old-time music and has been jamming together for more than a decade. They were awarded the Traditions Salute Award from the Folklife Center in 2018. This event will feature music performances, a lecture about flatfooting, and a lesson for all ages and levels.

The Folklife Center is located on Squibb Wilson Boulevard in Fairmont. Reservations are not required. For more information, please call the Folklife Center at 304-367-4286. In addition to hosting events, the Folklife Center is open to visitors from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Jared Box donation brings smiles to UHC pediatric patients

Bridgeport, WV—The Thrasher Group, Inc., continues a tradition of giving back to the community by participating in The Jared Box Project with a donation to United Hospital Center (UHC). The mission of the Jared Box Project is to entertain and put a smile on the faces of children.

Each box contains small gifts, toys, games, crayons, coloring books, and fun activities selected for a specific age and gender made by individuals or groups. The Thrasher Group, Inc., delivered more than 40 of these plastic, shoe-sized storage boxes to UHC, according to a news release.

“The Jared Box Project is such a great way to lift the spirits of children,” said Andrea Crayton, office manager at UPC Pediatric Associates. “We want to thank The Thrasher Group, Inc., for their commitment to collect, organize, and deliver these gifts. This is truly extraordinary and UHC greatly appreciates their willingness to always help others.”

The Jared Box Project, a nonprofit organization, started in 2001 to honor its namesake, Jared McMullen. This brave 5-year-old boy fought brain cancer and carried a backpack filled with toys to all his appointments. He gladly shared his toys with other children.

“We are inspired by how our region is so philanthropic,” said Tiffany Brinkley, RN, clinical supervisor of Pediatrics. “For a young child, a stay in the hospital or visit to the doctor can be a traumatic experience, these boxes help to calm that fear.”

Although Jared’s battle ended in 2000, his inspiration lives on through the kindness and generosity of others as they make Jared Boxes in his honor. What was intended as a one-time project has grown into a nonprofit that reaches into the hearts of children with a plastic shoe box filled with well wishes, hope, and love.

West Virginia 4-H offers Camp Jump Start, a new weekend camp for youths

By WVU Today

MORGANTOWN, WV — West Virginia University Extension’s West Virginia 4-H youth development program invites youths from across the state to Camp Jump Start, a pilot camping program that will focus on outdoor recreation, history and STEM.

This weekend camp will be held July 7-9 at WVU Jackson’s Mill. Camp Jump Start is open to West Virginia youths ages 10 to 11. This camp offers youths a head start on the statewide camp experience, since otherwise, youths can’t attend state camp until they are 12 years old. Campers do not have to be members of 4-H to participate, but previous overnight camp experience is required.

“Camp Jump Start is a wonderful opportunity to have a state camp experience at Jackson’s Mill in a setting specifically created for 10- and 11-year-olds,” said Margaret Miltenberger, WVU Extension 4-H agent in Mineral County. “They will make new friends from around West Virginia and gain confidence in themselves that will help spread their wings in the future.”

Camp programming will focus on team building, responsibility, personal skill building and friendship. The first day will focus on outdoor recreation. On the second day, campers will learn about the historic area of Jackson’s Mill, including hands-on activities at the gristmill. Finally, the third day will focus on STEM learning. Each evening will conclude with recreation and a campfire.

“Jackson’s Mill is a special place for West Virginia 4-H’ers,” said Jocelyn Crawford, WVU Extension 4-H agent in Kanawha County. “We are excited that we’ll be able to welcome campers for their first state 4-H camping event.”

Campers will participate in outdoor recreation, adventure and activities such as kayaking, climbing, shooting sports, swimming, tie dye, hands-on STEM experiments, arts and crafts, a historic tour of Jackson’s Mill and more.

“Camp Jump Start is all the things you think of when you think of summer camp,” said Jason Burnside, WVU Extension 4-H camping specialist. “If kids know they are interested in these activities, they get the chance to come to a statewide camp early and see what that experience is like.”

The registration cost is $125, registration opens on April 3, and closes by June 22. To register a camper, visit <https://extension.wvu.edu/youth-family/4h/camps/camp-jump-start>.
