(Past) Citizen of the Month

The Military Career of US Senator Nathan Goff of Harrison County

By Stephen Smoot

One of the most difficult challenges in creating a regular "Citizen of the Month" feature comes in finding subjects to cover. Shinnston and Harrison County certainly have more than enough who contribute mightily to all that make the city and county shine. That said, almost everyone who has shown themselves worthy of such an honor declines it.

It just so happens that the qualities of those who

The London Eye

By Jim Hunt for the News and Journal

the London Eye was her number one destination. When we landed in London on Sunday, we made our way to see the enormous wheel. Emery's eyes widened as she gazed up into the sky, realizing that we had tickets to ride the Eye on Tuesday at 1:00 PM.

One of the most visited sites in London is something that has only existed since 2020: The London Eye. Situated on the South Bank of the Thames River, it towers over the historic city, claiming the title of the tallest cantilevered observation wheel in Europe.

During our recent trip to London with our granddaughter, Emery,

One reason the London Eye is such a popular venue is its spectacular view of Big Ben, Parliament, and Westminster Abbey. On Tuesday, as we arrived early for our scheduled ride, we located the entrance to the queue. Tickets for the ride cost 30 Pound Sterling, roughly equivalent to $37 US Dollars each. Upon entering the line, we slowly ascended the

LHS Seek Help to Bring More Beauty to Downtown Shinnston

By Stephen Smoot

Recently, the City of Shinnston and partner organizations have worked to develop ways to increase the appeal of downtown. From lighting to more music and art, plans completed and plans made both have an eye to making Shinnston even more of a jewel in the crown of Harrison County.

Lincoln High School business students, starting with the EPIC grant earned last fall, have worked hard to do their part to make Shinnston shine. They started with the rail trail, placing news signs and holding fun and family friendly events.

Now these Cougars have their claws out to do more than just scratch the surface of civil improvements.

Julie Yearego, Lincoln High School business teacher and advisor to the student committee working with the grant, shared that they "have been organizing events along the rail-trail all school

The Board of Education Has Made Its Decision

With the school year nearing its end, the Harrison County Board of Education tackled a major issue this past week. The hottest topic of the year has been the potential consolidation of Liberty High School and Robert C. Byrd High School. When this potential consolidation was first discussed, it brought an overwhelming amount of emotion from the community. The Board of Education is comprised of members Doug Hogue, Frank K. Devono, Tom Tucker, Mary Francis Smith, and President Gary Hamrick. This is an excellent group of individuals that have the best interest of our children as their top priority. As they pondered their decision on how to vote on this matter, there were so many factors that they had to consider. Their vote would powerfully affect the students and teachers from Liberty and Robert C. Byrd, Mountaineer Middle School, Washington Irving Middle School, North View Elementary School, and Salem

Elementary School.

Over the last several months, I've talked to several people in the county about this topic. Obviously everyone has an opinion on what to do. What was surprising, however, was how quickly many came to their conclusion. The depth of this decision

Athletes of the Week

It's that time once again to acknowledge the efforts of Harrison County's student-athletes. Each week we review the performances of the athletes from the six schools (Bridgeport, Liberty, Lincoln, Notre Dame, Robert C. Byrd, and South Harrison) in our county.

The Shinnston News & Harrison County Journal's Athlete of the Week award is an avenue to promote the youth of our county while bringing attention to their athletic accomplishments.

Harrison County Athlete Spotlight

By Bill Nestor

The Harrison County athletes in the spotlight this week are Lincoln's Alexis Williams and Angelina Wright. The Cougar softball team has earned its fair share of big wins this season and Williams and Wright have been major contributors in these victories.

The "W and W" Express has taken turns clearing the bases with big blasts that have led to wins over Big 10 foes. Last week, Williams hit a grand slam to push Lincoln past Bridgeport 15 to three. Prior to that, Wright blasted a grand slam in an 18 to one triumph over Liberty.

Congratulations to Lincoln's Alexis Williams and Angelina Wright for shining bright in the SN and HCJ spotlight!

ramp to the platform where we boarded the large glass pods, each accommodating about sixteen passengers. The ride, lasting thirty minutes, does not pause to load or disembark passengers. This feat is achieved with the assistance of several young attendants who help passengers onto the pods as they slowly move along the platform.

As we settled into our seats in the glass pod, I noticed Emery was somewhat apprehensive about ascending into the London sky. However, she soon grew comfortable and began exploring, marveling at the gradual ascent. Upon reaching the apex of the Eye, we were met with breathtaking views in every direction. The Tower Bridge and the Tower of London were prominently visible, alongside other iconic landmarks throughout the city. At its highest point, the London Eye reaches 433 feet, and everyone in the pod eagerly captured photos and selfies of the bird’s-eye view. As we approached the platform, we prepared to disembark swiftly, making way for new passengers. Though the ride lasted only thirty minutes, it was one of the most exhilarating experiences of our trip to London.

Observation wheels, like the London Eye, are cropping up in many major cities worldwide. The largest wheel in the world is the Dubai Eye in Dubai, UAE, followed by the High Roller Observation Wheel in Las Vegas, Nevada. Like skyscrapers, the race to claim the title of the largest continues, with designers already conceptualizing even larger wheels, complete with bars and restaurants. Asia, in particular, boasts ten of the fifteen largest observation wheels. Since the majority of these attractions are owned and operated by private companies, they must continually attract paying customers to remain viable.

Though not as steeped in history as Big Ben, the London Eye remains a cherished memory of our trip to London, immortalized in the many spectacular photos we captured during our ride.

Landowners may be eligible for disaster assistance

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -- West Virginia landowners in 26 counties affected by severe storms this month may be eligible to seek disaster assistance through their local conservation districts.

West Virginia Governor Jim Justice declared a State of Emergency for 26 counties affected by severe storms that began April 2 and caused flooding, downed trees, power outages, road blockages and in some cases, tornadoes. The counties included are: Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Calhoun, Doddridge, Gilmer, Harrison, Kanawha, Logan, Mingo, Nicholas, Pleasants, Roane, Tyler, Wayne, Wetzels, Wirt and Wood counties.

Landowners in these counties may be eligible for Emergency Watershed Protection (EWP) Program assistance. The EWP Program offers technical and financial assistance to local and state government agencies. Staff within these local conservation districts help landowners recover from natural disasters that pose an imminent threat to life, property, or both.

The USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) administers the EWP Program. All projects must have an eligible project sponsor. NRCS provides up to 75 percent of the eligible construction cost and the West Virginia Conservation Agency (WVCA) contributes the remaining 25 percent.

Conservation districts and the WVCA, which provides financial, technical, and administrative assistance, are local sponsors. Affected residents should contact their local conservation district to report losses and learn more about program options available to assist in their recovery from the storm.

Examples of common EWP projects are repairing and stabilizing damaged streambanks or channels and removing debris that is restricting stream flow, or blocking bridges or culverts that threaten infrastructure (roads, homes, structures, etc.)

Each county affected is within a specific conservation district. Residents should contact the specific conservation district where the damage from the storm has occurred. Calls will be accepted until May 10. Ask to speak to the conservation district's administrative specialist.

Barbour County is in the Tygarts Valley Conservation District, which can be reached at: (304) 457-3026.

Doddridge, Gilmer and Harrison counties are within the West Fork Conservation District, which can be reached at: (304) 627-2160.

In addition to Emergency Watershed Protection that assists with recovery and future damage prevention for structures, USDA may have other programs available to assist with recovery on agricultural lands, such as damage to crops or eroding streambanks that threaten farmland or forestland. Contact your local conservation district to learn more.

Barbour County is in the Tygarts Valley Conservation District, which can be reached at: (304) 457-3026.

Doddridge, Gilmer and Harrison counties are within the West Fork Conservation District, which can be reached at: (304) 627-2160.

WVU Medicine to invest nearly $400 million in healthcare infrastructure

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. – The West Virginia University Health System Board of Directors approved on Wednesday (April 17) a nearly $400 million strategic capital budget that will accelerate the Health System’s growth and infuse West Virginia with several new healthcare facilities positioned across multiple parts of the state, including Morgantown, Fairmont, the Elkins corridor, Princeton, and Bluefield. The projects are all subject to regulatory approvals. “Separately, these are all transformative projects; collectively, they represent a giant leap as we continue to build a best-in-class Health System for the people of West Virginia and the broader region,” Albert L. Wright, Jr., president and CEO of the WVU Health System, said. “Our true north remains our commitment to our patients and our ability to serve them in a caring and healing environment, and by expanding the breadth and depth of our programs and infrastructure, we ensure the Health System is well-positioned long-term to meet the needs of our patients.” Preliminary details of the projects follow:

Morgantown – $233,500,000 for a new, multi-center outpatient facility with surgical suites for the WVU Eye Institute. The new structure will be on the site of the former Fieldcrest Hall at the intersection of Van Voorhis Road and Elmer Prince Drive. The project also includes a multi-level parking garage with over 1,100 spaces. Fairmont – $44,000,000 to build and renovate new operating rooms at WVU Medicine Fairmont Medical Center, as well as a new pharmacy, cafeteria, dialysis unit, infusion center, and other facility upgrades. Elkins corridor – $37,300,000 to build a 38,000-square-foot, multi-specialty ambulatory facility linked to WVU Medicine United Hospital Center. A “hospital without beds,” the facility is expected to offer walk-in family medicine and urgent care; cardiology; orthopaedics; oncology and infusion services; ear, nose, and throat; urology; infectious diseases; pain management; pulmonology; rheumatology; and lab and imaging (mobile CT and MRI), among other services. Princeton and Bluefield – $64,500,000 to build a comprehensive cancer center on the campus of WVU Medicine Princeton Community Hospital and invest in Bluefield by relocating the full-service emergency department and imaging and lab services to the Bluefield Pavilion site campus and adding 10 observation beds, MRI, and ultrasound. The announcement comes two weeks after the WVU Health System announced that it is in the early stages of updating its master campus plan in Morgantown with the goal of building a multi-story cancer hospital as part of the J.W. Ruby Medical Complex. The Hazel Ruby McQuain Charitable Trust made a $50 million gift as a catalyst for that project, which is also subject to certain board and regulatory approvals. The Health System has many other new construction and expansion projects underway in the state, including those in Charleston, Ripley, Morgantown, Martinsburg, Glen Dale, and Ranson, among others. In 2022, the Health System announced that it was investing $177 million in its infrastructure.

WVU to implant Aurora extravascular implantable cardioverter defibrillator

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. – The WVU Heart and Vascular Institute is the first medical facility in West Virginia to implant the Medtronic Aurora™ Extravascular Implantable Cardioverter Defibrillator (EV-ICD). The device offers a new option for patients at risk for sudden cardiac arrest or irregular heart rhythms. “The heart is an electrically driven pump that moves blood around the body through veins and arteries,” David Schwartzman, M.D., WVU Heart and Vascular Institute Cardiac Electrophysiology section chief and WVU School of Medicine professor of Medicine, said. “That electrical system can malfunction, which can cause to heart to beat too fast or slow. Either of these can be life threatening.” Patients at significant risk for dangerous electrical system malfunction may be recommended for an ICD. These systems monitor the heart rhythm and intervene to prevent or terminate electrical malfunction. Traditional ICDs use thin lead wires placed inside the heart to monitor electrical activity and deliver shocks if a dangerous arrhythmia is detected. The Aurora EV-ICD device lead is placed underneath the breastbone, outside of the blood vessels and heart. This reduces the potential for complications related to having leads within the blood vessels and heart, including infection and dislodgement. “We are pleased to be able to offer this life-saving technology to our patients,” Dr. Schwartzman said. “This is an important addition to our state-of-the-art toolkit for treating heart rhythm disorders. Certain patients will benefit from the EV-ICD option.” For more information about this and other heart disease treatments, call 855-WVU-CARE or visit WVUMedicine.org/Heart.

WVU Medicine Children’s offers dose of gene therapy for Duchenne muscular dystrophy

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. – WVU Medicine Children’s continues to make bold strides in pediatric healthcare having administered the first dose of ELEVIDYS in West Virginia. Alexander Shell, ELEVIDYS is the first approved gene therapy for Duchenne muscular dystrophy (DMD), one of the most severe forms of inherited muscular dystrophies. The therapy provides a potentially life-altering treatment for children with the disease. The patient, six-year-old Alexander Shell, is among the first group of patients across the country to receive the gene therapy since its accelerated approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in June. “This is truly breakthrough medicine, providing hope for Alexander and his family as well as all West Virginia families battling DMD,” Sara McGuire, M.D., pediatric neurologist at the WVU Medicine Children’s Neuroscience Center, said. “We have an amazing team here at WVU Medicine Children’s who have worked extremely hard to get this therapy approved. We are so pleased with the results.” Alexander is also autistic and mostly non-verbal. His mom describes him as a happy child who loves tools, cars, and building things. For his family, this could be life changing. “For us, it means he may actually be able to have some semblance of a normal childhood – not having to worry about him making a drastic change from walking to a wheelchair during the formative years of growing,” Eden Antonia Shell, Alexander’s mother, said. “For me, that means everything. He’s my only child. I want the best for him.” Duchenne muscular dystrophy is an inherited, progressive, and fatal neuromuscular condition that impacts mostly male patients. Over time, children with DMD develop problems with walking, breathing, and heart function. Early studies of ELEVIDYS hope to improve outcomes by slowing the progression of the disease and improving motor functions. Long-term studies to show how beneficial this treatment will be for these patients over time are still pending. “While studies are ongoing, the hope is this medication will slow disease progression and improve outcomes, which could include extending life for these patients, whose average life expectancy is usually in their 20s or 30s,” Dr. McGuire said. “The full impact of the medication will not be known for many years but will allow the patients of West Virginia to have the option to explore these treatments for rare conditions.” To learn more about treatment for Duchenne muscular dystrophy and the WVU Medicine Children’s Neuroscience Center, visit WVUKids.com.

WVU Medicine to relocate, expand WVU Eye Institute

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. – The WVU Eye Institute, the most comprehensive ophthalmology group in the state, will expand its clinical, educational, and research efforts when it moves into its new location at the intersection of Van Voorhis Road and Elmer Prince Drive in Morgantown. The WVU Health System Board of Directors approved $233.5 million in funding to construct the new multi-center outpatient facility on Wednesday (April 17). It will also include a multi-level parking garage with more than 1,100 spaces. The project is subject to regulatory approval. An artist’s rendering of the new WVU Eye Institute “We are excited to partner with the Eye Institute to build a world-class facility that can accelerate and expand its mission of providing the most advanced and specialized eye care to the people of West Virginia,” Michael Grace, Ed.D., M.B.A., F.A.C.H.E., president of WVU Hospitals and chief administrative officer of the WVU Health System, said. “A new structure for the Eye Institute also gives us additional room as we start to plan for the construction of a new cancer hospital that would be part of the J.W. Ruby Memorial Hospital medical complex.” The construction of the more than 150,000-square-foot facility will allow the WVU Eye Institute to better meet the needs of its patients, as it will result in a substantial increase in exam and testing rooms. The current WVU Eye Institute has 60 exam rooms and 13 testing rooms; plans for the new Institute include space for 102 exam rooms and 44 testing rooms. The new facility will also include surgical suites.

To Effect Change, We Must Have Information

By Amy Summers, Chair of the House of Delegates Health and Human Resources
Committee

West Virginia Secretary of Health Facilities Michael Caruso and others arranged visits to state-owned psychiatric facilities last year for lawmakers and our staff. It was insightful for me, both from a budget standpoint and a system-of-care standpoint. It showed me the state needs to plan to invest in a replacement facility for our Huntington psychiatric hospital on its current property and that the Weston facility may need to expand.

When Legislative Oversight Commission on Health and Human Resources Accountability (LOCCHRA) members were told the scheduled speakers for our April 16 meeting would not be available to discuss critical issues and long-term planning for our state-owned health facilities, I reached out to Secretary Caruso without success.

As Co-Chair of LOCCHRA, I am asking for the same type of meetings I did in the past for many of our state-owned laboratories. Once those laboratory tours were complete, we were able to build consensus that the state needed a brand new, state-of-the-art laboratory, and funding was requested. It now is in the process of being built. I have asked our staff to coordinate on-site visits to all the health facilities owned by the State of West Virginia, starting with Hopemont State Hospital.

How can the West Virginia Legislature comprehend the state's most dire problems, let alone look for the solutions to them, without information? How do I know if the $90,000 increase in the budget line item for maintenance and repairs to Hopemont is enough to solve a problem that led to a patient burned so badly it resulted in his death?

I refuse to accept this type of care as the care a West Virginia-owned facility, or any facility, provides!

The Legislature cannot and should not attempt to manage the day-to-day operations of the Executive Branch, but we can and we will change laws, regulations and funds when we are shown the need. We have practically begged the newly separated departments of health to show and tell us where additional funds are necessary, and this most recent opportunity to do so was wasted.

Tears come to my eyes when I think of the pain a nonverbal, elderly man suffering from dementia must have endured sitting in scalding water for over 45 minutes. If we are expected to allocate and adjust state funds during a May special session, we should be clear about where those funds are desperately needed well before we gavel in.

If we do not stand up for these individuals in state care, who will?

Amy Summers, MSN, RN, is a Republican from Taylor County. She serves as Chair of the WV House of Delegates Health and Human Resources Committee and Co-Chair of the Legislative Oversight Commission on Health and Human Resources Accountability.

She previously served as House Majority Leader and first was elected in 2014.

Putting Some Light On the Subject Of Shinnston Aesthetics and Safety

By Stephen Smoot

The City of Shinnston is exploring ways to light up the life of Downtown. As Tori Drainer, Shinnston City Manager, states, bringing better light to the streets of Downtown is important for a number of reasons.

Improving street safety serves as the prime priority, Drainer explains. "We have a dance studio with young children" and "side streets with children playing in their yards." Also, the sidewalks sometimes remain busy into the night with scheduled events and people patronizing businesses/

"This has been a topic for sometime now," she said.

Mon Power is currently working with the city to ensure that an optimal design gets put into place. A "test process" will "see what size wattage works in which areas." Two lights on Pike Street will test two different sizes, while two other designs of light will be tested on Duffy Street.

All the new designs use some form of LED. Drainer predicts that changing over from high pressure sodium and metal halide to LED will save the City money. Each light could bring a substantial savings over the current system, which Drainer says "we can use to install new lights in areas that are not well lit."

Much of the work of testing and installation is being performed by Mon Power. Their roles lie in retrieving pole numbers, sending information to designers and engineers, and their workers will replace the light fixtures when a final option is selected.

Do not expect, however, for the lights to all appear at once. Drainer shared that "a project of this magnitude has to be done in sections."

"A lot of the business owners in town are ecstatic, as well as the citizens," she said, adding that in the future "there are different areas where we would like to see new lights added, for example at the park, as well as in the area of the school."

year to encourage more visitors to our area." She went on to explain that "the students are also working on a beautification project for downtown Shinnston."

Students hope to bring six of each of the following amenities and improvements to the Shinnston streetscape, including benches, planters, and waste receptacles. They will be black-coated, industrial strength, uniform in color and style, and steel-coated to ensure a long and useful life.

The total cost of the project will approach $13,000. Groups of students have created a fundraising pitch that they delivered to local organizations in hopes of garnering support.

"They have made a couple of community presentations and started to receive some funding," Yearego commented, adding that they "still need quite a bit more donated to see it come to fruition."

The project, if completed, will do far more than help to elevate the aesthetic of the city. When students work together to create plans, raise money, and execute solutions, they also develop vital life skills. Furthermore, the experience of pitching proposals for community improvement also fosters the attitude and abilities needed in future leaders for the community.

The project also welcomes donations from the community.

Yearego shared that "if an individual, family, or organization would like to purchase one individually, or in memory or honor of a group or loved one, that may be accommodated as well."

Those who wish to give can mail them to Lincoln High School 100 Jerry Toth Drive Shinnston WV 26431. Please write on the envelope "Attn/Memo Shinnston Beautification Project. Questions can be sent to shinnstontrails@gmail.com or call Mrs. Yearego at the high school phone number, which is (304) 326-7400 goes beyond an alma mater. There are jobs at stake (for teachers and players) and longer trips to be taken before, during, and after school. Don't get me wrong; there are nothing but positives about school pride and I will admit that when my alma mater, Washington Irving, was no longer a high school, I was upset. I tried, however, to focus on the positives and not the negatives at that time.

The conversations that I had with those in the community were centered around jobs and travel. The concerns were the loss of one and the gain of the latter. Consolidation of schools always brings fear that teachers will lose jobs.

Teachers and coaches will merge with the need to be determined. The same scenario applies for athletes that are trying to earn roster spots, positions, and eventually playing time. There are opportunities that are taken away from kids that might be late bloomers due to consolidation. One remedy is an increased amount of recreation leagues that would allow our youth to continue to develop in hopes of one day making a school team.

If not, it would at least provide them with the advantages of learning how to be part of a team which would help make up for what they would lose if they couldn't participate.

Addressing another concern, consolidation means more time on a bus for students, but if it is managed correctly, with the best possible routes in place, it would help to minimize the issue.

I know most of the Board personally and I'm sure they took all of these issues into consideration before making their final decision. The Board voted to close Liberty and consolidate it into RCB. Mountaineer Middle and Washington Irving were closed and the students will move to Liberty (the building.) North View will close and their students attend in the former Mountaineer Middle site, while Salem will operate as previously.

The Board's task was not easy. They were in a no-win situation. They made the best decision that they could and now it's our job to do our part. We need to rally behind the kids because at the end of the day, we're all on the same team.

That will do for now! Until next week . . . take care and God Bless!

The Agonizing Questions Surrounding Alzheimer's Disease

As we round out the month of April and prepare for May it comes to my attention that May is Alzheimer's Month. Many of us know the word and most of us have been exposed to the disease either by word of mouth or directly with a family member.

As we grow older, it seems to me our population is now living longer and Alzheimer's is becoming more prevalent. We seem to associate the disease with age and most frequently it does appear in older individuals but it is not that rare for younger adults to contact it.

Some individuals are diagnosed with dementia, some not too bad, but some that developed into Alzheimer's.

I feel I am a little qualified to speak about this as my family and I nursed our mother for almost ten years with this disease and watched it progress to then final stages until she passed. We chose to keep her at home with round the clock caregivers.

I can share with you a few of the symptoms that started with forgetfulness and progressed to not knowing us, not being able to talk with us and needing complete care as she became bedfast. The hardest part for any child is to look into their eyes and wonder what is behind them. You search fervently for them to recognize you and you know the recognition never comes. It is very hard for a loved one to accept these conditions. At this point you wonder if you have the right to pray for a peaceful passing.

Take outs available. Then you address the subject if Alzheimer's is genetic. We have always wondered if we should be tested but then we understand that there is not much that can be done for you. Can you live with knowing you have the genes and currently there is little that can be done? Approximately five million Americans have been diagnosed with Alzheimer's.

Now is the time for all of us to support awareness and research. Locally we have a wonderful program at WVU. I hope to be able to supply you with direct contacts.

I urge you to consider helping a family who is being touched by Alzheimer's.

Purple is the color for May and for Alzheimer's. I hope to be able to wear purple every day to remind me what I can do to combat this disease and I hope to get you to do the same. Prayer is the answer.

Take care, stay healthy and until next week "Now You Have Heard It Through The Grapevine."

serve and honor the community the most are the ones who seek attention for their work the least. Yet this column serves a vital purpose in providing examples of those who gave, sacrificed, and/or worked to make Shinnston, Harrison County, the State of West Virginia, or the Republic a better place.

Fortunately history provides an example of an individual who exemplifies these traits, Nathan Goff Jr.

According to historian G. Wayne Smith, Goff cut "a glamorous figure" who later in life "appealed to the electorate." The man who earned so many accolades as a Republican Party leader, federal Cabinet member, and elected official entered a life of service at a young age.

Born in 1843, almost 19 years later than Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson, Goff matriculated at Georgetown College in Washington DC, studying humanities in 1861 as war broke out. His Whig leaning father, Waldo, owned a successful business that relied heavily on the new Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for commerce.

His "Uncle Nathan, for whom he was named, was president of Clarksburg's only bank, which was a branch of an institution headquartered in Wheeling, which was the only urban stronghold of the early Republican Party in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

With war coming and Harrison County in the turbulent border between Union and Confederate sympathies, Goff returned home from school. Although he initially enlisted as a private in the militia regiment forming at Clarksburg, Goff quickly earned election into the role of second lieutenant.

The first duties of the Union affiliated regiment lay in attempting to protect several counties' worth of towns and smaller settlements from the expanding ravages of guerilla warfare. Rutherford B. Hayes' expedition from Weston in the summer of 1861 started with encountering harmless pot shots from "squirrel rifles," but by August encountered dogged and deadly resistance from both irregular and officially sanctioned Confederate and Commonwealth of Virginia units.

In May 1862, Goff faced his first encounter with the enemy, ironically against a force commanded by Stonewall Jackson. This opened a grueling summer of marches and martial action in the most remote and rugged terrain, mostly in current Pendleton, Grant, and Hardy counties. By June, "Goff was the only officer present for duty" and commanded Company G by default.

Almost a year and a half later, Goff received a major's commission from Governor Arthur I. Boreman in the new Fourth West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry. Six months after that, Goff served as an officer accompanying a Union wagon train moving northeast from Petersburg along Patterson Creek. Confederate forces under Major General Jubal Early moved north from Moorefield, forced a mountain pass near where Corridor H cuts through the eastern ridge of Patterson Creek Valley.

There, they captured the wagons and 40 prisoners, including Goff.

Escorted by Confederate guards, Goff went first to Staunton, then to the notorious Libby Prison in Richmond. Neither the Union nor the Confederacy deserve plaudits for treatment of prisoners. Both sides had military prison camps that became bywords for suffering and cruelty. The difference between the two lay in the fact that the Confederacy's ability to deed, clothe, and medically care for their prisoners diminished to nothing late in the war.

Libby served as both a first stop for captured enlisted soldiers and also the official officers' prison. Officers, however, received no special treatment in the horridly overcrowded facility. According to the National Park Service's description, "inmates suffered from cramped quarters, poor sanitation, outbreaks of disease, and extreme temperatures during winter and summer months."

Exchanges happened periodically and Confederate authorities made it known that they would swap Goff for Harrison County native and Confederate Major Thomas D. Armsey. Union authorities sent Armsey to Fort McHenry in Maryland under a sentence of 15 years for hard labor.

By 1864, Union atrocities and a hardening of Northern attitudes made prisoner exchanges very rare. That said, a flurry of letters describing the dangerous conditions of Goff's imprisonment, as well as the political and economic influence of his family, secured his release.

Abraham Lincoln himself urged that the swap of Goff for Army be made and it was made so on Sept. 1, 1864.

Goff's physical condition had deteriorated significantly in captivity, preventing him from returning to active service. Instead, he put his efforts into recovering his health and the study of law.

The privations suffered at Libby and his subsequent summertime imprisonment in Salisbury, North Carolina, earned Goff tremendous respect. Wayne wrote later that he "had established a bond with Union veterans that could not be broken." Stories of his confinement were "told over and over again to evoke an emotional response among other veterans hardly obtainable in any other way."

That sympathy and respect, along with the very effective "school" of leadership created by hard combat and military service, helped to elevate Goff into a Republican Party leader, a member of the United States House of Representatives, a federal judgeship, and selection to the United States Senate.

Surprise Mom with a special dessert in her honor

Mother's Day is a great chance for men, women and children to honor the special women in their lives. Delicious homemade treats can show mothers just how much they are appreciated and adored. Try this tasty recipe for "Cold Mango Souffle" Topped with Toasted Coconut.

Cold Mango Souffle Topped With Toasted Coconut (Makes 4)

- 4 small mangoes, peeled, pitted and chopped
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 tablespoon powdered Gelatine
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup superfine sugar
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 1/4 cups heavy cream
- Grated rind of one orange
- Toasted flaked or coarsely shredded coconut, to decorate

Place a few pieces of mango in the base of each of four 2/3-cup ramekins. Wrap a creased collar of nonstick parchment paper around the outside of each dish, extending well above the rim. Secure with adhesive tape, then tie tightly with string.

Pour the water into a small heatproof bowl and sprinkle the Gelatine over the surface. Leave for 5 minutes or until spongy. Place the bowl in a pan of hot water, stirring occasionally, until the Gelatine has dissolved.

Meanwhile, whisk the egg yolks with the superfine sugar and milk in another heatproof bowl. Place the bowl over a pan of simmering water and continue to whisk until the mixture is thick and frothy. Remove from the heat and continue whisking until the mixture cools. Whisk in the liquid Gelatine.

Puree the remaining mango pieces in a food processor or blender, then fold the puree into the egg yolk mixture with the orange rind. Set the mixture aside until starting to thicken.

Whip the heavy cream to soft peaks. Reserve 4 tablespoons and fold the rest into the mango mixture. Spoon into the ramekins until the mixture is 1 inch above the rim of each dish. Chill for 3 to 4 hours, or until set.

Carefully remove the paper collars from the souffle. Spoon a little of the reserved cream on top of each souffle and decorate with some toasted flaked or coarsely shredded coconut.

Capito Statement on EPA's PFAS Designations

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Today, U.S. Senator Shelley Moore Capito (R-W.Va.), Ranking Member of the Environment and Public Works (EPW) Committee, released the below statement following the EPA's decision to designate two legacy per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS), also known as "forever chemicals," as hazardous substances under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA). This constitutes the first time the EPA has ever designated a hazardous substance under CERCLA without first designating the substance as such under another environmental statute. "The EPA's unprecedented decision today puts local communities and ratepayers on the hook for PFAS contamination they had nothing to do with in the first place. Along with many others in Congress, I have repeatedly warned the EPA about the unintended consequences stemming from this rule, which will have disproportionate impacts on providers of essential public services such as water and waste utilities, airports, farmers and ranchers, and fire departments. "Today's ill-advised decision underscores the urgent need for Congress to act. We must pass legislation to safeguard

American ratepayers from the financial burden imposed by this misguided rule." C A P I T O C O M M E N T S A T M A R C H 2 0 2 4 E P W H E A R I N G O N I S S U E S W I T H E P A ' S P O T E N T I A L P F A S D E S I G N A T I O N U N D E R C E R C L A : "Communities would be required to remove the six substances, two of which would be hazardous substances, through water treatment processes, therefore concentrating the PFAS in filters. "Water systems could be stuck holding those filters because landfills would be unwilling to accept them due to liability concerns. "Wastewater and storm water utilities, although not responsible for generating these flows, could face similar liabilities, receiving PFAS chemicals through intakes or storm water runoff. "These 'passive receivers' would bear the brunt of these liabilities, facing frivolous lawsuits for just providing essential services. "No EPA enforcement discretion policy can prevent lawsuits by activist third parties. " W i t h o u t congressional action, a wave of lawsuits could potentially raise taxes and utility rates on millions of Americans, all while enriching the trial lawyers."
