Faulty brakes and loss of control blamed for collisions

The loss of brakes was cited as the cause of a collision last week while traversing U.S. 58, commonly called Lovers Leap Mountain.

Patrick County Emergency Management Services (EMS) Coordinator Scottie Cassell said the accident occurred on April 13. The call came in around 10:24 a.m. to report the driver of an 18-wheeler tractor-trailer who allegedly lost control of the vehicle before a truck ramp.

The vehicle "overturned on its side," he said, adding the vehicle "was carrying bags of fertilizer."

Cassell said a skid steer was used to scoop up the fertilizer.

"Some of it was unloaded by hand - the bags that weren't busted," he said.

The driver was transported to Sovah Health -Martinsville with minor injuries.

Cassell estimated the entire call, including cleanup, lasted about six hours. The road cleared at 4:30 p.m. One lane of travel was blocked through-

Another collision involved a red sedan and an 18-wheeler, Cassell said of the accident that occurred April 12 around 8 a.m. at the intersection of Trot Valley and Central Academy roads.

"The truck lost its brakes coming down the mountain," he said, adding the car "was turning onto Central Academy and got side-swiped by a tractor-trailer."

The driver of the car was also transported to Sovah Health - Martinsville with non-threatening injuries.

EMS personnel cleared the scene around 9 a.m., he added.

Anyone who has concerns about paying for medications, or anyone who would like to learn more about the programs that Tri-Area Community Health is bringing to the community is invited to attend. A healthy lunch will be provided, and those interested in attending are asked to call (276) 694-3050 to register for planning purposes. List of voters to be updated for accuracy

As part of the Virginia Department of Elections'(ELECTs') initiative to refine and update its list maintenance practices, the department has instituted a series of improvements to its current operations spurred by both feedback from the field as well as internal evaluations of existing processes.

At the request of general registrars, ELECT has streamlined the reporting of voters who are known to be deceased. A newly available form allows family members to report the death of a loved one to their general registrar directly. General registrars are also now permitted to use obituaries to confirm the death of a registered

Additionally, ELECT has introduced a new tool that allows general registrars to lookup Virginia voters who may have died in another state. Through a national database, general registrars may now verify if the death of a registered voter occurred outside of the Commonwealth. In the past, general registrars experienced difficulties confirming the death of Virginia voters who died in out-of-state hospitals or facilities. This tool is particularly useful for general registrars who serve in areas bordering Virginia's five neighboring states and the District of Columbia.

Lastly, ELECT examined its data sharing relationship with the Virginia Department of Health. After ELECT requested a review of all VDH death records going back to 1960, VDH discovered death records that had not been previously shared with ELECT. After additional data analysis by ELECT staff, 18,990 records of registered voters were identified and will be sent to local registrars for processing in the coming week. As a result of these findings and process improvements, citizens can expect to see a significant number of names removed from Virginia's voter rolls

"Maintaining the accuracy and security of our voter list continues to be a top priority for ELECT as the agency transitions to the new statewide voter registration system," said Susan Beals, Commissioner of the Virginia Department of Elections. "Through new mechanisms for updating our voter rolls, the department is working towards a best-in-class data voter registration list with the most accurate data available."

Year-to-Date $Revenues\ Still$ Running Ahead of Projections

The general fund revenue collections for March 2023 unadjusted for policy or timing impacts, fell by 3.8 percent compared to March 2022 mainly due to higher refund issuance, Gov. Glenn Youngkin announced last week. On a fiscal year-to-date basis, revenues are 0.6 percent higher than the same period last year. Relative to the official forecast updated in December, unadjusted general fund revenues are ahead of forecast by $124.2 million year-to-date.

"March's revenue numbers, once demonstrate there's plenty of money available to lower costs for families and local businesses. We can also fund those most critical investments in education, safer communities and transforming the way behavioral health care is delivered for Virginians," said Governor Glenn Youngkin. "We remain in an and moment, not and an/or moment on tax cuts and key investments in the Commonwealth. The silent thief of inflation continues to steal the hard-earned paychecks of Virginia families and I encourage Senate Democrats to come together with House Republican leaders and let's deliver for Virginians together.

"The modest year-over-year decline in net revenues was anticipated in our December forecast," said Secretary of Finance Stephen Cummings. "Overall general fund revenue collections continue to exceed projections, adding to our confidence in our estimate of $3.6 billion in available funds to implement of the Governor's proposed policy initiatives."

March marks the beginning of the tax processing season which peaks from mid-April to early May. The forecast projects an overall decline in total tax due payments primarily due to last year's decline in equity markets and the increase in the standard deduction. Through March, individual income non-withholding collections, which includes final tax payments, are well above projections, up 2.5 percent year-overyear after adjusting for policy changes.

Winchester Man Pleads Guilty to Selling Fatal Dose of Fentanyl dose of fentanyl in October 2020, pleaded guilty last week to federal drug charges.

Kenneth James Hughes Jr., 27, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in Harrisonburg to two counts of distribution of fentanyl.

According to court documents, following a fentanyl overdose resulting in the death of the user on October 23, 2020, an investigation by law enforcement revealed Hughes and his supplier to be the deceased user's source of supply.

Law enforcement's investigation revealed that Hughes sold drugs to a variety of individuals throughout the Western District of Virginia. In October 2020, one of Hughes' customers contacted him in regard to acquiring fentanyl in the form of "pressed pills," namely, fentanyl pills made to appear like Oxycodone 30 mg pills. Hughes contacted his supplier and arranged and facilitated the purchase of two pressed pills by the customer from his supplier.

The individual who purchased the pressed pills subsequently consumed the drugs and was found unresponsive the following morning at prosecuting the case.

Additionally, in November 2020, in Berryville, Virginia, Hughes sold twenty-two capsules containing fentanyl for $300 to a confidential informant working on behalf of law enforcement.

Hughes is scheduled to be sentenced on July 19, 2023, and faces a sentence of six to ten years in prison pursuant to a written plea agreement with the United States. A United States District Court Judge will determine the final sentence after consideration of the federal sentencing guidelines and the sentencing factors set forth by Congress.

New unemployment claims unchanged from last month

Data from the Virginia Employment Commission (VEC) indicates the number of initial claims was essentially unchanged in the latest filing week at 1,558 and remained at levels typically seen over the last twelve months.

For the filing week ending April 8, the figure for seasonally unadjusted initial claims in Virginia was 1,558, which was a decrease of five claimants from the previous week. Over half of initial claims with a self-reported industry were from administrative and support and waste management, professional, scientific, and technical services, retail trade, and health care and social assistance. Continued weeks claimed totaled 11,681, which was a decrease of 142 claims from the previous week but an increase of 68% from the 6,971 continued claims from the comparable week last year.

Eligibility for benefits is determined on a weekly basis, and so not all weekly claims filed result in a benefit payment. This is because the initial claims numbers represent claim applications; claims are then reviewed for eligibility

In the week ending April 8, the advance U.S. figure for seasonally adjusted[1] initial claims was 239,000, an increase of 11,000 from the previous week's unrevised level of 228,000. This is the highest level for initial claims since January 15, 2022, when it was 251,000. The advance number of actual initial claims under state programs, unadjusted, totaled 234,577 in the week ending April 8, an increase of 27,457 (or 13.3 percent) from the previous week. There were 223,751 initial claims in the comparable week in 2022. Looking at preliminary data, most U.S. states reported increases on a seasonally unadjusted basis. California's preliminary weekly change (+11,388) was the largest increase. New Jersey's weekly change (+3,228) was the second largest increase. Pennsylvania's preliminary weekly change (+2,816) was the third largest increase. Texas's weekly change (+2,776) was the fourth largest increase. Virginia's preliminary weekly change (+175) was the 23rd largest ining taught in schools.

"I used to think, 'thank God that's not happening in our county.' Then, a couple of parents approached me with a concern about a book that was being taught in third grade, and one of the students was actually having nightmares about this book," Stirewalt said at the April 13

Stirewalt, the Peters Creek District representative on the Patrick County Board of Supervisors, said she then contacted Ryan Lawson, who represents the Peters Creek District on the school board.

After learning about the concern, Schools Superintendent Jason Wood contacted Stirewalt and advised her that the book in question was part of the fourth-grade curriculum which has since been taken

A few months later, Stirewalt saw a picture of kindergarteners on the floor with little black donut pieces hanging down on the Stuart Elementary School Facebook page. The post has since been deleted.

The post stated, 'Our pre-k students ended Red Ribbon Week by just suggestive things, I mean eatchasing the Grinch's dark heart ing somebody's black heart, my first to eat it.' "Immediately, I was in shock, and someone else had actually posted and asked for clarification on that because they thought the image was disturbing," Stirewalt

She added that she shared the post on her social media page because she believes "sometimes in this county, you have to shock parents into getting involved in their children's school."

Stirewalt cited another issue this one with the state trying to keep parents out of schools.

"I'm of the belief that parents should teach certain things and schools should teach certain things," Stirewalt said. "Schools should teach your major things to help you in business and in life, and if there's any controversial topics that should be handled by the parents."

Stirewalt said she believes the board is willing to work together to figure out ways to keep certain things out of schools.

"Our children are so impressionable. If you put little things, thought was, 'Oh my god, where did Jeffrey Dahmer start.' And people may think I'm crazy, but it starts somewhere," she said.

To her understanding, Stirewalt said a committee of teachers looks at and approves curriculum for the different grades. She suggested including parents or retired teachers to potentially look at and approve the curriculums.

"I know money is attached to this from the state, I get it. Maybe apply for charter school status. That way you still get state funding, but you have a say over more so of the curriculum," she said.

Stirewalt also asked whether the board could identify sexually explicit books in school libraries.

"I heard a sixth grader read about boys being sexual with other boys," she said. "The teacher was reading that to them in class, and that book was available in the school library. We're talking about masturbation with elementary school students. It's hard to even say some of the things that you hear going on in these schools. I don't want that for our children."

Stirewalt said she would like to help the board if it doesn't want the more controversial things in the county's schools, "and if money's attached, let's stand up and go to the state level and let's fight for our children," she said.

In other matters, the board:

"After we quit that, we produced and grew tomatoes and all that stuff. We sold a lot of that at the farmers' markets. I would take it to the farmers' markets at night, and me and this other lady would go with me and we would go down and sell them," Montgomery said, that adding customers met there to get their produce.

The operation now is a stepped-down version of the one years ago – Montgomery said she reduced it to four greenhouses filled with hundreds of plants and seedlings.

Regardless of your circumstances, chances are that you are not maximizing your potential. There is a solution for every problem and every problem contains an opportunity. Spending any time being envious of another's lot is a total waste of energy.

In a card game, it's not necessarily the best hand that wins. The winner is the player who gets the most distance from the hand he or she is dealt. In life, like in a card game, you can't necessarily predict or control what you are dealt.

Throughout your life you will have to deal with thousands of situations. Some you will have control over, others you won't. You were born with strengths and weaknesses. You want to take full advantage of your strengths and overcome or at least minimize your weaknesses.

You can do one of three things with the cards you are dealt. You can play your hand, getting the maximum mileage from your cards. You can sit and whine and complain about your "bad luck." Or you can fold up and leave the table.

Those who are the most successful are rarely the ones with the best cards. Conversely, those with the best cards are not always the most successful. The most successful people are those who are the most adept at getting the most from each

Why does a person get so dejected when they find they have received a less than perfect hand? No one likes problems. Everyone would like to lead a stress-free life. Problems can be discouraging. It's perfectly normal to be frustrated by

> Don't use a bad hand as an excuse to do nothing or as a reason why you can't accomplish something. If you analyze your situation, you will often find that it's not as bad as it first seemed. You will also find opportunities where initially there appeared to be only problems.

> Consider it a challenge to find the opportunities in each hand you are dealt. They are there. Perspective is the key. You will always be able to find examples of people who find themselves in a worse situation than you and yet seem to emerge in a positive fashion while turning what looked like a losing hand into a winning one.

> With the right outlook, you can derive something positive from most situations. On the other hand, a bad attitude can make a perfect hand look like a loser. Just as in a card game, many of life's cards are distributed randomly. It's human nature to think that others are getting better cards than you. But when all is averaged out, everyone has challenges and opportunities. The exact mix that someone else has is irrelevant. Your situation and what you make of it is what's important to you.

You can increase your happiness by learning to make the most of what comes your way. Most people don't come close to realizing their potential. If you don't realize the potential you do have, how can you complain about what you don't have?

Why The USDA Is Being Urged To Make The Plant-Based Diet A Priority

It was an early morning in corporate America, many of the employees of a large, well-known insurance company were rushing to their departments; some had taken the time to grab a coffee, while others had skipped breakfast that morning to take a health screening test.

I had volunteered for a team that would check the blood pressure, blood sugar, and cholesterol levels of the employees. As was expected, many of the patients I saw that day were nervous; some were nervous about the small needles we used to prick fingers for a drop of blood, while others had a more deep-seated anxiety about what the results of high blood sugar and cholesterol could mean towards their health.

As I continued to collect samples and as patients saw results, many of those employees saw higher results than the doctor's recommended levels.

Why the high cholesterol?

What was surprising was when seemingly healthy people's results revealed high blood pressure, high blood sugar, or high cholesterol. A shocked woman who had just happily told me that she'd climbed almost all the mountains and hills worth climbing in California, had

It was an early morning in corpojust found out that her cholesterol ate America, many of the employ-level did not correspond with her cases of a large, well-known insurperceived level of health.

She began to ask me why I thought she had higher cholesterol, an otherwise symptomless condition. I asked her to look at her diet to see if foods high in saturated fat, red meats, and dairy were something she ate regularly. She slowly explained to me that she did pay attention to her activity but had neglected her diet, thinking that exercise would keep her healthy.

This past week I visited a beautiful and popular gym in California's capitol, Sacramento. From the number of people that were there, I saw that they were serious about their health in regards to exercise but I wondered, how seriously do they consider their diet in relation to health?

A focus on diet

The truth is; many are realizing that diet may be being neglected by the health-conscious. Matt Cartwright, a congressman from Pennsylvania, is already calling for the United States Department of Agriculture to research a plant-based diet to help reduce strain on the environment and assist with national overall health.

This plan for a novel, plant-based diet—due to be included in the US-DA's 2020 Dietary Guidelines—may be exactly what many people need to understand how diet can work together with regular exercise to maintain overall health.

The plant-based difference

It had been years since I had checked my cholesterol throughout the morning of the health screening, I began to wonder where my levels of LDL. HDL (cholesterol) and triglycerides were. Coincidentally, my whole team had been wondering about their health too, so as we saw the last patients off, we all underwent the same tests. Many of us were fairly happy with the results with a few exceptions, but when my results began to be read by the nurse who had taken my blood, my colleagues were shocked to hear how my levels were near or slightly lower than the recommended levels.

What made the difference in my levels of cholesterol when compared to that of my colleagues? When my team asked me how it was possible that I had such textbook results, I responded by telling them about my lifestyle of a plantbased diet.

Recommended cholesterol levels:

Total cholesterol: less than 200 (Ideally under 160)

HDL (good cholesterol) Men: (higher than 40)

Women: (higher than 50)

LDL (bad cholesterol) Lower than 130 (Ideally under 70)

Triglycerides: less than 150 while fasting (Ideally under 100 while fasting)

Social Security Matters

By National Social Security Advisor at the AMAC Foundation, the non-profit arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Ask Rusty – What Can I Earn in My First Year Collecting Social Security?

Dear Rusty: My 62nd birthday is in late August of this year. I would like to start collecting Social Security, but after reading about the need to keep my earnings less than $21,240 in the first year it doesn't seem fair to those who have birthdays later in the year. I will have earned a lot by the end of August. Or am I missing the part where the year starts from the day you retire? Or is it a fiscal year? Please elaborate? Signed: Looking Ahead

Dear Looking Ahead: Born in late August, your first month of eligibility for Social Security will be September (you must be 62 for an entire month to be eligible for SS benefits). If you start your benefits in September, for the months of September through December 2023 you'll have a monthly earnings limit of $1,770. If you exceed that limit in any of those 4 months, you won't be eligible for SS benefits in any month that the $1770 monthly limit is exceeded. If you exceed the monthly limit in all of those months, you won't be entitled to any benefits in 2023, unless using the annual earnings limit formula to determine your penalty would result in a lesser amount. The penalty for exceeding the annual limit is $1 for every $2 you are over the 2023 limit and, if using that formula yields a penalty which is less than for exceeding the 2023 monthly limit for September - December, they will use the annual limit instead of the monthly limit to compute your penalty. Thus, your annual earnings earned before September will only count if using the annual limit will result in less of a penalty than using the monthly limit for the months after your benefits start. If you plan to retire from working before September, then there will be no penalty for exceeding the annual earnings limit prior to that, but if you continue to work full time there will likely be a penalty which will cause Social Security to take away some of your benefits.

Starting in 2024, only the annual earnings limit (which will be a bit more than the 2023 annual limit) will apply to you. Generally, if you continue working full time and will significantly exceed the annual earnings limit, it may be wise to reconsider claiming your Social Security until your income is below or closer to the annual limit each year, or until you reach your full retirement age after which the earnings limit no longer applies. And if you do claim early and exceed the earnings limit, and if you have benefits taken away for some number of months to satisfy the penalty, you'll get time-credit for those months after you reach your full retirement age. That credit will, essentially, move your claim date forward by the number of months you didn't get SS benefits, increasing your benefit amount accordingly after your full retirement age.

Patrick Pioneers

Sheriff Frank Mays

By Beverly Belcher Woody

Frank Mays served as sheriff of Patrick County for 28 years, the longest term of anyone in that office to date. In 1880, Mays was born in the Peters Creek section of the county to Abram Fontaine Mays and Elizabeth Campbell Mays.

In 1919, Mays married Annie Stedman, the daughter of Sallie Woolwine Stedman and Malvern Vance Stedman, the publisher of The Enterprise and the largest orchardist in the county. When Frank and Annie married, he was 38 years old, and she was 20. The couple made their home on Buena Vista Avenue in Stuart. One year later, the couple had a little boy who sadly, only lived for three days.

In 1940, Mays lost his beloved Annie to cancer; she was only 41 years old. In 1943, Mays married Miss Iris Lee Rogers, the daughter of Walter Lee Rogers and Grace Williams. The couple married in Chesterfield, SC; he was 62 years old, and she was 29.

Sheriff Mays kept very busy because the 18th amendment was ratified in 1919, one year before Mays took office. He spent the next thirteen years chasing down "moonshiners' and "bootleggers" until the 20th amendment was ratified in 1933.

One of the most exciting times during Mays' administration was on the morning of January 4th, 1944. L.B. Rucker, Cashier of The First National Bank of Stuart, was opening the bank doors for business. It was only a few minutes past 9:00 a.m., and Rucker had been arranging his cash for the day's business. The only other person in the place was Rucker's wife, who was also a bank employee. A man came up behind Rucker and first demanded $400, and then the robber changed his mind and demanded all "the dough you got." Rucker calmly handed over all the money in sight and the gunman shifted his revolver to his left hand and stuffed the money into his pockets and left. About a half a minute later the Ruckers heard the grating of the gears as the car rushed away from the bank. The car was a maroon-colored car, but it was too far away by the time the Ruckers got to the door for them to get a complete license number, even though Mrs. Rucker thought she had seen the first three numbers on the plate

Sheriff Frank D. Mays and Patrick County officers arrived at the scene quickly after the incident. Mrs. Rucker stated that the gunman was about thirty years of age, not more than 5'8" tall and weighed around 130-140 lbs. With the description of the car and the description of the bank robber, Sheriff Mays made calls to Floyd, Martinsville, and Mt. Airy, N.C., and blocked every outlet from Stuart.

According to the tabloid magazine, "Official Detective Stories," "Mays, was as a two-gun mountain sheriff, who had tangled with the hardest of criminals. He was a crack shot with either hand and feared no man. Many an outlaw who sought to hide in Patrick County had their chance of knowing Frank Mays. Sheriff Mays was said to be tough, "only when necessary." The Sheriff could not have lasted long by being unduly tough because the unschooled mountain men who bitterly resented any interference with their mode of living, with what they considered their right to manufacture and sell "white lightning" would have made it hard for the Sheriff to last very long. Mays understood the mountain men and they knew and respected the fact that he was sworn to uphold the law and "would do

Kyle Larson Claims First Victory at Martinsville Speedway with NOCO 400 Win

By Holly Cain NASCAR Wire Service

Kyle Larson's Hendrick Motorsports team gambled on a late race two-tire pit stop to give him a fighting chance for the victory, and he took the opportunity and drove away to a commanding 4.142-second win in Sunday's NOCO 400 NA-SCAR Cup Series race at Martinsville (Va.) Speedway.

It was the 2021 Cup Series champion's first victory at the famed half-mile track; making the pass for the win in his No. 5 Hendrick Motorsports Chevy with 30 laps remaining, but then having to hold off another past champion Joey Logano, whose runner-up finish Sunday was also impressive considering he started at the rear of the field after a post-qualifying adjustment to his No. 22 Team Penske Ford.

"I feel like [crew chief] Cliff [Daniels] and everybody did a great job all day on pit road, making the right calls and having great pit stops and it all kind of worked out for me there at the end, we had a great car, that was the best my car had been," said Larson, whose final 30 laps out front were the only laps he led on the day.

It marks the second win of the season for the 30-year-old Californian Larson, who joins his teammate William Byron as the only multiple-race winners on the year.

That late-race pit gamble for Larson was indicative of a dramatic final few laps when pit strategy played a big role in the race. Logano was one of four drivers who did not pit on a caution flag with 56 laps remaining, choosing to take track position instead after he'd gone down a lap not once, but twice earlier in the afternoon.

"Solid recovery for what the start of the race looked like," Logano said, joking that at one point he would have been happy just to finish on the lead lap.

Joe Gibbs Racing teammates Martin Truex Jr. and Denny Hamlin finished third and fourth – the first top-five finishes for both drivers this season. Stewart-Haas Racing's Chase Briscoe finished fifth, just in front of his teammate Aric Almirola.

The SHR team was especially strong Sunday with three of its four drivers combining to lead 264 of the 400 laps. Ryan Preece, who started from the pole position for the first time in his career, collected his first stage win and led a race-best 135 laps, but was penalized for speeding on pit road and had to go to the rear of the field. He recovered to finish 15th. Briscoe led 109 laps and Kevin Harvick, who claimed his first stage win since 2020, was out front for 20 laps but a late race issue left him

Perhaps the most noteworthy top-10 finish of the day belonged to Hendrick Motorsports' driver Chase Elliott, who was making his first start since suffering a broken leg in a snowboarding accident seven weeks ago.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC OF A PETITION BY APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY
FOR APPROVAL OF MIDDLE-MILE BROADBAND
CAPACITY PROJECTS PURSUANT TO § 56-585.1:9 OF THE CODE OF VIRGINIA
CASE NO. PUR-2023-00028

 Appalachian Power Company has applied for approval of two (2) new projects to provide broadband capacity to Internet Service Providers in areas of Virginia that are unserved by broadband.

•The Hearing Examiner appointed to this case will hold a telephonic hearing on June 27, 2023, to receive public witness testimony on this Petition.

The Hearing Examiner will hold an evidentiary hearing in this case on June 28, 2023.

•Further information about this case is available on the SCC website at: scc.virginia.gov/pages/Case-Information.

On March 2, 2023, Appalachian Power Company ("APCo" or "Company") filed a petition ("Petition") with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission"), pursuant to § 56 585.1:9 of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), seeking approval of two new projects to provide broadband capacity to Internet Service Providers ("ISPs") in areas of Virginia that are unserved by broadband. Specifically, APCo requests approval of: (1) a project to provide middle-mile broadband Internet capacity in unserved areas of Patrick, Henry, and Franklin Counties, Virginia (the "PHF Project"); and (2) a project to provide middle-mile broadband Internet capacity in unserved areas of Giles County, Virginia (the "GC Project") (collectively, the "Projects"). Pursuant to Code § 56-585.1:9, the Commission must issue a final order on the Petition within six months of the date of filing.

According to the Petition, with the proposed Projects, APCo seeks to expand middle-mile broadband capacity in the unserved areas of Patrick, Henry, Franklin and Giles Counties. The Company states that the areas targeted by the Projects are "unserved by broadband" pursuant to Code § 56-585.1:9 D. The Company states that, for the PHF Project, the Virginia Telecommunication Initiative of the Department of Housing and Community Development ("DHCD") has issued a grant or loan roconstruct a broadband service project within the last 18 months, and the grant or loan recipient is the ISP to which the utility proposes to lease capacity. The Company further states that, for the GC Project, the DHCD has certified within the last 18 months that the designated area is unserved.

The Company states that the PHF Project entails the installation of approximately 380 miles of 288-strand fiber optic cable on the Company's distribution system, and the GC Project entails the installation of approximately 100 miles of 144-strand fiber optic cable. The Company states that these installations will also provide a communications platform for APCo's own distribution grid network backhaul requirements.

The Company states that it will lease a portion of the middle-mile broadband infrastructure to RiverStreet Networks of Virginia, the ISP selected by the counties to provide service to unserved areas in Patrick, Henry, and Franklin Counties, and a separate lease to GigaBeam Networks, LLC, as the ISP selected to provide service to unserved areas in Giles County. APCo states that the estimated capital investment for the PHF Project is approximately $5.9 million, and the estimated investment for the GC Project is approximately $12 million. APCo is not requesting cost recovery through a rate adjustment clause at this time, but expects to do so in a future filing.

Interested persons are encouraged to review the Petition and supporting documents for the details of these and other proposals

The Commission entered an Order for Notice and Hearing in this proceeding that, among other things, scheduled public hearings on APCo's Petition. it at the point of blazing guns if necessary.

Shortly after 10:00 p.m., a call came from police in Winston-Salem reporting that a car answering the description of the getaway car and bearing the same first three numbers that Mrs. Rucker had managed to see was reported stolen from the city the day before the robbery. According to witnesses, the car, after leaving Stuart, was headed south in the general direction of Lawsonville, Mt. Airy and Winston-Salem. If the car had continued south on Route 8, it would pass through Lawsonville, but if it took Route 103, it would go on to Mt. Airy, and then on to Winston-Salem.

Mays figured the man would be less likely to go toward Winston since that was where he had stolen the car. Mays told his officers that he figured the bandit had given them the slip somehow, and that he felt they could learn more by back-tracking than any other way. After back-tracking from the point where the robber's car was seen last, the deputies reached a local restaurant, about a mile from Stuart. The owner distinctly remembered that a man fitting the description given by police had spent the night there on Monday night. He further noted that he had seen the man around several times in the past four months. The Sheriff finally found someone who had spent some time with the man, whom she only knew as "Willie." She said he told her he worked in a tobacco warehouse in Winston-Salem but grew up near Floyd.

Officers decided to place a group of officers around the suspect's former boarding house on Hillsboro Street in Raleigh, because they learned that some of the suspect's things were still there. Later that same afternoon, the suspect approached the house, and the officers quickly ran toward him. The suspect dashed down the street with two FBI agents and a highway patrolman behind him and captured him after a short chase. He had $1,900 in his pocket. The suspect told police that he had won the money in a poker

The police felt his story could have been true, since $3,125 had been stolen from the bank and with police on his trail every minute he could not have been able to get rid of so much money in such a short time. However, when he was taken back to Stuart, he was positively identified by the Ruckers and eight game in Norfolk on Saturday night.

A later check at the bank disclosed that nearly a thousand dollars, at first thought missing, was safe in the vault, so nearly all the stolen money was recovered. He was found guilty and on March 7, 1944, he was sentenced to serve 30 years in the State penitentiary.

We Have a Task

By Thomas Shepherd, Stuart Methodist Church

Matthew 28:1-10

The Church has just celebrated the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, aka: Easter. Those who believe in Jesus Christ have something to celebrate – He is Alive! The tomb was empty; Jesus is alive, and he lives forevermore and one day he will return to claim his bride, the Church.

Sadly, many people in the world believe that once you die that is it. You live, you die, and that's the end! That's the way the world looks at death - dead people do not come back to life! Yet the whole Christian faith is grounded on the fact that just as Jesus rose from the dead, so too, will those who believe. So, I ask you, "Do you believe Jesus rose from the dead?" What are you doing

In Matthew 28:1-10 we find the two Mary's going to the tomb. There is an earthquake and an angel of the Lord rolls back the stone. Just a little side note here; the angel didn't have to roll away the stone so Jesus could get out but so that the Mary's could look in. We can deduct from reading the other resurrection accounts that they were going to the tomb to anoint his body. In their mind Jesus was dead and they simply wanted to perform one last act of devotion by anointing His dead body. The last thing these women expected to see that morning was an empty tomb, or an angel of the Lord, or a Living Christ! Because Jesus was dead.

Everyone who was there saw something. We are told that the soldiers became as dead men. Maybe they fainted out of fear, for the angel tells the women "Do not be afraid." The phrase "do not fear" or "have no fear" is in the scriptures some 365 times. Then the angel tells them, "I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay." The stone was rolled away so they could see that Jesus wasn't there. Then the angel tells them to, "go quickly and tell his disciples, 'He has been raised from the dead, and indeed he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him.' This is my message for you" (Matthew 28:5-7). They have a task to perform!

from the dead, then we have a task to perform! We are to go and tell! These women believed! How do we know that? We know because they met Jesus on their way to tell the others. They saw Him! They held Him! They worshiped Him! And they spoke with Him! Did the disciples believe them? Mark 16:11 says, "But when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, they would not believe it" (NRSV) and Luke 24:11 "But these words seemed to them an idle tale, and they did not believe them" (NRSV). But these women believed, and they were given a task by the angel to "go and tell" and they were given a task by Jesus to "go and tell" and they did just that. They went and they told. They weren't told to go and convince people but simply go and tell. What does Jesus expect of his followers today? Just one thing! To go and tell! Friends, if you really believe that Jesus is the Lord; if you really believe that he is the Son of God who was crucified and raised from the dead, you will tell others! Who have you told lately? We have a task to perform. It is fitting that Matthew ends his Gospel with the "Great Commission" go and tell the world. We have a task to perform, to Go and tell!

There is urgency to the task because we all need hope, even believers need hope. The good news is "Jesus is alive." So, Go and tell! If we don't go and tell, people will not hear the good news! We have a task to perform, to go and tell everyone "Jesus is alive!" There is urgency because we are not the only ones delivering a message! In verses 11-15 we find that the guards were bribed into telling a lie. That lie continues to this day. Dead people don't come back to life! The tragedy of the guards is that they knew the truth, but they didn't share the truth and started telling a lie. Don't allow that to happen to you! Because if you stop telling the truth you may begin to believe the lie! "Go and tell!"

If you really believe in the resurrection of Jesus, He expects only one thing from you: "Go and tell others!" We need to share with people that Jesus is the Savior who died for the sin of the world and was resurrected to life everlasting and that He is our only hope for salvation. So, "Go quickly and tell!" for we have a task to perform.

many "gays", but before transgender treatment was available. They were very intelligent, and very nice people. I worked with them. As I got older and learned to really look at facts rather than badly formed opinions, I learned why such occurs. I would summarize it as some males at birth actually have female brains, and some females at birth actually have male brains. Imagine the mental conflicts that can produce! But now with medications and surgery, those conflicts can be resolved, but it seems only by solving the physical attributes and not the mental ones.

I am attaching a link to one publication by the National Library of Medicine, which is a pretty good summary of the facts. There is a lot more information available, and if anyone really wants to see all the evidence just google the issue as many medical reports are available. Fact and science defeat opinions. Be glad Biden deals with facts and science rather than conspiracy theories developed by the current version of the GOP.

Societal concerns

What I write here could offend the LGBTQ/transgenderism movesome very wonderful people, and if so, I apologize; it is meant in love. However, I believe we've reached a struggling with sexual identity ispoint in our national history when sues by suggesting it's okay and some very difficult truths need discussion in the light of day. I'm referring to the LGBTQ/transgenderism movement, which is sweeping not a recipe for happiness. Tragicalacross America like a wildfire. And just like wildfire, this movement of the confusion and heartache the threatens to destroy everything in LGBTQ/transgenderism movement its path.

The LGBTQ/transgenderism movement contends that gender, the notion of biological male and female, is an artificial, fluid construct. Accordingly, one can choose from among more than a dozen gender identities, ranging from male and/ or female to "nonbinary" to "genderfluid" to "agender" (someone who claims no gender at all). Not surprisingly, a host of new pronouns have had to be devised to account for all the new categories, and in some institutions, particularly liberal universities, "misgendering" someone can get you disciplined. What a few generations ago was a simple distinction, male or female, has now become a matter of supreme confusion, and this confusion is destroying lives and our society in the process. God's Word clearly states He created only males and females, and He reserved sexual relations for biological men and biological women within the bounds of marriage. Suggesting otherwise to suit changing social morals does not alter God's will. Some activists claim that it can be "natural" for someone to be born with a gender identity different than their birth sex, but that seems neither scientifically sound nor moral, for it would suggest God can make mistakes in creating someone. Yet this is precisely what ment claims as truth. I believe we do a gross disservice to someone that they should go along with it. Doing so is counseling someone to live outside God's will, and that is ly, America's youth bear the brunt is generating. Predictably, youth who "identify" as LGBTQ/transgender are 4-times—yes, 4 times more likely to attempt suicide than their peers. Instead of affirmation of gender confusion, these youth need the overwhelming love of Jesus Christ and the transforming, healing power of God's Holy Spirit. There is no other path to true happiness and personal fulfillment.

I believe it's time America's Christians unapologetically proclaim with love and compassion the truth of God's Word where it comes to sex and gender. Our society cannot survive otherwise. Sadly, to contend—especially publicly—that the LGBTQ/transgender movement is counter to God's intentions and destroying our society is to invite an increasingly violent response. Riley Gaines, a collegiate swimmer, should know, for she was recently verbally and physically assaulted by a mob in San Francisco for speaking against biological males competing as females and changing in women's locker rooms.

Left unopposed, I fear the LGBTQ/transgender movement will alienate our youth from God and completely undermine our moral foundation, destroying America in the process.

QuickStart Tennis of Central Vir- the DPIL steering committee. It takes ginia, Inc. (QCV) reported a Dolly Parton's Imagination Library (DPIL) program is now operational in Patrick County. This most recent DPIL program resulted from a combination of our promotion efforts for this wonderful book-gifting program and collaborative efforts of the Patrick Chamber of Commerce, One Family Productions, the Stuart Rotary Club and S.T.E.P., led by Rebecca Adcock, executive director of the chamber.

"We are excited to bring this nationally acclaimed program to Patrick County to assist our future generations with literacy skills that help them have a bright future. Reading is fundamental and this program ensures kids from all backgrounds have equal access to books," Adcock said.

QCV Founder Lynda Harrill added, "This is the third new DPIL program that has launched recently. In Patrick, Rebecca and Sarah Wray, President of One Family Productions, jumped on this immediately. They found a 501(c) (3) nonprofit partner when S.T.E.P (Solutions that Empower People), the local community action program, stepped up to be the fiscal sponsor for the support of an entire community to have a strong DPIL program. They certainly have that in Patrick."

Survey finds many Americans believe farm bill passage is a matter of national security and a majority recognize the necessity of reauthorizing the 2023 Farm Bill, according to a recent poll from the American Farm Bureau Federa-

The Morning Consult survey examines the public's awareness of the farm bill, its impact and their funding priorities for it.

Passed roughly every five years, the federal farm bill covers programs such as crop insurance and support for sustainable practices for farmers, and healthy food access for low-income families.

Over half of adults surveyed said they would be more likely to support their member of Congress if they voted to reauthorize the farm bill.

"The farm bill affects all of us, and it's important that our representatives in Congress understand the importance of timely reauthorization," said Ben Rowe, national affairs coordinator for Virginia Farm Bureau

Since the passage of the 2018 Farm Bill, there has been a global pandemic that rattled supply chains, and disruptive weather events, low commodity prices and the war in Ukraine impacted global commodity mar-

"Updating the farm bill to address these issues, and issues on the horizon, is critical to the stability of the agriculture industry," Rowe said.

Nutrition and risk management programs were ranked as top funding priorities among adults surveyed.

The nutrition title contains programs such as Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, formerly known as food stamps. SNAP provided around 40.3 million people per month with resources for buying food in Americans haven't forgotten the days of empty grocery store shelves, 2018, and participation rose by 5.8 million households between 2019 and 2021, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture study.

Risk management programs such as Agriculture Risk Coverage and Price Loss Coverage are "vital to farmers being able to mitigate the volatile nature of farming," and funding for these tools will remain a priority in current farm bill discussions, Rowe said.

Eighty-four percent of surveyed adults agreed that the U.S. should consider it a matter of national security to ensure a safe and abundant food

"Food security is the foundation of national security," he explained. "Without a safe, abundant and reliable supply of food, feed and fiber, the U.S. would be reliant on foreign countries and imports and lose the ability to provide allies and those in need with food and natural resources—diminishing the reach of American diplomacy."

Almost three-quarters of adults surveyed said that if the farm bill is not reauthorized, it will have a significant impact on the country.

Rowe said the impact would be "detrimental" to farming, ending some commodity support programs while reverting others to their 1938 or 1949 permanent framework—a "clunky and costly" outcome. The handful of key programs with permanent authority, like crop insurance, would lose an opportunity to be modernized.

"The 2023 Farm Bill presents an opportunity for lawmakers to rise above partisanship and work together to pass legislation that protects food security for all Americans and the future success of our farmers," Rowe said.

Calls for pet cannabis exposure increase in Virginia, nationwide

By Mackenzie Meleski

Capital News Service

The Pet Poison Helpline reported an increase nationwide and in Virginia of calls concerning cannabis poisoning in household pets.

"We've had a really significant increase on the number of calls that we've had of exposures over the last two or three years, especially," said Dr. Rennee Schmid.

Schmid is a senior veterinary toxicologist and manager of veterinary medicine and professional services for the national Pet Poison Helpline. The 24-hour helpline is available for pet owners and veterinarians, and charges an $85 help fee. The helpline and Virginia Poison Center share some pet case statistics, according to Schmid.

Cannabis is ranked as the No. 9 toxin for pets nationwide, according to the Pet Poison Helpline website. The Pet Poison Helpline experienced a 735% increase in nationwide THC-related calls from 2018 to 2022, Schmid stated in a follow-up email. THC is the compound in cannabis which creates a "high" for the user.

Cannabis ranks as the No. 8 toxin for dogs in Virginia, according to helpline data. Chocolate is the No. 1 and No. 2 toxin for dogs and cats, respectively, according to helpline data.

The Virginia Poison Center reported an overall 286% increase in cases of pet exposure to cannabis from 2018 to 2022, according to Schmid. There was a 90.5% increase from calls made in 2021 to 2022. The helpline does not disclose raw case numbers, just percentages, because they are a privately owned company, Schmid said.

The difference between the overall national inis also sold recreationally in other states, according to Schmid. The maximum THC amount allowed by many states is higher than Virginia's allotted 10 milligrams per dose in its medical marijuana program.

"Some states just skyrocketed with the number of call differences that they have," Schmid said.

Cannabis intoxication in pets presents in a variety of ways, Schmid said. Pets can become lethargic, develop symptoms of hypothermia, low blood pressure or have a significantly low heart rate, according to Schmid. However, in some cases pets can become agitated rather than lethargic, Schmid

Most animals do not die from cannabis intoxication, but are more sensitive to THC than humans, according to Schmid. A lethal dose for pets is generally considered to be "a little over 6 grams per pound," Schmid said.

"That's a pretty high amount that they would have to be exposed to," Schmid said. "They'd have to get into a really large amount of marijuana itself or a large number of edibles."

However, "a really small amount can be quite problematic" for pets, according to Schmid.

Veterinarians treat pets for cannabis exposure by giving the animals intravenous fluids and monitoring their heart rate and blood pressure for several hours, Schmid said.

Pet owners need to keep cannabis products out of reach of their pets and smoke in areas where pets are not present, according to Schmid.

"They'll smell it; they'll be inquisitive about it," Schmid said. "Animals, they explore with their mouths, and so it's very normal for them to put something new in their mouth, taste and see what it's like."

Dr. S. Rutherford Rose is the director of the Virginia Poison Center at VCU Health.

"In general, when it comes to making sure that their pets do not accidentally consume cannabis products it is much the same as with small chillying around on counter tops or tables in the home."

The Virginia General Assembly decriminalized cannabis in 2021, which allowed adults aged 21 and older to possess up to 1 ounce of marijuana and legally grow up to four plants in their home. The legislature earlier approved a medical marijuana program, but has failed to pass legislation to create a recreational market.

The medical marijuana market continues to grow in Virginia, and dispensaries sell edible products such as THC-infused fruit-flavored gummies and chocolates. The increase in calls to pet poison control centers is due to more availability of legal products and less stigma around calling for help, Schmid said.

"Instead of them being hesitant to call and seek care for their pet, they're more open to doing that," Schmid said.

Legal cannabis sellers have made their own efforts to prevent accidental poisonings of pets and children, according to Nathaniel Blakey, the head of edible production at RVA Cannabis Co.

RVA Cannabis Co., located in Chesterfield County, packages cannabis products in childproof and pet proof packaging, according to Blakey. Certain CBD products are made for pets, but pets should never be given products containing THC, Blakey

"CBD products like treats and tinctures are great for animals in moderation for those with stress or joint issues. But even these CBD products should be stored carefully," Blakey stated in an email. "We strongly recommended to keep bagged treats out of

"People should have easy access to properly dosed edibles and be educated on what a legit product looks like," Blakey stated. "Consumers should also be educated on the fact that CBD will always be more responsible for more medicinal help and that THC is more recreational."

If pet owners think their pet has consumed cannabis products and needs medical attention, they rease and Virginia increase is because cannabis dren," Rose stated in an email. "Never leave edibles can call a local emergency veterinary clinic or the Virginia Poison Center hotline at 800-222-1222.
