Craig New Castle PSA Waterworks issues boil water notice

Bonnie Cranmer
Contributing writer

On Friday, June 28, as required by law, the Craig New Castle Public Service Authority Waterworks released the following statement.

"State Health Officials have advised us of a failure to meet the Primary Maximum Contaminant Level (PMCL) for Escherichia coli (E. coli) in accordance with the Virginia Waterworks Regulations. Water served to our customers during June 2024 did not comply with the PMCL because E. coli was detected in a sample collected from our distribution system on June 11, 2024."

"E. coli are bacteria whose presence indicates that the water may be contaminated with human or animal wastes. Human pathogens in these wastes can cause short-term effects, such as diarrhea, cramps, nausea, headaches, or other symptoms. They may pose a greater health risk for infants, young children, the elderly, and people with severely compromised immune systems. We violated the standard for E. coli, indicating the need to look for potential problems in water treatment or distribution. When this occurs, we are required to conduct a detailed assessment to identify problems and to correct any problems that are found."

General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Residents and businesses on the PSA Waterworks system are advised to boil water before use for drinking, beverage, and food preparation, brushing teeth, and making ice. While it is safe to use water when it is not ingested, care should be taken with babies and small children during bathing not to allow the water into their mouths. Bottled water is recommended if boiling water is not available.

The statement was distributed primarily on Facebook by the Craig County Virginia Sheriff's Office, Supervisor Jordan Labiosa, Craig Botetourt Electric Cooperative and concerned citizens. Several posts provided further information about an inspection expected on Friday, June 28 but no further information is available. The PSA anticipates solving the problem within 10 days of the notice. For status about the water situation, contact Donald Jones at 540-864-6368.

NOTICE TO CONSUMERS of the CRAIG-NEW CASTLE PSA WATERWORKS

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER

State Health Officials have advised us of a failure to meet the Primary Maximum Contaminant Level (PMCL) for Escherichia coli (E. coli) in accordance with the Virginia Waterworks Regulations. Water served to our customers during June 2024 did not comply with the PMCL because E. coli was detected in a sample collected from our distribution system on June 11, 2024.

E. coli are bacteria whose presence indicates that the water may be contaminated with human or animal wastes. Human pathogens in these wastes can cause short-term effects, such as diarrhea, cramps, nausea, headaches, or other symptoms. They may pose a greater health risk for infants, young children, the elderly, and people with severely compromised immune systems. We violated the standard for E. coli, indicating the need to look for potential problems in water treatment or distribution. When this occurs, we are required to conduct a detailed assessment to identify problems and to correct any problems that are found.

General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1 (800) 426-4791.

State Health Officials feel there is a need for concern about the safety of your water. Therefore, until further notice:

DO NOT DRINK TAP WATER WITHOUT BOILING IT FIRST

Bring all tap water to a rolling boil, let it boil for one minute, and let it cool before using, or use bottled water. Boiled or bottled water should be used for drinking, beverage, and food preparation, brushing teeth, and making ice. Boiling kills bacteria and other disease-causing microorganisms in the water. Boiling is the preferred method to assure that the tap water is safe to drink. Water does not need to be boiled for washing clothes, bathing, washing dishes, or other uses where water is not ingested. However, care should be taken not to allow children or infants to drink bath water or allow it to get into their mouths.

If you cannot boil your tap water:

- An alternative method of purification for residents that do not have gas or electricity available is to use liquid household bleach to disinfect water. The bleach product should be recently purchased, free of additives and scents, and should contain a hypochlorite solution of at least 5.25%. Public health officials recommend adding eight (8) drops of bleach (about 1/4 teaspoon) to each gallon of water. The water should be stirred and allowed to stand for at least 30 minutes before use.
- Water purification tablets may also be used by following the manufacturer's instructions.

CONSUMING WATER FROM WATER SOURCES OF UNTESTED AND UNKNOWN QUALITY MAY POSE A THREAT TO YOUR HEALTH.

State Health Officials will be conducting an assessment of our waterworks to determine the possible cause for the detection of E. coli in our distribution system. We will be following up with all corrective actions noted in their assessment. You will be notified of future developments.

We anticipate resolving the problem within the next ten days.

Cat People

Brian Hoffman

From the January 5, 1994 edition of The New Castle Record

The National Football League regular season is over and the playoffs are ready to begin. It's one of the most exciting times of the year for football fans.

In a couple years two more teams will be in on the action, although it's unlikely they'll make the playoffs the first year. However, when Carolina and Jacksonville join the NFL in 1995 the league is sure to realign, and that should stir things up.

I'll tell you who is all excited about the two new teams; our cat "Joker." We call him Joker because he's entirely white like Joker from Batman. He's a much more pleasant sort, however, and he enjoys lying on the couch in the den during Sunday afternoon football games. Actually, he enjoys lying on that couch in the den just about any day of the week.

Up until a month or so ago Joker had two favorite teams, the Lions and the Bengals. A Detroit-Cincinnati Super Bowl would have been the cat's pajamas, so to speak, for that little white cat.

Actually, Joker likes the Lions a little better, because they have the cool helmets with the jumping lion on the side. The Bengal helmets, or so says Joker, make the players look like Coneheads when viewed from the rear. Have you ever noticed that? He's right; I used to call Kenny Anderson, "Beldar."

Now we have two more cat teams battling for his affection, the Carolina Panthers and the Jacksonville Jaguars. A couple of pretty good names, I must say, and some pretty fine looking football helmets.

It seems like the secret to getting an NFL franchise this time was to have a cat name with a silver helmet. Maybe St. Louis would have a team right now if they had announced the team would be named the St. Louis Siamese. How about the Baltimore Bobcats?

Memphis was way off base with the Hound dogs. As far as Joker is concerned, that would have been about as popular as the University of Georgia.

I anticipate a lot of haggling when it's time to realign, as will surely be the case with two new teams. A simple solution might be to put all the cat teams together. Then you'd have the Panthers, Jaguars, Bengals, and Lions in the same division.

Of course you'll need one more team, as the league will have six divisions of five. Maybe put the Redskins in there, because that will be pretty weak division and maybe they can win a few games.

To go one more step, why don't we put all the teams in divisions by nicknames? Along with the Cats you could have an "Animal" division with the Colts, Bills, Broncos, Bears, and Rams.

How about an "Assorted Heathens" division, with all the teams taking their names from plunderers and malcontents? You could have a five-team division of Vikings, Raiders, Buccaneers, Giants, and 49ers. You might balk at the 49ers, but have you ever seen their mascot? It's a cowboy lookin' guy shootin' off guns.

A "Heroes" division would be great for the Patriots, saints, Chiefs, Cowboys, and Chargers. They're all admirable sort of nicknames.

That leave 10 teams. Four will fit perfectly in the "Birds" division; Eagles, Cardinals, Falcons, and Seahawks. Four more will go nicely in an "Industrial" division; Packers, Steelers, Oilers, and Jets.

That leaves two team, The Dolphins and the Browns. These two teams don't fit amongst any of the aforementioned, so we'll have to put one in the "Bird" division and one in the "Industrial." For the sake of keeping animals together, let's put the Dolphins with the Birds and the Browns with the Industrials.

What the heck is a Brown, anyway? Their mascot is that little guy with elf shoes, striking fear into the heart of no one. If we had a wimp division, the Browns would be there.

Next, we split up teams into NFC and AFC. That will be easy, I'll just find the three divisions with the most current NFC teams and put them together, and likewise with the AFC.

So, our new AFC will have the Industrial, Animal, and Hero Divisions. The NFC will have the Heathen, Bird, and Cat Divisions.

Having the Birds and Cats in the same conference should make for some interesting games. Likewise, if the Hero and Heathen champs meet in the Super Bowl, what a game that would be. The Patriots against the Raiders?

It's just so stupid it might work. In fact, it's no more stupid than having Phoenix in the NFC East and Atlanta in the NFC West.

And this will give Joker an entire division to cheer for. He might even root for the Redskins since I put them in the Cat division.

Aferall, who were the bigger pussycats this season?

Bossy can be paper trained as a new way of recycling

FROM THE NCR ARCHIVES

From the March 2, 27, 1994 edition of The New Castle Record.

They may not read the funnies, but dairy cows seem perfectly amenable to using newspaper as bedding in their stalls.

Recent experiments in Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania show that compared to straw, shredded newspaper keeps cows drier and saves farmers money, said Jerry Jones, Extension dairy scientist at Virginia Tech. Not only that, it provides another use for the low-grade paper that's becoming a recycling albatross.

Right now, some recycling dealers on the East Coast are paying up to $40 a ton for someone to take it off their hands, said Mike Murphy, director of the State Division of Recycling.

"There's very little market for newspaper," he said. "We're simply oversupplied." One reason for the glut, he added, is that some landfills are no longer accepting newspaper.

Newspaper that does not end up in landfills can take decades to decompose in the often-anaerobic environment. And the amount of newspaper that makes its way to such landfills is enormous.

The typical American household discards more than five pounds of newspaper a week, Murphy said. Multiply that by the approximately 88 million households in the US, and Americans are throwing away more than 440 million pounds of newsprint every seven days.

A typical dairy farm might use seven pounds per week of shredded newspaper for every cow, said Bob Appleman, an Extension dairy scientist who has conducted research on the subject at the University of Minnesota.

With 10 million dairy cows in the United States, that could add up to 60 million pounds -or a not-too-shabby 16 percent -of the newspaper.

Virginia has approximately 143,000 dairy cows, yielding a potential use of more than 1 million pounds of paper per week.

Because it is a new idea, not many dairy farmers have ventured into using newspaper as bedding, Jones said, although studies have found it to be mores absorbent than straw. It takes only about 80 percent as much newspaper to provide the same dryness as straw.

And the newspaper is extremely easy to dispose of. As it gets mixed in with manure, it simply decomposes. A farmer can spread the residual product on his fields as fertilizer, Jones said.

So, what's keeping the farmers from trying the new(s) practice? One possible hindrance is the needs to shred newspaper to the desired size.

"Straw is already baled when you buy it and sawdust is ready to use, but newspaper needs to be chopped," Jones said. "Most farmers would have to modify a conventional feed chopper to chop more finely, creating a machine that also takes some extra power to run."

Farmers may have to do a little scouting around to find a steady, reliable supply of dry newspaper. "The biggest problem is how to et hold of the stuff. I can think of various places," Jones said. "But one possibility would be a landfill looking to get rid of newspaper. I also know one farmer who was buying it from local Boy Scouts. He was paying them so much a ton, and they were collecting it on Saturdays and actually delivering it to the farm."

Finally, scientists are still looking into any possible side effects of cows eating newspaper or of any chemical residuals that end up on fields as fertilizer.

At this time, Jones said he knows of no significant problems with using newspaper as bedding.

"It's actually getting to be a problem to find conventional bedding-sawdust is in demand for particle board, and many farmers don't have access to straw," he said. "So I think we're going to see more and more interest in newspaper."

Recipe of the Week

salt and ice to freeze the ice cream base. Modern countertop ice cream makers have a 1.5 to 2 quarts insert that you freeze before churning the ice cream base. I have included the amounts for both sizes in this recipe.

Vanilla Ice Cream –1 quart, (4-6 quart)

4 cups (10 cups) half and half -Do not use fat free ½ & ½.
¾ cup (3 cups) granulated sugar
1 Tablespoon (3 tablespoons) vanilla extract

1 pinch (¼ teaspoon) salt
In a large mixing bowl, whisk together the half and half and sugar until the sugar is dissolved. Stir in a pinch of salt and the vanilla. Pour into ice cream maker and churn according to the directions of your machine. The ice cream will have a soft texture immediately after churning, similar to soft serve. It's delicious that way, but I like it even better after 2+ hours in the freezer. Use a spatula to transfer the soft ice cream from the ice cream maker into a quart-size airtight container. If you like, press a piece of plastic wrap or foil into the top of the ice cream to prevent ice crystals from forming. Freeze for at least 2 hours and for up to a month. The ice cream will be easy to scoop on the first day, but after that, you may need to let it sit at room temperature for several minutes before you scoop it. It gets firmer after more time in the freezer. Always use full fat half & half; it's the fat content that makes the ice cream creamy.

OPINION

News from the 9th:

Independence and the Ninth District

Morgan Griffith
Representative

taught Thomas Jefferson law. His name appears first among Virginia's signatures.

Carroll County's namesake, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, represented Maryland. He was the only Roman Catholic signer and the last survivor among the fifty-six, living until 1832.

In 1785, Virginia gave birth to Franklin County. Honoring one of the most famous Founding Fathers, Benjamin Franklin was a renowned intellectual respected in the United States and the Western World.

The Declaration was a big step, but some had demanded independence before 1776. One of the boldest was Patrick Henry, who famously declared before the Second Virginia Convention, "Give me liberty or give me death!" He has two county names honoring him: Patrick and Henry. For a time, Henry resided in Leatherwood, Henry County.

To make independence real, it needed more than the Declaration. It needed individuals who were willing to fight and, if necessary, die for the cause. Two such patriots are honored in our area by county names. Richard Montgomery led the invasion of Canada and died at the Battle of Quebec in 1775.

Casimir Pulaski was a Polish count. Like the French-born Marquis de Lafayette and the Prussian Baron von Steuben, Pulaski was a European nobleman who was drawn to the American cause. As he wrote to George Washington, "I came here, where freedom is being defended, to serve it, and to live or die for it." Pulaski fell at the Battle of Savannah in 1779.

William Grayson also fought in the war, serving as an aide to Washington and rising to colonel, but he survived the war to become one of Virginia's first U.S. senators, and now has Grayson County named in his memory.

Furthermore, the City of Martinsville was founded by Brigadier General Joseph Martin who contributed to American Revolutionary battles at Kings Mountain and Cowpens.

Russell County was named for William Russell, but which one, the father or the son? Both were soldiers of the Revolution. The elder Russell's service included Point Pleasant, when frontiersmen led by Andrew Lewis defeated Shawnee Chief Cornstalk and helped clear the way for Daniel Boone and others to settle beyond the Appalachians.

William Russell's son was one of the Overmountain Men, frontiersmen who rallied from hundreds of miles away to fight the British. Their victory at Kings Mountain helped turn the tide of the war in the South. The Abingdon Muster Grounds, where 400 of the militiamen began their journey, marks the northern trailhead of the Overmountain Victory National Historic Trail.

Then there is Washington County. George Washington led the Continental Army to victory against the powerful British Empire. That victory led to a sense of liberty in the colonies and in 1782, the Village of Liberty (now known as the Town of Bedford) was formed.

Later, Washington served as president of the Constitutional Convention and subsequently as our first president under the new Constitution. After two terms, he returned home. Truly, Washington was:

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

That description came from Washington's colleague Henry "Light-Horse Harry" Lee, who, sure enough, is the namesake of Lee County.

In Southwest Virginia, we are proud of our patriotic heritage. The names of the fifty-six signers of the Declaration, the other statesmen who worked for independence, and the soldiers who fought for it hold an honored place in our memory. But their legacy consists of more than names in history books or on maps. It is found in our democratic republic, in the freedoms we enjoy, and the great nation we have become.

You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association.
