Kids get creative at Green Bank Library

Suzanne Stewart
Staff Writer

There are a lot of fun things to do at our local libraries and, now, on Wednesday afternoons, youngsters in the Green Bank area can take part in a creative writing workshop led by Ned Dougherty.

The workshop began its second year last Wednesday with a small group of eager writers, who were ready to let their creative side shine.

The workshop kicked off with Dougherty's prompt of an Ode to Pocahontas County. The young writers put their thoughts about living in the county into poetry form.

While Dougherty is used to working with teens and adults, he said the younger group has really shown a knack for writing.

"I'm used to teaching older students, like high school – it's my background," he said. "Usually the creative writing workshops I've done in the past are for older folks, but these guys are pretty young. It's a lot of fun. They're very sharp."

Dougherty developed the Ode prompt as something he could adapt to classes of all ages and all communities. He used it with the Green Bank youngsters as well as with a group in Highland County.

"I wanted to do something that I could do anywhere in

AFTER A SHORT winter break, Ned Dougherty's creative writing workshop picked back up last Wednesday at Green Bank Library. The group of young writers, shown here with their group poem "O Pocahontas," are learning poetry and short story writing skills that have expanded their creativity. any zip code," he said. "I wanted to find out how the kids liked living in Pocahontas County and what made them proud about where they live. They're still pretty young, so they're not too jaded about things. I found that creating an Ode to Pocahontas really got them excited to think about the positive things in the neighborhood and their families and communities, and the events we have and the traditions they're a part of."

"That was an 'ah ha' moment for me," he continued. "I thought if this is connecting with nine year olds, I wonder what it would be like to do the same with some older folks, and they loved it. I feel like I can do this all over Appalachia at a time I feel like people could really use some reflection and community building around communication and celebration of who we are."

It went so well with both groups, he is presenting it at the Appalachian Studies Conference at Western Carolina University, where he will display work from the Green Bank group.

"They're excited I'm bringing their work to Western Carolina and sharing it," Dougherty said. "It's going to be on display in the workshop room, and I'm going to talk about them and kind of gas up my little guys."

The Ode prompt is just the beginning for the Green Bank writers. They will be discovering all kinds of creative writing and learn to hone their writing skills.

Some kids have even gotten into writing chapter stories on their own time and bringing them to the class.

Pocahontas IGA Owner is 'IGA USA Retailer of the Year'

The Independent Grocers Alliance has announced Rob Hilleary, owner of Pocahontas IGA in Marlinton, as an IGA USA Retailer of the Year.

The Retailer of the Year awards are the highest honors IGA bestows upon its retailer members. They are presented annually to grocers who have best provided leadership and excellence in their communities.

Hilleary stands out for his remarkable investment in transforming the store since acquiring it January 1, 2021. Previously the store manager, Hilleary's initiatives have brought a fresh and modern appeal to the establishment.

The revitalization journey began with new vinyl flooring. This aesthetic upgrade set the tone for further improvements, including a new décor package and restroom renovation to align with contemporary standards.

A new POS system and self-checkout have boosted operational efficiency, and Hilleary plans to upgrade old, refrigerated cases throughout the store to energy efficient models.

Get your groom on at Tails A' Waggin

Laura Dean Bennett
Staff Writer

Donna Nash, the owner of Tails A' Waggin" dog grooming business, and her family may be new to Pocahontas County, but they are quickly tucking into the community and making it their home.

They lived in North Carolina for 24 years before making the big move to Pocahontas County.

Nash grew up on a small farm in Neffsville, Pennsylvania.

Her family had horses and a rescued Collie dog named Whiskey.

She was a member of the local 4-H Horse and Pony Club and competed in Western and English riding until she was 18.

She played saxophone in school, so when Nash joined the Air Force in 1980, she auditioned for the Air Force band in Biloxi, Mississippi.

"I played in the Air Force band for almost four years, two in Biloxi and two at Ramstein Air Base in Germany," Nash said. "The Air Force Band of Europe was one of the highlights of my life."

"When my former husband was diagnosed with cancer, we moved to Madison, Wisconsin, to be with his family. When he recovered, I made the decision to become a dog groomer," she concluded.

Nash had been a professional dog groomer for 35 years, when they decided to make the move to West Virginia.

Why did they decide to move to West Virginia?

They wanted to be closer to her parents, who live in the Lititz/East Petersburg area of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. They are also close with their young godchildren who live in North Carolina.

To make it easier for visiting both, they wanted to find someplace central between North Carolina and Pennsylvania. And here's West Virginia, practically equidistant between the two locations.

"We were looking for a place big enough for our family," she said. "Something with a garage and a few acres."

"Yes, I thought I was retiring back then," she said, chuckling.

"I was considering retiring so I could pursue charitable work through our ministry and volunteer with local community charitable organizations."

Walker charged with first degree murder

Jaynell Graham
Editor

An incident Monday evening, February 12, in the parking lot of the Little General convenience store in Marlinton led to the apprehension and arrest of 23 year old Mason Slava Walker, of Hillsboro. Walker has been charged with first degree murder.

According to the criminal complaint, filed in Magistrate Cynthia Broce-Kelley's court Tuesday morning, dispatch received two 911 calls around 9:30 p.m., each reporting a shooting at Little General. The callers also advised that a female had been shot and the male shooter had left the area, traveling north on Route 219.

Sgt. M. M. Massie, of the West Virginia State Police-Marlinton Detachment, responded.

Sgt. Massie arrived on the scene as EMS personnel removed the female from a vehicle.

A witness at the scene identified his son, Mason Walker, as the shooter.

Walker and the victim, identified as Camie Rider, lived in the same household and had a two year old child together.

Information about the suspect and the description of his vehicle were relayed to 911, and responding law enforcement was advised that the child might be in the vehicle.

However, Corporal D. M. Brock and Trooper J. A. Peete located the unattended child at the couple's shared residence.

Troopers with the West Virginia State Police – Elkins Detachment located the vehicle, executed a traffic stop in Valley Head and found a Cobra Arms, model CLB38, that contained two fired cartridges, inside.

Sgt. Massie spoke with eight other witnesses who saw or heard the shooting take place. He also secured footage from the Town of Marlinton's camera at the intersection of Rts. 219 and 39.

According to Sgt. Massie, the video showed Mason Walker pull into the parking lot, into the space next to the vehicle occupied by Camie Rider. The video also showed Walker pointing his arm toward the driver's side front window, and the muzzle flash. After a short pause, Walker pointed his arm toward the window again and another muzzle flash was observed.

Camie Rider was transported to Pocahontas Memorial Hospital, where she was pronounced dead at 11:22 p.m.

Mason Walker is being held without bond in the Tug Valley Regional Jail. The matter remains under investigation by the West Virginia State Police.

Circuit Court

The following hearings were recently held in Pocahontas County Circuit Court:

Shawn Barb, 34, of Hillsboro, appeared by video from St. Mary's Correctional Center for his arraignment hearing wherein he pleaded not guilty to the charges in the indictment in case No. 2023-F-32. Barb was indicted by the December 2023 Grand Jury on one count, entry of a building other than a dwelling, a felony; one count, petit larceny, a misdemeanor.

A change of plea hearing was held in the case the State vs Shawn Barb, 34, of Hillsboro. Barb appeared by video from St. Mary's Correctional Center. He pleaded guilty in case No. 22-F-25 to Count II, receiving or transferring stolen property, a felony; and to Count V, petit larceny, a misdemeanor; to Count VI, destruction of property, a misdemeanor; to Count VII, receiving or transferring stolen property, a felony. In exchange, the state agreed to dismiss Counts I, III and IV in case No. 22-F-25 and will dismiss case No. 23-F-32 in its entirety containing the counts of entry of a building other than a dwelling and petit larceny. Due to corrections to be done in the written plea agreement, the remainder of the plea will be held February 13.

A hearing was held in the case the State vs Andrew Baybutt, 50, of Mechanicsville, Virginia, wherein defense council brought forth his motion to withdraw as counsel for the defendant. The defendant objected to the motion. Counsel related that the relationship and communication between counsel and the defendant had been compromised. The court granted the motion to withdraw. Baybutt said he will retain counsel. The Court will allow until March 20 for new counsel to make a notice of appearance. Baybutt was indicted by the December 2022 Grand Jury on two counts, sexual abuse by a parent of a child, a felony; two counts, sexual abuse in the first degree, a felony.

In person sentencing was held in the case the State vs William Scott, 63, of Marlinton, wherein defense counsel asked that sentencing in this matter run concurrent with the sentence already being served regarding charges in Nicholas County. The State objected and asked that the sentences run consecutive due to findings in the pre-sentence investigation report. The Court accepted the findings, and Scott will receive no credit for time served from Nicholas County. This court sentenced Scott to not less than one year nor more than five years in the state penitentiary. Upon completion of sentence including parole, the defendant will be subject to supervision for 50 years with terms and conditions.

Scott pleaded guilty in October 2023 as to Kennedy v Frazier to new felony information filed that day for one count of sexual assault in the third degree, a felony. Scott was remanded to custody.

The court denied a defense motion to sever trials for each victim in the case the State vs Franklin Cook, 65, of Caldwell. The State asked for 30 days to respond to a motion for additional discovery. Cook waived his right to trial by jury and asked that the sentences be run consecutive to each other.

New and Fascinating Science Updates – Part Two Brain food ~ Lion's Mane Mushroom

Zhejiang Province, China 1988

The “barefoot” doctor was actually barefoot. He unrolled a rectangular piece of leather at the foot of my bed; I didn’t recognize his instruments as anything vaguely medical. There was something that looked like a plumb bob, except it was very sharp on the pointed end. In addition to a wooden mortar and pestle, the practitioner had various seeds, nuts, plants, dried mushrooms and insects in small glass vials.

I sat on the edge of the bed, hot with fever and barely able to sit up straight as this man wearing Maoist-era blue slacks and shirt arranged his equipment. I had no idea what would happen, yet I had faith that even if his treatment was ineffective, it would pose no real hazard to my health.

After all, this gentleman was an herbal practitioner; no harm intended, no harm done. Could I be wrong in my doubts about the medicinal efficacy of herbs and mushrooms? I carried away from my experience in China the newfound belief that there are forms of effective medicine other than Western medicine.

The barefoot doctor added baijiu, a potent rice liquor, to several botanicals that he pulverized with the pestle; the result was a thick, black, tarry substance. After requesting hot tea from my host/savior, I swallowed the bitter medicine with an Oo-long chaser.

I suspected I had some form of food poisoning after accepting and eating some grapes given to me by a young lad; he had likely washed the fruit in the river. I had broken the cardinal rule of visitors who travel abroad to only drink water boiled to kill pathogens.

The doctor had me sit on the edge of the bed, leaning out over a large ceramic basin, and used the “plumb bob” to draw blood from select locations on my neck, head and wrists. He kept his eyes on the blood dripping into the vessel, and at some specific volume, he applied another gooey botanical substance that acted as a coagulant; the bloodletting stopped within seconds.

To my amazement, I started feeling much better within a few hours. Was this simply a placebo effect, or had the ailment merely run its course? It didn’t feel that way, but at this point in my life, I wasn’t completely sold on the efficacy of foraged plants and mushrooms in treating anything serious. I regarded herbal treatments as mostly snake oil, potions, magic elixirs and old wives’ tales.

P.C. Alert: I probably should have said “aging women’s unsubstantiated claims.” I wouldn’t want to offend any old wives out there.

“Herbs have affinities for certain phases of wound healing and different types of wounds. They can accelerate the process of healing beyond what people would imagine.” Matthew Wood

For years afterward, I regretted not knowing the identity of the botanicals used in my treatment. But my eyes were now open to the possibilities of nature-based medicines.

Many of us are reasonably skeptical of supplements and herbal remedies, and with good reason. They are not controlled or tested by the FDA and are often touted by the manufacturers as cures for everything from asthma to cancer.

In an earlier article, we explored research demonstrating that non-human primates use plants and insects to relieve pain and hasten the healing of wounds. That being the case, we can safely assume that all or most Hominidae were using certain species of flora and fauna to treat various injuries and discomfort.

In many articles about medicinal plants and mushrooms, the authors state something to the effect that “People have been using herbal remedies for centuries.” Aye, but a more accurate timespan is in thousands of years.

The Paleo-American who sat on a log and knapped an exquisite Clovis spear point over 12,000 years ago was most certainly practicing herbal and homeopathic medicine. We find many unexpected forms of technologies in ancient Homo sapiens and Neanderthal cultures. Neither species were mindless grunting brutes, contrary to popular belief.

You may remember when climbers found the frozen mummy, Otzi, in the Italian/Austrian Alps in 1991. He had carried a leather medicine bag containing a mushroom called birch polypore, used to treat whipworm and mitigate the effects of Lyme Disease.

Also found in Otzi’s pouch were sloe berries from the European blackthorn used as a health supplement that, in modern jargon, would be called a “superfood” due to its anti-inflammatory properties.

The Chinese were the first known civilization to document medical treatment methods over 3,000 years ago during the Zhou Dynasty. And one of these natural pharmaceuticals was a beautiful mushroom called lion’s mane.

The lion’s mane and its close relatives have caught the attention of neuroscientists in Australia and South Korea. And this is the new and promising research we will be delving into shortly.

Opry Night featuring Mary Sue and Mike Burns with Old-time Festival Friends

Pocahontas County Opera House is thrilled to announce its highly anticipated annual Opry Night featuring Mary Sue and Mike Burns with Old-time Festival Friends, February 17, 7:30 p.m. The evening is set to feature the finest local and regional talent in old-time music as they recreate beloved favorites with unique twists.

Leading the dynamic ensemble are locals Mike and Mary Sue Burns, revered musicians hailing from Pocahontas County, and members of the popular band Juanita Fireball and the Continental Drifters.

Joining the Burns on the Opera House stage will be the music duo of Rick and Joanne Davidson, from Lewisville, North Carolina. With a rich history spanning several old-time mountain music bands, they currently share the stage as part of the group Appalachian Thunder.

Also gracing the Opry Night line-up are respected musical partners Andy and Toni Williams. With roots dating back to The Plank Road String Band and the New Plank Road, they continue to revitalize the music scene from their home base in Lexington, Virginia.

Rounding out this assembly of talent is Chris McGrath, a talented old-time fiddle and banjo performer who, after perfecting his craft in New England and Ireland, has made significant contributions to the music community of Virginia.

For the first time, this group of talented musicians, who have shared stages at numerous festival sessions, will come together as a single ensemble on the Pocahontas County Opera House stage. Adding a new note to our Opry Night tradition, the evening promises to be an unforgettable display of regional talent and the very best of Old-Time Music.

The Opera House welcomes all audiences, offering an informal and family-friendly environment accessible to individuals with disabilities. Special accommodations can be arranged upon request. Seating is on a first-come, first-served basis, so attendees are encouraged to secure their ad-

This performance is a must-see event at the Pocahontas County Opera House. Tickets are priced at $10 for adults, and admission is free for those aged 17 and younger. Tickets can be obtained via the 4th Avenue Gallery in Marlinton, pocahontasoperahouse.org or at the venue on the evening of the performance.

Marlinton Mayor's Corner

By Sam Felton

Fake news is real. Fake products are all around us.

This week's Mayor's Corner is my humble attempt to save you, your business, and the city unnecessary aggravation, time and resources that can be better spent in other ways.

Flushable wipes will wipe. Flushable wipes will flush. But, should they be flushed after wiping?

This is the question here and unless you just don't care about stopped up commodes and spending money to repair clogged pipes, the answer is NO.

Note: My son, the plumber, will say I'm costing him business.

But, let me say again. Think before you flush flushable wipes.

Flushable wipes are marketed in a variety of ways, such as "septic-safe," "breaks down like toilet paper," and "safe for sewer and septic." The problem is that they appear to take longer, much longer, to break down when compared to traditional toilet paper, and, as a result, cause major blockages in sewer systems.

To say otherwise is fake news.

The problem is not an uncommon one, and it happened again this past weekend.

Don't be fooled by those products labeled as "flushable" — they are not compatible with sewer systems, the material can damage and cause backups to your home, business and community service.

These products' labels indicate they are safe for sewers and septic systems. In addition to wipes, there are also other cleaning products that are labeled as "flushable" which may go down the toilet, but they are not breaking down sufficiently. Time and again this leads to clogged pipes and jammed pumps in sewer systems across our Town and the country.

What flushables do make it through the system and lift station pumps, to the treatment lagoons, finally clog up Bar-Screens there. If you ever want to see the process of a cleanup there — just call for an appointment.

Finally, consider this. Sewer backups can be a threat to public health and they present a challenge to our water utilities by diverting resources away from the essential work being done to treat and manage our waste-water.

Disinfecting wipes, baby wipes and paper towels and a whole list of others, should NEVER be flushed.

So, while the temptation might be there to treat and dispose of these the same way as toilet paper, you should not flush disposable wipes into your septic or sewer system.

Think — before you flush. Sam

Kenneth Ervine

Kenneth Myrl Ervine, 89, of Marlinton, went home to be with the Lord Sunday, February 4, 2024.

Born September 28, 1934, in Whitesville, he was a son of the late Grady Myrl (Slim) Ervine and Delta Anita (Jab) Foster Ervine.

Kenneth attended WVU then served for three years in the U.S. Army where he competed on the pistol team. He returned to Marlinton and ran the Marlinton Cleaners and Highlander Center Laundromat until 1996; then served as the Superintendent of the Pocahontas Country Club for numerous years; and finally, ran a successful Dixie Chopper business from 2005 until 2017.

In his younger years, Kenneth enjoyed hunting, fishing and playing golf. He loved Marlinton and Pocahontas County and his favorite pastime in later years was sitting in local restaurants or the IGA where he could converse and visit with the staff as well as the patrons. He really enjoyed spending time and sharing stories with people.

He is survived by his wife, Joan Wimer Ervine; son, Shawn Ervine (Melissa); daughter, Jan Ervine Jones (Mark); grandchildren Jessica Ervine, Carlie Ervine, Max Ervine, Derek Jones (Samantha), Alex Jones (Cydney), Sara Simmons (Stephen), Allison Vance (Matt); four great-grandchildren; and his faithful dog, Ringer.

There will be a Celebration of Life service at a later date.

John Gore

John Howard Gore, most beloved father, husband, caring friend and therapist to many, passed away Wednesday, February 7, 2024, at Ruby Memorial Hospital with his family and dear friends by his side.

John was the most protective and loving father to his two children. Always mindful of their education and always making sure, through many stories from his own youth and throughout his life, his children understood the value of strong morals, humility, hard work, and never giving up. One of his most important lessons being to always remember there are consequences to our actions. He made sure his children knew, even though grown, they always had a warm, loving home to which they could always return.

John put effort and pride into his home in Hillsboro that he shared with his wife, Patty. Loving to spend warm days mowing his lawn, planting trees, doing many projects outside, and also making sure their many pets were well tended and happy.

John grew up in Logan County, where he first developed his love of the outdoors. He would recount stories of long days spent wandering the woods as a child. He was an excellent marksman, but his soft heart usually won out over his love of the hunt as he cared so much for the beauty of all animals. He ultimately preferred taking pictures of nature and portraits of those he loved. Both his children have fond memories of being outdoors with their father and some eventful, and not so successful, fishing adventures. He also enjoyed walking along the Greenbrier River Trail when his children were young and skipping rocks, tubing down the river, and watching his dogs splash in the water. As his son developed an interest in golf, John dabbled as well, and was able to share a round or two with his son-in-law, who also loves the sport.

He was, after all, a poet at heart. He would sometimes indulge this talent, but also being a very private man, only his closest loved ones had the privilege to read his writings and poems. John was best able to convey his quiet faith when communing with God's creation and imparting hard-earned and important life lessons to his children. He looked forward to family vacations each year, especially to the beach, where he could relax in the sun and enjoy being near the ocean and his family. Celebrating Christmas and ringing in the New Year were the highlights of the year as holidays in Hillsboro were filled with love, warmth, family games, so many gifts, and all of his favorite holiday meals prepared by Patty.

John was blessed with many gifts and accomplished so much in his close to 80 years of life. John graduated from Chapmanville High and served his country and was an Air Force veteran. He went on to become a proud graduate of Marshall University earning a Bachelor of Science Degree in Psychology and then Master's Degree in Counseling and Rehab. He also earned an MBA from Averett University later in life, again demonstrating the value he placed on education.

John worked in the mental health field in so many capacities throughout his long – more than 55-year – career, making a huge impact in the State of West Virginia. Early in his career, he taught Psychology at Bluefield State College and gained experience out of state in Ashland, Kentucky, while working for Lansdowne Mental Health as a Director. John was also the Director of Mental Health with Seneca for both Pocahontas and Greenbrier counties, at one time, simultaneously. He oversaw many important projects that bettered the lives of West Virginians, even traveling to New York City and Greece to present innovative mental health projects in West Virginia on a global stage. John counseled adults and children as well as those in the prison population. He retired from Seneca Health Services just last year.

His career brought him many joys. The greatest being his wife of more than 30 years. Patty and John met through their shared mental health careers and were never far from one another since that first meeting. They were able to share a rare and deep bond of marriage and career and, before John retired, shared offices only a few feet from one another.

Many in the communities of Marlinton, Hillsboro and Lewisburg will miss and remember John. He was active in the Kiwanis club in his younger years and would enjoy working the hot dog stand (with his daughter as his sidekick) during Pioneer Days. He also enjoyed watching her hunt Easter eggs during their community Easter egg hunt. Many fond memories were made and will be so very cherished.

John is survived by his devoted wife, Patty; his son, Jonathan Jacobey Gore (3rd yr. student at WVU School of Dentistry); daughter and son-in-law, Kristy and Nate Meadows, of Fairmont; former wife, Carolyn Frankhouser, of Kingwood; and many cousins, including, Sherry Church and Karen Wheeler, of Salem, Ohio, and Anita Farley, Judy Conley and JoAnn Gore, of Chapmanville, Jackie Swilley, of Everett, Washington, and all of their families; father-in-law, Jake Thompson, of Durbin; and sister-in-law, Amy Thompson, of Green Bank, and her family.

Funeral service was held Sunday, February 11, 2024, at Wallace and Wallace Funeral Home in Arbovale with Rev. Steve Meadows officiating. Burial, with honors conducted by the Pocahontas County Veterans Honor Corps, was in the Arbovale Cemetery Annex.

We will always love you, Dad, and we know you knew that. Thank you for your example, guidance and love. These gifts will be with us and comfort us all, and we know you will be with us forever and continue to guide us. We are so grateful, and we have faith we will be together again.

VOTE May 14 MARK THOMPSON MAGISTRATE - Pocahontas County

But God works in mysterious ways.

"We put an offer on a house in Hillsboro, and it was accepted.

"But wouldn't you know it, the day before closing, the owners cancelled the deal," Nash recalled.

"We were broken-hearted because by that time – it was March 2023 – we'd completely fallen in love with Pocahontas County.

"It already felt like this was meant to be our home," she insisted.

Let me say it again. God works in mysterious ways.

In getting to know their banker, Bill Jordon at Citizens Bank, Nash's dog grooming background came up.

Bill told them there wasn't a professional dog grooming business in the county and that maybe that would be a good business idea for Nash – and he wasn't the only one.

"In several conversations with various local residents, I kept hearing that Pocahontas County desperately needed a groomer," Nash said.

They told their realtor to expand his search for a property where they could have a grooming business a home.

"When our realtor called us about another house, we made a spur of the moment trip to Marlinton and came to look at this place, here on Brown's Creek Road. And we knew we were home."

It was just right, except it did need a lot of work.

"We set right to work on fixing things up," she said. "It took three and a half months to make the house livable and get the other building ready for the dog grooming business.

"We worked every day from sunup to sundown. Our neighbors, Dave and Pam Sharpes, who know a little something about hard work themselves, said they never saw anybody work so hard!"

Nash's typical day starts early.

"I get up around 4:40 in the morning, and first have my morning devotions and Bible study."

"Then I take care of my family and our two dogs."

Where did the grooming start?

After graduating from a four-month training program at a grooming school called Nash Academy (no relation) of Animal Arts in Lexington, Kentucky, Nash started grooming for a veterinarian.

"From there, I had a high-top van customized as a small grooming shop on wheels and traveled to people's homes," Nash said.

"When the van went to heaven, I opened my own shop in Lexington near the grooming school."

It wasn't long before Nash was winning awards at grooming competitions in Lexington, Dallas and Chicago. She took second place in an international competition in Secaucus, New Jersey.

Good professional grooming takes experience and patience.

"The first couple of times I groom a dog, I like to take time to get to know him or her," Nash said. "It's not a good idea to rush the process.

"We work so much better together when the dog knows it can trust me."

"A small dog may take an hour to an hour and a half. A medium-size may take up to two hours. Larger breeds, depending on the amount of coat may take two or three hours," Donna explained.

Nash's full-service groom includes ear plucking and cleaning, nail trimming, a sanitary trim (the belly and under the tail), anal glands expressed (if needed and requested by the owner), a bath, blow dry, and a full haircut.

"I don't offer teeth cleaning, but if I smell exceptionally bad breath, I look at their teeth and gums and report what I see to the owner," Nash explained.

"On shedding dogs, we do what's called a 'De-shed, bath and brush.'

No-shedding dogs get a basic style and a utility cut.

The style of the trim is also a factor.

"The priciest type of cuts are the pattern cuts that are done on Poodles," Nash said.

"We can do a 'scissor trim' on cross breeds like Golden-Doodles and Labra-Doodles.

"Hand-scissoring really sets a grooming style apart, though it can get a bit pricey," she added.

Nash suggests starting a puppy's grooming education at about 12 weeks of age.

"I encourage early and frequent visits so puppies can be handled properly and exposed to everything about the grooming experience," she said.

"I charge very little for puppy trims, and I don't charge anything for visits."

That also goes for a dog experiencing anxiety about grooming.

"It's well worth it to be patient with a dog so it can enjoy stress-free grooming," Nash insisted.

Beyond the obvious, there are many benefits to professional grooming.

Owners see their pets every day and may overlook subtle physical changes.

But good dog groomers are trained to look for and feel for abnormalities in a dog's coat, skin, ears and mouths.

"I will do nail trims only and have run specials on that – typical pricing for nail trimming is $7 to $15.

"I've also cut toenails on rabbits, birds and Guinea pigs. And I'd consider grooming other pets, within reason, but I don't groom cats because I'm allergic.

"When they leave our care, I want the dogs to be happy so when they return, they'll want to come running in."

"I make it a point to make friends with the dogs and with their humans, too," she concluded.

Nash's dog grooming business doesn't just help take care of her family, it also helps fund God's work.

She's a Christian who feels strongly about practicing her faith through generosity to those in need.

"A portion of the proceeds generated by the grooming business is given back to the community as various needs are brought to our attention," she said.

After what she describes as a life-changing trip to Uganda, Donna founded a Christian outreach ministry in 2005.

Since then, the 501(c)(3) non-profit organization called Open Door Missions International has been supporting widows and orphans in Uganda as well as those in need in the Nash's local communities.

"We aren't currently affiliated with other churches or organizations," she continued. "We get in touch with the local organizations who can tell us who needs help."

"When we moved to Pocahontas County, the Family Resource Network was looking for assistance in their upcoming events. I called and got connected with them so that we could help."

"We love what they are doing for the community and have donated to them."

"We were privileged to participate in the Veterans luncheon last year," Nash said, smiling.

"What a great event."

"It gave us the opportunity to see the wonderful work of the Pocahontas County Veterans Honor Corps, the Marlinton Woman's Club and other community organizations. We also got to meet so many Pocahontas County veterans."

"When we get a bit more settled here at home, we're looking forward to being more active in the community," Nash said.

Tails A' Waggin' has been steadily busy since they opened their doors just a few months ago. Right now, they're booked up about two weeks in advance.

Appointments are required and grooming hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday through Thursday, unless special arrangements are made.

Donna donates Tails A' Waggin' gift certificates for raffles and silent auctions for fundraising events.

Tails A' Waggin' is located at 3044 Brown's Creek Road (Route 28). Call the shop number, 304-799-7277, for an appointment.

"When they leave our care, I want the dogs to be happy so when they return, they'll want to come running in."

"I make it a point to make friends with the dogs and with their humans, too," she concluded.

"When we moved to Pocahontas County, the Family Resource Network was looking for assistance in their upcoming events. I called and got connected with them so that we could help."

"We were privileged to participate in the Veterans luncheon last year," Nash said, smiling.

"It gave us the opportunity to see the wonderful work of the Pocahontas County Veterans Honor Corps, the Marlinton Woman's Club and other community organizations. We also got to meet so many Pocahontas County veterans."

Appointments are required and grooming hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday through Thursday, unless special arrangements are made.

Nash's dog grooming business doesn't just help take care of her family, it also helps fund God's work.

She's a Christian who feels strongly about practicing her faith through generosity to those in need.

"A portion of the proceeds generated by the grooming business is given back to the community as various needs are brought to our attention," she said.

After what she describes as a life-changing trip to Uganda, Donna founded a Christian outreach ministry in 2005.

Some years ago, a little Pocahontas boy in the free school was learning to spell. He pronounced the letters, g-l-a-s-s, but had no idea what that combination was called. The teacher, to help him, suggested: "What do they put in the window at home?"

"Pap's old britches!" replied the pupil.

This is what we call a reasonable anecdote.

COLD WEATHER NOTES

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind. Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky," says Shakespeare, and he must have had in mind such weather as we have known the past week or so. The oldest inhabitants remember such weather in 1857, 1867 and 1886.

The weather began to be unusual Sunday, the 5th. Then people woke up to find that snow had fallen very unexpectedly during the night. Monday, a snow fell to the depth of 11 inches, damp clinging snow that melted as it fell in sections whose altitude was less than that of Pocahontas. The snow clung to the trees, and the air in a few days became cold and damp.

Wednesday night was very cold, but Thursday night the thermometer went the lowest for many years. It ranged in Pocahontas from 21 to 30 degrees below zero...

The phones, which used the wet battery, were frozen up, and the bells gave forth a most melancholy squeak for half a day. Business was suspended and everybody went to getting wood....This cold finds all the weak places in the armor and in a man's castle. We have not heard of anyone in our county but who is well provided for in the way of shelter, good sustaining food and clothes. The weather is hard on the doctor, the sick and the mail boys.

The mail had a hard time last Monday. The winds were drifting the snow and the roads were very heavy. The mail left Renick's Valley about 7 p.m. There were eight bags of mail on one horse, the aggregate weight of which was 200 pounds. It reached here at 1 a.m. in the night. The mail boy did not go to bed, but sat by his fire awhile, and then started back.

The weather bureau registered the lowest temperature in West Virginia ever recorded. The records extend over thirty years....

Forty years from now, this storm will be remembered as an old-time spell of weather such as will come no more forever.

SUDEN DEATH

Our whole community was thrilled with sad surprise last Wednesday, by the unexpected death of Mrs. M. P. Slaven, relict of the late Randolph Slaven, of Huntersville, in the 68th year of her age. During the day she seemed unusually well and had partaken of a hearty dinner. Late in the afternoon she had gone to the woodshed to feed her chickens and was found in a sitting posture with a half shelled ear of corn in her lap. When her little granddaughter, Mamie, came to her, she tried to speak, but expired almost immediately thereafter....

The interment took place on Sunday last at Huntersville where, notwithstanding the almost unprecedented severity of the weather, a large concourse of sympathetic friends followed her to her last resting place....

We know of no one who has made herself more necessary to her loved ones or who will be more sincerely missed and mourned by her large circle of friends.... One always felt that it needed but Grandma Slaven's presence to make all seem homelike and comfortable....

Memorial services will be held next Sunday at Marlinton.

THE CONCORD HYMN

Sung at the completion of the Concord Monument April 19, 1836.

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,

Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,

Here once the embattled farmers stood

And fired the shot heard round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept;

Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;

And Time the ruined bridge has swept

Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream

We set today a votive stone,

That memory may their deed redeem

When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

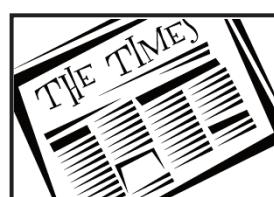

Spirit that made those heroes dare

To die, or leave their children free,

Bid time and nature gently spare

The shaft we raise to them and thee.

Donkey Basketball

America's craziest and most unpredictable sport – Donkey Basketball – will be featured at the High School Gym February 16, 1974. The teams will be made up of the Faculty vs Famous Citizens of Pocahontas County.

The old saying, "stubborn as a mule," will be exemplified when the local riders match wits with the donkeys. The odds are that in most cases the donkeys will win...

There will be plenty of laughs for the entire family during the fun-filled evening. Every shot at the basket must be taken while sitting on the donkey....

Only 1,500 tickets will be sold, and the high school teachers are anticipating another big victory over the Citizens again this year.

Some of the teachers on the High School team include Kenny Vance, Quentin Stewart, Joe Jones, Elmer Friel, Arch Wooddell, Charles Fauber, Steve Barkdale, Glen Wade, David Hutsenpillar, Dolan Irvine, Raymond Tracy and Captain Skeeter Workman.

Captain of the Noted Citizens this year is Dr. Ernie Shaw. Other renowned Citizens include Eugene Simons, Larry Plyler, Merl Mullenax, Ivan Withers, Bill White, Buck Moore, Charles Young, Phillip Cain, Steve Hunter, Jerry Buzzard, Tom Plumley and others.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Sharp, of Buckeye, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Wanda, to Ralph L. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hamilton, of Huntersville.

FIELD NOTES

One day last week, Waldo Buzzard was out in Buckley Mountain for to try out his good hound dog on a wild cat or a fox. Before long, he jumped a big bear. He got a couple off-hand shots, but to no effect. The dog took no interest whatsoever in bear chasing.

Friend James Workman was up from Burnside last Wednesday. A wrenched back and rheumatism is bothering him some, so he did not follow beaver trapping this season. However, he did take a ramble over into Oldham Run country. He checked up on the thriving beaver colonies on Oldham Run. Around a beaver dam was fresh sign of a big bear, which was rambling the winter through. This bear had been living on apples.

Elmer Workman and family were up last week from their new home in Greensboro, North Carolina. He very kindly remembered me with a long leaf pine seedling, for to plant in sandy soil. This I did in the hope it would take root and thrive. I know this is entirely too far north to expect anything to come of such an experiment.

The long leaf pine is one of the finest trees of America. Tall and symmetrical, it is a beautiful tree and a fast grower. Lumber and turpentine are its products.

Milburn Sharp makes report that he saw where a big fox had caught and killed what might have been the last rabbit on Buck's Mountain.

Worse news than the catching of a rabbit – even the last one – comes from Buck's Mountain. One day last week, the big tracks of a bear were seen in the mud at the McCollum place. He was headed for the flock of sheep belonging to Elmer Sharp.

There is a ewe missing from the flock. This bear has been

FARMING FOR BETTER LIVING

The Monongahela Power Company has issued a little book of the 1948 regional winners in the Upper Monongahela Valley's Farming for Better Living competition.

The top farm family in this contest in Pocahontas County is that of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Barlow, of Marlinton.

Although milk production is the principal enterprise on the Barlow farm, the farm program operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ward R. Barlow was in the opinion of the county council, of sufficient excellence to win them first place in Pocahontas county. From twelve dairy cows, in their herd and an additional two bought during the year, Mr. Barlow sold 17,581 pounds of grade A milk and 156 pints of cream. From a flock of laying hens, they sold 136 dozen eggs."

While Dougherty says he doesn't want to stifle their creativity, he does keep the workshop writing to shorter stories and poems because it enables him to give feedback faster.

"I want to ignite that love of writing and stoke those flames, but I also want to do justice to what I can do with them," he said. "If I just have them produce work that's not setting them up for maybe pursuing writing as a lifelong thing or maybe a professional thing, or get attracted to the teaching profession—I want to be able to actually show them how to make small things better or make small changes work."

Dougherty honed his love of writing outside of Philadelphia where he grew up and in Maryland where he earned his degree. He lived in New Mexico and taught high school there for 15 years before moving to Green Bank. Dougherty is a playwright and has had several plays developed for stage at the Greenbrier Valley Theatre, Alchemical Studios in New York City and AboutFACE Theatre in Dublin, Ireland.

right to a speedy trial. Cook was indicted on three counts, sexual abuse in the first degree; two counts, sexual abuse by a custodian of a child; and three counts, sexual assault in the first degree.

In person sentencing was held in the case the State vs Christopher Gibson, 47, of Buckeye, wherein the defendant was sentenced to not less than one year nor more than five years and will be permitted to serve his sentence on monitored home confinement with normal terms and conditions, and special terms that he complete an outpatient substance abuse program and participate in sex offender education, as well. Gibson will be required to make regular child support payments and will pay home confinement fees on a sliding fee scale according to his work. He was given 44 days' credit for time served. Another person is on home confinement in the same home, so Gibson will have until February 12 to be hooked up on home confinement at another location unless the other individual moves out of the home.

Jury trial is set for March 28 in the case the State vs David W. Mace, 38, of Marlinton and an inmate in the Tygart Valley Regional Jail. A three-day trial had originally been scheduled for November 7. Mace was indicted on three counts, strangulation; and two counts, wanton endangerment involving a firearm.

In the case the State vs Jacob Bing, 39, of Marlinton, the defendant tendered a written plea agreement to the court wherein he agreed to plead guilty to two counts of the felony offense of burglary. In the course of giving the plea, Bing indicated that he would like to talk with his family first. The remainder of the plea is set for February 15. Bing was indicted on one count, grand larceny; two counts, burglary; one count, entry of a building other than a dwelling; one count, destruction of property; and one count, trespassing.

workable plan to turn that building into a museum or find another practical use for it. The UPCC plans to hold a meeting at Durbin Library February 13 to discuss the matter.

There was an update about the courthouse security measures scheduled to take place in a month or two. After it goes into effect, the public will only be able to enter the courthouse through the basement door to the right of the main entrance, and will have to go through metal detector and X-Ray screening. The equipment is already in place and they only have to hire guards. Employees will have key cards to enable them to continue to use other doors which will have electronic locks.

In other matters, the commission:

- signed off on the Local Emergency Planning Committee's Award.

- approved $126,575.81 budget amendment and a draw down Request from the ARC Broadband Grant.

But first, an introduction to the lion's mane, known by mycologists as Hericium erinaceum, aka satyr's beard, pom pom mushroom, and monkey head, as it's called in Asia.

Lion's mane is principally found on broad-leaved tree species such as beech, oak and maple. In Pocahontas County, I start looking for lion's mane in late summer and early fall. The young mushrooms are snow white and delicious. The long icicle-like teeth give it an uncanny resemblance to a cheerleader's pom pom.

I went through a half-dozen or so books and guides on mushrooms to prepare for this article, including The Fungal Pharmacy, published in 2011. Most mention that lion's mane mushrooms are good for brain health, although, until recently there was little scientific research on the claim's veracity.

Was this belief of earlier cultures based on empirical evidence? Was this pharmacological knowledge passed down from generation to generation? The Chinese have documented herbal remedies for several millennia, so there must have been some form of data collection on medical successes.

Moreover, recent research on this fungal brain food suggests that as a septuagenarian with concerns about dementia, I may never forget my secret honey spots for lion's mane.

How can that be, you ask?

Recent research (ongoing) on mice at the University of Queensland in Australia and South Korea resulted in smarter mice when fed compounds found in lion's mane mushrooms. The primary neurotrophic compounds, such as hericenones and erinacines, can cross the blood-brain barrier.

The blood-brain barrier creates a wall that prevents pathogens from entering the brain through the bloodstream. Unfortunately, the BBB also prevents the delivery of many neurotherapeutics to the brain. This barrier is estimated to exclude all large-molecule neurotherapeutics and 98 percent of small-molecule drugs from passing through the BBB.

The great news about the active compound in lion's mane is that it not only penetrates the BBB but also dramatically affects the growth rate of dendrites and speeds up the development of new neural pathways.

In mice, this translates to getting through novel mazes faster than the control group and greater recognition of new items in their environment.

Moreover, recent research on this fungal brain food suggests that as a septuagenarian with concerns about dementia, I may never forget my secret honey spots for lion's mane.

South Korea has begun controlled studies on humans to see if the results are the same or similar to that of studies with mice. If human studies demonstrate significant memory improvement, it may greatly impact treating Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia.

There is a growing interest in forest farming here in Pocahontas County. We are blessed with numerous wild plants and mushrooms that could be cultivated for food and medicine.

If the human-based research on lion's mane shows promise, entrepreneurs may have opportunities to cultivate lion's mane for an industry likely to grow exponentially.

In the next episode of For Your Consideration, we'll use archaeology as a scientific tool to answer the question: were ancient women hunters as skilled as the men?

If you believe that The Flintstones accurately depicted life in the Stone Age, you may get the shock of your life.
