Brock selected for North/South game

Suzanne Stewart
Staff Writer

Ten days before the West Virginia North/South soccer game – a game where the best high school soccer players from around the state are selected to play – Pocahontas County High School senior Trenton Brock received notice that he was among those selected for the South team.

“The selection is based on your overall athletic performance throughout the year and the competition level you bring to the game,” Brock said.

Prior to this honor, Brock was named to the All-Conference first team, All Region first team and All State second team. He was one of three Single A players to be selected for the prestigious North/South game.

An athlete for all seasons – participating in soccer, basketball and track – Brock was ready to finish his soccer career in high school – until he played in the North/South game November 24 at Glenville State University.

“It was an amazing opportunity,” he said. “It opened my eyes a lot because now I want to play soccer in college. I’m going to try out for a couple college soccer teams.”

“It’s completely different than playing high school soccer,” he added about the North/South game. “It was crazy. It was like watching a college game.”

The players don’t get a chance to practice together before the game, so it could have been difficult to find a groove as a team, but Brock said the team worked well together.

“We might not have known each other beforehand, but as soon as we got up there and started playing, we just clicked,” he said.

The South team was winning during the first two quarters, and the game was tied in the third, but the North team pulled out ahead in the fourth, ending the game with a loss for the South.

But winning wasn’t important. It was getting to play a game on that level.

Countdown to Christmas at Cass

Suzanne Stewart
Staff Writer

The three weekends before Christmas at Cass Scenic Railroad State Park are packed like Santa’s gift bag. The celebration kicks off Saturday, December 7, at 5:15 p.m. with the annual lighting of the community Christmas tree at the community center.

This year, the towering 24-foot tree was graciously donated by Green Bank resident Bob Vance and is the tallest tree to ever grace the town’s Christmas season.

“It was a very kind offering, and we gratefully accepted it,” activity co-coordinator Kim Dilts said.

After the lighting, visitors can make their way to the Cass Company Store where they can visit with Santa Claus and give him their wish lists.

By 7 p.m., it will be time to return to the community center for the annual square dance with music provided by Juanita Fireball and the Continental Drifters. Calling the dance will be Eugene and Ellen Ratcliffe, who make it easy for first timers to join the old pros on the dance floor.

“They make it really understandable for people who have never really done it before,” Dilts said. “They do all of our dances, and it’s always such a good time.”

The second weekend of celebration will feature the Holiday Craft Market Saturday, December 14, at the community center, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Artisans, crafters and chefs will have gifts for everyone on your list – as well as one or two for yourself.

The third and final weekend before Christmas will start with the second annual Christmas Cookie Bake-off, Saturday, December 21, followed by Bingo at the community center.

Bakers of all ages are encouraged to enter the bake-off and show off their sweet concoctions. The deadline to enter is Sunday, December 9.

In addition to the Saturday events, you are invited to a special brunch with Santa at 11 a.m. Sundays, December 8, 15 and 22.

For more information on the Christmas at Cass schedule, visit facebook.com/cassscenicrr or call 304-456-4300.

A Community Christmas in Dunmore

Suzanne Stewart
Staff Writer

With Christmas just around the corner, the Seneca Woodlands Women’s Club wanted to do something special for the communities it serves, so the club has organized a Community Christmas at the Dunmore Community Center.

The event will take place Saturday, December 21, from 4 to 6 p.m. and feature fun activities, games, food and a special program with the Amazing Ellie – a certified service dog.

“We’re going to have musical chairs and we’re going to play a few Christmas songs with the kids,” Tammy Hively said. “We’ve got little books that we’re going to give them when they win.”

Across from the musical chairs arena will be an area set up for the Amazing Ellie to perform and read Christmas books to the kids with her handler Donna Dombek.

Dombek and Ellie will share Ellie’s amazing journey to become a service dog and the many tricks and services she can perform.

There will also be stations for cookie decorating and crafts.

“Ellie made paw prints on Christmas trees and the hats of the snowmen, so they can decorate those,” Hively said.

While the children are playing and crafting, the adults can enter the Ugly Sweater Contest in the hope of winning gift cards from local businesses.

As Dombek and Ellie gather everyone together to read a Christmas book, a special guest will catch Ellie’s attention, and she will escort him to a chair next to a Christmas tree so he can meet with the children.

“Santa has gifts he will be handing out,” Hively said. “Parents can get pictures with Santa and Ellie, but we won’t have a photographer. They can bring their own cameras.”

It will be an evening chock full of Christmas cheer and fun for families, and it’s free.

“Hopefully it’s the beginning of something we can continue for years,” Hively said.

In addition to the Seneca Woodlands Women’s Club, the event was made possible with the help of Mountain State Cakes, The Mountain Shop, Pocahontas IGA and Dollar General.

THE AMAZING ELLIE – a certified service dog – will be at the Dunmore Community Center Saturday, December 21, for a Community Christmas celebration.

Capitol Christmas tree harvested at Watoga

This year's Joyful Night celebration was held Wednesday on the South Steps of the West Virginia State Capitol in Charleston.

The focal point of this year's festivities was the lighting of the State Christmas Tree, a 54-foot Norway Spruce specially harvested from Watoga State Park in Pocahontas County. The West Virginia Division of Forestry, the General Services Division, and the West Virginia Division of Highways all participated in the cutting, transporting, and positioning of the tree. "Our Joyful Night celebration has always been a highlight of the holiday season for Cathy and me," Gov. Justice said. "For the past eight years, it's been an incredible honor to kick off the holidays with our extended West Virginia family."

MTC sets special meeting to discuss issue at Diane Apartments

Suzanne Stewart
Staff Writer

At Monday night's Marlinton Town Council meeting, a concerned citizen addressed council during the hear callers' portion of the meeting.

Diane Apartment resident Jerry Wallace said he had several questions he thought Mayor Sam Felton could answer.

Wallace asked the mayor about an incident that occurred at Diane Apartments in mid-November and about the legality of how the town responded to the situation.

Felton explained that the issue was not on the agenda, but it did need to be discussed further by council, so a special meeting was scheduled for Monday, December 9, at 4:15 p.m.

Wallace also shared his concern about the apartment building and its certification of inspection. Felton answered that the town went without a building inspector for a time, but now there is one who is trying to rectify the situation and inspect all the buildings in town.

After he asked his questions, Wallace moved around the room, taking photos and video of council and was told by an audience member he did not have permission to take her photo. He said he did because it was a public space and a public meeting.

This led to a brief argument and Felton asked Wallace to leave the meeting.

In business:

Felton reported that the town had leftover Dramas, Fairs and Festivals funding which it used to buy a large, lighted picture frame as a Christmas decoration. The frame will be installed near the Peacock building where people can have their pictures taken.

The frame will be moved to Discovery Junction for the Christmas celebration that will take place Friday, December 6.

Those who use the frame are asked to post the photos with the hashtag Christmas InMarlinton.

Council discussed cemetery fees and was asked to consider a rate increase for opening and closing plots. Council will return to the discussion at the next meeting.

In other matters, council approved:

- the third and final reading of changes to the garbage fee ordinance.

- the second reading of an ordinance to establish minimum setback requirements.

- the first reading of revisions to the ordinance to implement a municipal sales and service tax and a municipal use tax.

Marlinton Town Council meets the first Monday of each month, excluding holidays, at 7 p.m. in the town office auditorium. The public is welcome to attend in person or online through a Zoom link.

West Virginia Makes Leadership Change in Football Program

Michael Fragale
WVU Today

West Virginia University Vice President and Director of Athletics Wren Baker announced Sunday that he has made a change in the leadership of the Mountaineer Football program, with Neal Brown's tenure concluding after six seasons.

"Coach Brown is a great person, and he has served as a tremendous ambassador for West Virginia University," Baker said. "He led our storied program with class and integrity and always put in the hard work necessary to allow for success. We are grateful to Neal, his wife, Brooke, and their children for their contributions to our University, community and state, and we wish them the very best in their next endeavor."

Brown concludes his West Virginia tenure with a 37-35 overall record. With WVU earning a bowl berth this season, Brown's Mountaineer teams will have competed in four bowl games in his six years, including victories in the Liberty and

WHY JOHNNY CAN'T READ

and what you can do about it

RUDOLF FLESCH

USE THIS BOOK TO TEACH YOUR CHILD TO READ IN SIX WEEKS

Library Lines

by Joe Miller,
Director of Development

It seems like I've been hearing "kids these days can't read anymore" pretty much all of my life.

But it turns out that the trend is even older than that. Rudolf Fleisch's bestselling book, Why Johnny Can't Read, turns 70 next month.

In practice, kids read at about the same level they have for a couple of generations. Reading proficiency is normally measured by a test called the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), which was first introduced in 1969. Back then, the average reading score was 208. It was 215 in 2022.

Catherine Snow, a professor of cognition and education at Harvard, told Vox that scores "haven't plummeted. They didn't even plummet during COVID. They dropped a little bit."

To be sure, those scores aren't fantastic. NAEP reading scores are measured on a scale of 0-500. Snow describes reading scores as "a very stable level of mediocrity."

But while today's kids can read just about as well as ever, they don't read as much as they used to.

NAEP says that in 1984, around 35% of eighth graders reported reading for fun almost every day. By last year, that figure had dropped to just 13%.

Reading longer texts—books, in other words—helps kids develop crucial skills like critical thinking and information literacy, that is, their ability to recognize legitimate sources of information. We're seeing that play out now—eighth grade scores on information literacy declined from 2018 to 2023.

Kids in Pocahontas County aren't immune to these trends. Across the five branches of the Pocahontas County libraries, our programs for children (readers under 12 years old) drew more than 6,500 participants. By contrast, only around 220 people attended one of our young adult programs—aimed at readers between ages 12 and 18.

While eighth graders in Pocahontas County score about as well as their peers across the state, NAEP's Nation's Report Card shows that West Virginia's eighth graders, as a whole, lag around 10 points below the national average.

We're looking to reverse both of these trends.

In December, we're piloting a new book club for middle school students. We'll be reading Hello, Universe—the 2018 winner of the Newberry Award, then getting together at the McClintic and Hillsboro libraries to discuss the book.

But it's more than just your typical sit-around-and-talk-books book club.

"It's kind of a performing arts and literary club," says librarian Margaret Worth, who is heading up the new program.

"The group will read a section of the book aloud, then focus on creating art pieces to reflect the day's reading," Margaret explained.

On Tuesdays, Margaret will meet students at Hillsboro Elementary after the buses from Marlinton drop them off. They'll then walk over to the library together.

On Thursdays, kids can meet Margaret at the Wellness Center in Marlinton after dismissal for a short walk to the library.

If you are a middle school reader, then, first—good for you for reading the newspaper! Keep that up! And, also, join us at book club.

If you know a middle school reader who could use some practice reading long texts—and the evidence suggests that most middle school readers fall into that category—then send them our way.

Marlinton Mayor's Corner

By Sam Felton

In spite of unforeseen situations (that I would love to share), problems (I hope to forget), set-backs (that are routine), plus election day, Veterans Day, and two and a half days off for the Thanksgiving Holiday, (compliments of Governor Justice), November was an active and productive month.

Certain letters of support went out on behalf of other businesses and organizations within the county. The Letters of Support will play into an upcoming grant opportunity. I hope to be able to share more at a later date.

The first weekend of the month the Pocahontas County Saddle Club hosted its last rodeo of the season at the arena on Second Avenue in Marlinton. The two-day event had a great turn-out. It looks like the events are drawing more participants and spectators each time. Economic Development comes in many shapes and forms.

Josh Sharp spent a couple of hours with Lauren Bennett and Tim Henry at the Overlook Trail Observation Deck, clearing out a second viewshed. The goal is to not cut any more trees than we see Mayor's pg 12

Letters to the Editor

Madam Editor,

The lead article on page one of the Thanksgiving week issue of the TIMES is titled "Grow Your Own taking root at PCHS" "Grow Your Own" is a program in which high school students, who want to become teachers, start their college courses in high school which, in turn, leads to them graduating college with a Bachelor's Degree in two to two-and-a-half years".

The first question that occurs is "Does compressing an educational program into a shorter period of time guarantee quality results? Teaching young people is not the same as processing vegetables; speed does not necessarily result in quality results."

And a more important question is: Does producing new teachers on a speeded-up timetable directly lead to those youngsters becoming part of a long term answer to our state's chronic teacher shortage?

I would submit that it will not. Until we raise teachers' salaries up to the level of surrounding states and provide a competitive benefit package (Hello, PEIA rate hikes!), young teachers will stay home for a year or two and then jump ship for a state where teachers are more respected and more fairly compensated.

Report on County Commission Meeting Viewed as a Humor Column ~

I was away for Thanksgiving but, upon my return, I began perusing The Pocahontas Times which arrived in my absence. I was reading what I thought was perhaps a story about Bill Lepp telling a shaggy dog story at a liar's contest. Then I realized I was reading Tim Walker's report on the County Commission's recent meeting which described a burlesque show of three comedy acts – all presented spontaneously and without rehearsal.

In the first skit, Walt Helmick, playing the straight man, insisted on purchasing a piece of property next to the courthouse, not for the purpose of building an annex building but so that a future county commission would have the option of doing so – because he has run out of time – or possibly building a parking lot. Regardless, after spending $85,000 for no specific purpose, the county commission would assume responsibility for demolishing an unusable house on the newly acquired property. Walt had a second vote to carry the motion while Jamie Walker bit his tongue waiting for things to change in January.

Hilarious.
Next up was a quick joke about asking the acting prosecuting attorney – with only a month to go in her tenure – to prepare lease agreements for haymaking rights at the East Fork property owned by the county that will satisfy the issues among several competing parties, despite the fact that the commission

Obituaries

Robert Crist

Robert Allen "Bob" Crist, of Henrico, Virginia, formerly of Arbovale, peacefully passed away Saturday, November 23, 2024, at home after a long, courageous battle with pancreatic cancer. He was surrounded by his loved ones.

Bob was a graduate of Marshall University. He worked for William Byrd Press/Cadmus/Cenvo for many years.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Harold and Betty Ruth Crist.

He is survived by the love of his life of 54 years, Cathy; his children, Matt (Christina), Brad (Jill) and Staci (Mark); seven grandchildren, Sydney (Ian), Cooper, Ryan, Heidi, Nolan, Andrew and Rylee (Mitchell), three great-grandchildren, Milo, Lottie and Sterling, and one on the way; siblings, Michael Crist, Renae Wooddell (Rick), Betty Ann Doyle, Anita Watson and Melinda Wallace (Dillard); and a host of nieces and nephews.

Bob was a devoted husband, father, "BobBob," brother and friend. He will be greatly missed by so many.

Visitation will be held Sunday, December 8, 2024, from noon to 4 p.m. at Bliley's Funeral Home, Staples Mill location, 8510 Staples Mill Road, Richmond, VA.

Another visitation in Arbovale will be planned in the Spring; details to be provided at a later date.

Helen Loman

Helen Tracy Loman, 94, of Fredericksburg, Texas, went home to be with her Lord Wednesday, November 27, 2024.

Born July 27, 1930, at the home of her maternal grandparents, Samuel and Ida Smith Moore, in Hosterman, she was a daughter of the late Glenn Parker Tracy and Vera "Bly" Moore Tracy.

Helen and her sister, Marian, grew up on the Tracy farm and attended Kerr Memorial Methodist Church in Boyer. She was active in youth activities and 4-H and attended Green Bank School High School where she was an excellent student and played trumpet in the band.

Helen met her first husband, John Jones, while both were attending West Virginia University. They had two

Redeeming the Time

by Dawn Reed

I often think of things I wish I had done with my mom. (Trying not to cry as I write.) We had lots of plans – to do together. There wasn't a plan for her not to be here.

In 2019, we were on a movie jag. My 79-year-old mother hadn't been to the movies in decades, but Downtown Abbey came to the big screen. We bought our tickets in advance and saw it four times. We took selfies and giggled as we ate popcorn. Then Harriet came out. I've been a huge Harriet Tubman fan for years. We saw it twice. Little Women was next. Before all that, we went to the ARK Encounter with my sisters. Thanksgiving was delicious and Christmas was great. The year 2019 was the best!

Early in 2020, COVID was just beginning to sweep through the land. My mom had what she thought was a respiratory infection. To our dismay, she passed unexpectedly one Saturday morning. Knowing she went straight to heaven, we were still shocked, absolutely stunned. We realize now it was COVID.

While I have so many good memories, there are times when my heart aches at what I wish we had done. I thought we had so much more time.

Reading Kyle Idleman's "When Your Way Isn't Working," he mentions Martha in Luke 10:38-42.

Martha was hustling and bustling around the kitchen while her sister, Mary, sat at Jesus' feet, listening and soaking up His presence and every word. She became so frustrated at her sister's lack of help that she marched right up to Jesus and demanded that He straighten Mary out. Not sure if you've ever had your apron in a wad like Martha, but the frustration is real. Been there myself.

The World's Greatest Gift

by R.A. Mathews

It was a bitterly cold winter night. I didn't care. I'd had a really discouraging day and wanted to go for a long drive.

This was December of 2020, the first year of the coronavirus in the United States.

When I stopped at a street-light, I saw a young man sitting on the corner. He didn't have a sign seeking help. He just sat there.

"Are you hungry?" I asked, rolling down my window. "If I get you something, will you eat it?"

I had stopped on what was usually a busy thoroughfare, but it was late and there was no traffic. I waited and finally nodded.

Minutes later, I returned with hot chili and a sandwich, but he was gone. That's when I noticed an old man with a homeless sign on a different corner.

Had he been there before?

I turned into a gas station across from him, opened my car door, and set the bags on the street corner. Customers pumping fuel eyed me – confused. They hadn't seen him on the other side of that three-lane boulevard.

But the old man knew what was what. He started across the street, and I quickly closed my door. In truth, it was probably midnight, and I was afraid he might hurt me.

I drove out the other side of the gas station and went on my way.

I hadn't planned on doing anything for anyone that night. I was so filled with my own pain. But that awful freezing weather moved me. I knew a person had to be hungry to stand out there.

As I drove away, the darkness inside me lifted – replaced with Light and happiness. I have great memories of being with my mom and feeding people like him.

Don't misunderstand me. That year, 2020, was terribly hard, and people had nothing to give.

Even wealthy people didn't escape the rampage of the coronavirus. We all knew someone who had been hospitalized or had died.

The struggle in this country continues with a rough economy. So, I'm not suggesting that you add to the burden that you carry. Don't offer a random act of kindness.

Home for the Holidays: A time for celebration and reflection on the well-being of aging loved ones

Bridging Resources West Virginia can help you get the answers you need to find support for your loved ones during the upcoming holiday season. As the holiday season approaches, many of us eagerly anticipate the joy of reuniting with family and friends. Traveling home can be exciting, especially if you don't spend much time together throughout the year. However, for those visiting aging parents or grandparents, the holidays may look a bit different this year.

It's not uncommon to notice changes in your loved ones' living conditions or health that may have occurred over the past year, or even a few months. As you spend time with them, consider these signs that may indicate they need additional support:

1. Financial Management: Are there piles of unopened mail or "past due" notices?

2. Home Maintenance: Look around the house, both inside and out. Is the home well-maintained? Are dishes piling up in the sink? Are there broken items that haven't been fixed?

3. Medication Management: Check for unused or missing medications. Are they taking their prescriptions as directed? Do they have the financial means to afford their medications?

4. Mobility Concerns: Observe their movement. Are they shuffling when they walk? Are they able to navigate stairs safely?

5. Cognitive concerns: Are they having difficulty following or maintaining a conversation? Are they forgetting directions or wandering? These concerns are more than normal aging and forgetfulness that naturally can happen over time.

6. Social Interaction: As we age, our social circles often shrink. Notice any signs of isolation or depression. Are they bathing daily, wearing clean clothes, and maintaining personal hygiene? How much social interaction do they have with others?

7. Nutrition: What's in the refrigerator or pantry? Are they eating well? Aging adults may cut back on groceries when faced with the choice between food and medication.

8. Driving Safety: If your parents drive, take a walk around the vehicle. Do you see any new dents or dings? Take a drive with them to assess their driving abilities.

9. Home Safety: Do they need any additional equipment, such as grab bars in the shower, a shower chair, or a wheelchair ramp, to remain safe at home?

If you notice any of these signs, it's important to start a conversation this holiday season.

Addressing these concerns early can help ensure your loved ones receive the care and support they need to maintain their health, safety, and independence.

Learn more at br-wv.org or call 866-981-2372.

Start the conversation this holiday season. It may be the most important gift you give.

B. J. Gudmundsson, Preservation Officer

Winterburn Presbyterian Church – circa 1909

The Winterburn Presbyterian Church was built by George Craig and Sons Lumber Company and given to the people of Winterburn "to own and to operate." It was dedicated September 15, 1907. The Winterburn Chapter No. 319 of I.O.O.F. (Independent Order of Odd Fellows) used the second story as a meeting place. In 1918, the lumber operation finished, the mill went out, and the church was torn down. Winterburn is located five miles east of Durbin near Thornwood on the East Fork of the Greenbrier River. ### BIG FIRE

On Thursday afternoon, the big sawmill of W. W. Harper and Son on Stamping Creek was destroyed by fire. Sparks from the engine or sawdust burner set the planing mill shavings on fire. A heavy wind was blowing, and the mill was completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $20,000. There was no insurance.

Prompt and effective response for help on the part of farmers and men from the Federal Prison under Superintendent Thieman kept the fire out of the yards where a half million feet of lumber was on sticks.

PROFITABLE EWE

Edray — Clarence L. Barlow is one farmer who keeps books on his sheep, and the report of one ewe is a bit surprising. This year the income from this ewe amounted to $84.29. To begin with, this sheep clipped six pounds of wool. Selling through the pool, it brought 53 cents per pound, for a total of $3.18. Then this fall, the three lambs this ewe raised averaged better than 100 pounds each to sell at 24 cents for a total of $81.11. This is a western range ewe. Three other ewes in Mr. Barlow's flock of nearly forty sheep raised triplets this season.

SEEBERT NEWS

There will be a Guess Social given at the home of Mrs. Eddie Washington at Seebert December 16. There will be three prizes given. Benefit for the Pleasant Green Choir. Sponsored by Eddie Washington and Lucille Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones and son, Macon, of Clifton Forge, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rose and Sallie, of Webster Springs, were here last week to see M. B. Jones, who is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Earle Slaven.

FIELD NOTES

Ellis Grimes, of Waynesboro, sends in the picture and newspaper story of the killing of a timber wolf in Augusta county near Staunton November 27. The varmint was killed by Clarence Eddy, a farmer, almost within the city limits. He saw his sheep running in the early morning. He took his gun and went out to see what the trouble might be and saw a wolf attacking his sheep.

Well placed bullets put it out of commission. It had killed nine sheep for Mr. Eddy and two for a neighbor, Houston I. Todd. The animal was identified as a timber wolf, a male of about 30 pounds in weight.

The hair was the color of broom sage; its head was flat, and its molars were so broad they appeared like two sets of teeth. It is anybody's guess from whence came this wolf. About ten years ago, a timber wolf was killed in Bath county, and some years later a coyote was killed in Pocahontas county.

BIRTHS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Fountain Hill, of Dunmore, a daughter, Brenda Joyce.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Denton Sharp, a son, Thomas Dale.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. James Judy, a daughter, Sandra Kay.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Julian Virgil Shrader, of Huntersville, a daughter, Donna Marie.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George Earl McNeil, of Renick, a daughter, Brenda Kay.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bruffey, of Hillsboro, a son, John Gerald.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Randolph Bostic, of Marlinton, a daughter, Ann Randolph.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Bruffey, a son, Patrick Rupert.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kelley, of Minnehaha Springs, a daughter, Eileen Kay.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Everett McLaughlin, a daughter, Alice Jane.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wimer, of Hillsboro, a daughter Mildred Dianne.

DIED

Okey Lewis Kennison, aged 70 years, of Hillsboro died December 4, 1949. Funeral service was held from the Hillsboro Methodist church with burial in the family plot in Oak Grove Cemetery.

The deceased was a son of the late D. C. and Rebecca Lewis Kennison.

He never married.

hammer striking something, was discharged. The thumb on one hand was blown off, a deep wound in one leg and eighteen shot in the breast were the more serious results.

The young man was given first aid by his companions and his father, Dr. H. W. McNeel, was called. He was brought to the Marlinton Hospital, and he is making a good recovery.

ABOUT THE COUNTRY

Talbott Waugh is a farmer after my own heart.

Eleven years ago, he bought some wood and brush land on the Drinnen Ridge from the Campbell Lumber Company. This land lies in a short grass section. There were a lot of folk who thought here was an industrious, well-meaning man who in this enthusiasm to own land was committing himself to a life sentence at hard labor and short rations. Just another case of working for nothing and boarding himself. The best they could see for Mr. Waugh was a modest home from where he could go out to public works.

About ten years ago, Mr. Waugh cleared away enough of the trees and brush for a house seat. His friend and neighbor hauled the lumber and had difficulty finding enough space to put the material and turn his team to get the wagon out again. Today, there are more than thirty acres of fields and meadows without a stump, and, in addition, cutover pastureland to keep four cows...

PARIS D. YEAGER

Paris D. Yeager was born at Bartow February 23, 1878, and died at Clifton Forge, Virginia, November 26, 1924, in the 47th year of his life. He was the youngest son of the late Henry A. Yeager.

Quoad hoc taurum jaclo! As this account is to be about the University, I thought that a little homemade Latin might make it look a little more classy.

I have just returned from the place where the ideas sprout umbrageous on the Monongahela River. Every now and then I visit the lower levels. So, I dropped the half-dressed hide and let my business slide, and went down stream like a sucker to join in the football madness of the Thanksgiving season.

And those who have not seen Morgantown during Thanksgiving week do not realize the possibilities of West Virginians in the whirl. They swarm to the city for the annual contest between the fighting Presbyterians from Washington and Jefferson college north of the Mason and Dixon Line and the Mountaineers playing for the university. Within the last year, a great stadium has been built. A place to play games in. The kind of a place that the ancient Romans built to satisfy the popular clamor for free bread and free shows. A valley was taken for the purpose. The stream was covered over. The sides of the valley were built out of concrete. Fifty thousand persons can watch from these high serial lookouts. Mountain, valley and stream have been covered with the works.

In ancient times, when Falling Run was out of town, there were two homes on the run. On the bank of the little stream was a shoemaker and, on the height above, a minister. They were both aged men and there sprung up between them a deadly hate and they exchanged defiant words such as: "I can look down on you in your ignorance with contempt!"

And the reply: "And I can look up and see your dirt encrusted hide."

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Alfred McNeel, aged 18 years, accidentally shot himself last Friday morning. He was out with a party of other boys at the Harper place east of Hillsboro and was standing on a stump with his hand on the muzzle of his gun. The gun slipped and the thumb on one hand was blown off, a deep wound in one leg and eighteen shot in the breast were the more serious results.

The young man was given first aid by his companions and his father, Dr. H. W. McNeel, was called. He was brought to the Marlinton Hospital, and he is making a good recovery.

Eleven years ago, he bought some wood and brush land on the Drinnen Ridge from the Campbell Lumber Company. This land lies in a short grass section. There were a lot of folk who thought here was an industrious, well-meaning man who in this enthusiasm to own land was committing himself to a life sentence at hard labor and short rations. Just another case of working for nothing and boarding himself. The best they could see for Mr. Waugh was a modest home from where he could go out to public works.

About ten years ago, Mr. Waugh cleared away enough of the trees and brush for a house seat. His friend and neighbor hauled the lumber and had difficulty finding enough space to put the material and turn his team to get the wagon out again. Today,

Jane Price Sharp, Editor

Thursday,

The number of deer killed in Pocahontas last week was about 1,069, which is about the same as the first week's count of last year.

Mrs. Nowlin Sheets reported the biggest deer they checked was a 14-point buck, killed by Mrs. Lyle Campbell, of Marlinton.

Beverage's Store said the extra big one they checked was a deer killed by Earl Beverage, of Clover Lick. It had an extra big rack, 10 points, and weighed 165 pounds dressed. Matheny's checked another 14-point buck and Marion's Country Market did also, but they didn't have the people's names.

Kermit Friel kept a Saw-Whet Owl alive for several days after it flew into the side of his car. He hopes to have it mounted. This small, eight-inch owl has a little round head and nests in hollow trees or deserted squirrel or woodpecker holes. It sleeps so soundly; the book says it can hardly be aroused in the daytime. This is a little south of its breeding area but it goes southward in bad weather.

FIRE

A big fire in Summersville Wednesday destroyed several buildings housing Harold's Hardware Store, Elizabeth's Shop and others. Damage was estimated at $1,500,000. Fred Burns, Jr., Johnnie Nelson, Doug Dunbrack, Ronnie Peacock and DeWayne Rhea, Marlinton firemen, joined the fire departments from all over Nicholas County in fighting the blaze.

WILLIS CARR KILLED

Willis Carr, aged 19 years, third son of Peter Carr, was killed by a blast while at work on the Greenbrier Railroad last Friday. He was working as a shovel at Camp No. 2 about four miles above Marlinton, situated near the deceased boy's home.

About 15 men were at work in a gang and a stump was bored under to be blown out. A rock was struck in the boring and the hole was drilled through it.

Three sticks of dynamite were put down and the men retired to what they thought was a safe distance, and young Carr was the farthest away.

When the blast was exploded a piece of rock weighing about 4 pounds came hurtling over the heads of the other men and struck the unfortunate youth on the head and crushed his skull. The blow was glancing and made such a wound as a cannonball might have caused.

He was about 200 feet away and was looking toward the blast which was between him and the sun. He was holding his cap to shade his eyes from the sun in order to see, and the stone came over and struck him behind the cap. He never regained consciousness though when he was being carried away, he muttered: "Lord, have mercy."

He was buried at the Friel burying ground last Sunday.

LOCAL MENTION

Elmer Jackson (colored) who was serving a sentence in the State penitentiary from this county, died there recently aged about 18 years.

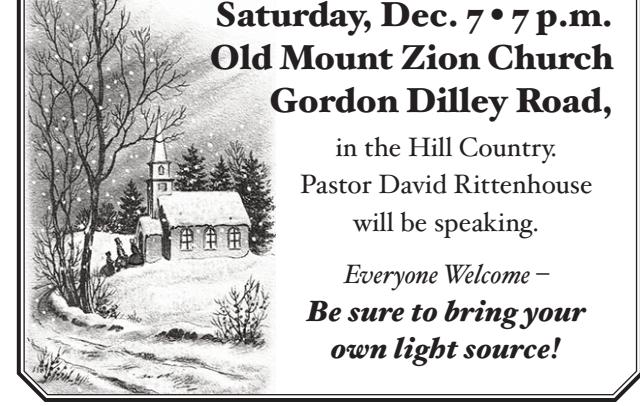

Married November 21, 1899, in the Clerk's office at Marlinton, Mr. Franklin Kincaid and Miss Mary White, daughter of Henry White near Driscoll.

Sheriff R. W. Hill experimented with two hogs to see what they would lose in the butchering recently. A hog which weighed 420 lbs.,

was cut in half and the liver removed.

climate was far worse than what we've seen — Herod had lost power and, upon his return, murdered countless people. He was bent on revenge.

That's why no one in Jerusalem rejoiced at the birth of the Messiah. True. Here's the passage.

"Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem behold, magi from the east arrived in Jerusalem, saying, 'Where is He who has been born King of the Jews?...' When Herod the king heard this, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him." (Matthew 2:1-3, NASB, emphasis added)

Many do not realize that civil war gripped Rome in the first century B.C. Herod allied himself with the losing side, Marc Antony and Cleopatra. In the midst of the turmoil, another nation seized Jerusalem and executed Herod's brother.

The Jews in Jerusalem, in their fear, did not realize that God had decided to hand out the best gift a person can have: Jesus.

It was Christmas!

Returning home that cold night, I spotted the first man. Remember? The one sitting on the corner with no sign?

He had deliberately moved to a place almost completely hidden from traffic. Clearly, he hadn't wanted my food. What he wanted was to be left alone.

Perhaps he needed what I needed that night—to be with God.

"Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

(Matthew 11:28, KJV)

However you celebrate Christmas this year, remember God's gift to you: Jesus.

You do not face the future alone. Jesus is your comfort and strength.

Time, from page 5

Kyle Idleman wrote that Martha just didn't realize how short her time was with Jesus. Martha was a wonderful person, I'm sure. Full of welcome and hospitality. She was just so busy trying to make everything perfect she put her perfect Guest on the back burner. She had no idea that, too soon, her Friend and Savior, Jesus, would be crucified. Gone from this earth.

"Martha just didn't realize how short her time was with Jesus." Those words hurt.

As the holidays march boldly into our lives over the next few weeks, let's redeem the time. Treasure those at our tables. Cherish the ones in our circles. That may mean asking for help, simplifying menus, combining events, cutting back on gift-giving, and/or un-plugging. Make memories while we can! We are not promised a day (James 4:14).

Eat banana pudding, Mississippi Mud or Appalachian Mud (that's what we call it). Wear our stretchy pants and have a second helping.

Whatever we do, let's not miss the opportunities to focus on those we love and hold dear this holiday season.

Let's also learn from Martha, making sure we focus on Jesus, the Guest of Honor.

Editor's Note: Dawn Reed just published her first book, "Weiner Stew: Inspiring Stories from Appalachia." It is available on Amazon.

"Weiner stew was the most practical meal to share in the coal fields a hundred years ago. Potatoes, tomatoes and onions all came from the garden and then the cheapest meat to add was weiners/hot dogs. My great-grandparents compiled the simple ingredients and shared them with neighbors and friends in their coal mining community – often with lots of Rook playing."

Weiner stew, the book, is also a delicious concoction shared with love. It is a compilation of short stories written about ordinary life in the mountains. Though based in eastern Kentucky, they relate to people everywhere. Gathered together, they can warm the heart like a hearty, albeit simple, stew."

Ken Springer For Your Consideration

Tis the Season For cold injuries

"If the thermometer had been an inch longer, we'd all have frozen to death."

~ Mark Twain

HYPOTHERMIA: The following are actual incidents:

Incident #1

The young secretary listened to radio reports throughout the day about the blizzard conditions and frigid temperatures outside. She knew that she would have to drive in the early evening gloom along a county road for 15 miles of reasonably isolated country to reach the comfort of her home and family. But, with a new SUV equipped with snow tires, there was little to worry about.

Her greatest discomfort, or so she thought, would be the bone-chilling walk from the office to her car in the parking lot. Dressed in a skirt, driving gloves, and light-weight coat, her body was found several hours later in a cornfield some 300 feet from her car that had slid off the road and into a ditch.

Apparently, she had seen the light from a farmhouse and was attempting to reach it. Tragically, her vehicle had a full tank of gas, which she could have started intermittently to warm up the car.

Her death was easily preventable with just a little education and having some cold-weather gear and supplies in her car. She left behind a husband and two children.

Incident #2

The hospital report read "dead on arrival" for the motorcyclist, citing the cause of death as massive injuries sustained when his motorcycle left the road for no apparent reason, striking a tree. This tragedy was so unusual because the rider was on a straight stretch of dry highway on a clear fall day with temperatures in the upper 50s.

Incident #3

An 82-year-old widower was found dead in his apartment by neighbors when they became concerned after noticing an accumulation of mail and newspapers on the porch and the absence of any activity for several days.

His reaction to a February cold front bringing frigid temperatures to the area was to lower his thermostat to 60 degrees to save money, as many aging people on a limited income do.

Incident #4

The couple's canoe overturned on a rain-swollen creek, pinning one paddler's legs to a large rock mid-stream. The unfortunate victim could sit against the rock and direct his partner on shore to seek help in a fairly remote area. He assured her that he was not in any immediate danger, considering that the canoe was only impinging on his lower legs.

In the hours that ensued on that 60-degree March day, he probably realized the terrible error of his statement. When rescuers arrived some three hours later, it was too late to save him.

What do these incidents all have in common? The common culprit in each case was a cold-induced condition called hypothermia.

Hypothermia means loss of body heat or low body heat, and it is often induced by doctors performing certain surgeries requiring decreased blood flow and reduced physiological demands. But when this state of reduced core temperature happens unintentionally, and the symptoms are ignored, hypothermia can be deadly.

Cold injuries such as hypothermia and frostbite are hazardous to everyone exposed to a cold environment. Outdoor workers and those participating in outdoor activities are not immune and may be at greater risk than the general population.

In addition to the risk of cold injuries, exposure to cold weather may cause a decline in work capacity and physical output. Cold exposure adversely affects physical and cognitive abilities, which often translate to increased accidents and injuries.

To prevent hypothermia, we must first be aware of the dangers that cold presents and be familiar with the symptoms. In addition, employers should instruct their employees in proper hypothermia and frostbite treatment and dress appropriately for cold exposure indoors and outdoors when subnormal temperatures are a factor.

The complex functions and processes within the body of a warm-blooded animal are optimally efficient at a relatively constant body temperature. In humans, the core temperature is approximately 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When our core temperature drops even a few degrees, our body's thermo-regulatory system begins taking steps to maintain or increase our optimal temperature.

The body has at its disposal a series of mechanisms that function to maintain a near-constant temperature. When exposed to environmental conditions of heat or cold, which threaten the stability of the core temperature, these involuntary defenses come into play.

This fascinating physiological complexity is best understood if we consider the body as having two distinct parts: the shell and the core. The shell comprises the skin and the millions of ultrafine blood vessels, called capillaries, that permeate it.

Also included in the shell are nerves, muscles and fat. The core comprises the vital organs, the heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, brain and other internal organs.

Receptors in the shell alert a portion of the brain called the hypothalamus, which acts as the body's thermostat. If a drop in the body's core temperature is detected, a neural signal is directed to constrict the capillaries, reducing heat loss from the skin's surface. The shell now becomes an insulator rather than a radiator of body heat.

If this response is not enough to reduce further heat loss from the core, other mechanisms are called into play, such as involuntary shivering and inhibition of sweat glands. This reduction in sweating prevents heat loss through evaporation while shivering is a source of heat production analogous to the heat generated by physical activity. Through a series of involuntary reactions, the body's shell protects the core from life-threatening heat loss.

So, what symptoms can we expect if the core temperature drops unabated? The initial symptoms of hypothermia are a sensation of being cold followed by shivering, sometimes intense enough to damage teeth. These symptoms continue until the core temperature drops to approximately 93 degrees F.

At this point, shivering ceases, and the muscles become rigid. There is a dramatic decrease in manual dexterity accompanied by slurred speech and a marked decrease in cognitive functioning.

This stage of hypothermia could have devastating effects on those involved in operating machinery, such as vehicles, or activities requiring unwavering concentration, such as mountain climbing, for example.

The victim becomes unconscious at approximately 86 degrees F, and death may occur at 79 degrees.

Outdoor workers and people involved in cold manufacturing processes should be aware of hypothermia symptoms. In the initial stages of hypothermia, removing a victim to a warm location may be adequate to restore normal temperature, but as the victim progresses into deeper stages of hypothermia, more drastic first-aid measures are called for.

The main objective is to rewarm the victim correctly. This can be accomplished by immersing the body in warm water, no greater than 105 degrees. Alternatively, the rescuer can use heat packs or warm towels if available.

Do not rewarm the extremities and the core simultaneously, as this may precipitate something called see Your pg 12

Black Mountain Bluegrass Boys return to Opera House stage

The Black Mountain Bluegrass Boys, West Virginia's longest-running bluegrass band, will return to the Opera House Saturday, December 14, at 7 p.m.

Led by Mill Point local Richard Hefner for more than half a century, the band is renowned for its traditional bluegrass sound, tight vocal harmonies, and deep roots in the local music scene. This year's lineup features a mix of familiar faces and new talent.

Joining Hefner is Mill Point neighbor Joanna Burt-Kinderman on bass, adding her local influence and musical expertise. Renowned for his skillful fiddle playing and significant contributions to West Virginia's musical heritage, Dave Bing will also be on stage. Completing the ensemble is Danny Arthur on guitar, bringing his personal touch to the group's rich and dynamic sound.

Tickets for this highly anticipated performance are $10 for adults, while young music lovers 17 and younger can attend for free. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the 4th Avenue Gallery in Marlinton and online at pocahontasoperahouse.org or at the door the night of the show, subject to availability.

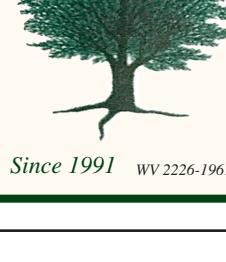

The Opera House Performance Series is supported by grants from the West Virginia Division of Culture and History and the West Virginia Commission on the Arts. Additional support comes from Pocahontas County Dramas, Fairs and Festivals and the Pocahontas County Convention and Visitors Bureau, reflecting the community's dedication to preserving and promoting its cultural heritage.

promised those parties that the matter would be settled last summer. Shirk responsibility for a problem of your own making. Classic irony.

The next act was another chapter in the endless saga, "The County Commission Tries to Purchase the Landfill Property After Decades of Leasing It" – which asks the question: How many lawyers does it take to prepare a deed of purchase? And, whether side agreements should be included in the deed. After years of discussion, there is still no agreement about whether the landfill road is a state road or a private road. And, what about fencing along what may or may not be a state road? Meanwhile, the Solid Waste Authority is insisting that it will not accept the landfill property even though funds for the purchase are coming from the county commission and the SWA does not have a lawyer involved in the negotiations. Talk about looking a gift horse in the mouth. We'll by volunteering the other members of the county commission as heretofore undisclosed Board members. That was news to everyone. John then said he had previously asked the EMS Authority to run the ambulance service, but they had declined. He was then dared to ask to question again at the next meeting of the EMS Authority in January – and he might get a different answer. The plot thickens.

It should not be the case that county residents have to continually worry about what the county commission is up to – or not up to – every day and every week. Stay tuned.

have to. It is a slower process than one would think. Signage discussions are in progress for the trail, to provide directions from Fourth Avenue and the Greenbrier River Trail from near the water-tank.

Sara Cottingham has left her former employment and is now working full-time on grant and grant opportunities for The Mon-Forest Towns Partnership.

On November 15, I had the pleasure of hosting Aaron Pugh's social studies class at the Marlinton Municipal Building. Forty-one students from Pocahontas County High School assembled in the auditorium for a Q&A session before visiting individual offices. Afterward, students moved from the Town side of the building to the Firehouse, where they were greeted by Nichole Brock and Steve Tritapoe, who explained various facets of the operations there.

The very young and the aged are more susceptible to cold injuries. Both groups have less efficient defenses against rapid heat loss. Older people often have poor circulation, take medications that impair the thermo-regulatory system, and may have a diet deficient in calories, vitamins and minerals.

The level of physical activity in cold environments affects the stability of body temperature. Snowshoeing burns 400 to 600 calories per hour, which is an excellent reason to wear layered clothing, which will be discussed a bit later. One caution: try to avoid the post-activity chill, caused by the entrapment of perspiration, which results in a cooling effect.

One notable exception to the activity/heat rule is if the victim is immersed in cold water. In this situation, physical exertion, such as tread-ing water, will cause body heat to be rapidly lost to the water by direct conduction.

Water is an excellent conductor of heat and is 25 times more efficient than air of the same temperature. A U.S. Coast Guard publication predicts survival time for an average person treading in 50-degree water to be two hours.

In the same situation and conditions where the victim is wearing a life-saving device and maintaining a "huddle" position, the predicted survival time extends to four hours.

When outdoors in colder weather, one should keep one's clothing as dry as possible because wet clothing will cause body heat to flow away from the skin. This is particularly true of cotton garments; think of how long "After Drop Shock." This is dangerous because the cooler blood pooled in the extremities returns to the heart, causing vasodilation in the capillaries and an acute drop in core temperature. The effect can be fatal, so first responders should only use passive rewarming in the field to prevent further heat loss.

In the field, where warm water may not be available, the best rewarming method may be direct contact with another human body. This approach to rewarming can be accomplished by gently removing the victim's clothes if wet and pressing your body against the victim's in a blanket, sleeping bag or tarp. This measure could be the difference between life and death, so don't hesitate. As soon as possible, all hypothermic victims should receive professional medical treatment.

The more fat on the body's shell, the more insulation to protect the core from heat loss. Therefore, a thin person exposed to the same conditions will lose body heat faster than a victim sporting a liberal amount of adipose tissue.

What we eat for breakfast before we go out to work or play during cold weather—the temperature doesn't have to be below freezing to cause hypothermia—will have a considerable effect on how warm we stay.

Some foods generate heat relatively quickly, carbohydrates being a great example. On the other hand, fats have longer-lasting effects; think of the Arctic Inuit people's Wool and synthetic fleece are excellent choices because they provide some insulation even when wet.

As for drinking alcohol and those iconic brandy-totting St. Bernards, things are not always what they seem. Although a shot of brandy produces a warm glow, this feeling is mainly a result of irritation of the stomach lining.

Alcohol is a depressant and an efficient vasodilator, contributing to even more rapid heat loss, and is a predisposing cause in many hypothermia and frostbite cases. So, send that big-cuddly St. Bernard back for hot chocolate.

In the next episode on cold injuries, we'll discuss the causes and treatment of a dangerous condition called frostbite. The conclusion will include a suggestion for a unique Christmas gift that could save the life of a loved one.

Winter is upon us, so stay warm and stay safe.
