Pendleton County Mental Health Resources Limited To Schools

By Ammie Ruddle

Mental health issues, which are defined as a person's condition with regard to their psychological and emotional well-being, can be seen regularly on news, media, and social media, as well as signs and billboards.

"The foremost mental health issue plaguing children and family within the county is anxiety, PTSD (post-traumatic stress disorder), exposure to drugs and lack of security," said Jamie Hudson, chief executive officer for Pendleton Community Care.

The question many parents, children and other individuals, including Hudson, have, including is how to address these Currently, the county's mental health resources are limited with respect to the schools. Resources are readily available to students while in school and attending school sanctioned actıvıtıes.

J.D. Wilkins, Pendleton County Board of Education president, said, "The schools have school counselors and nurses at every school, a psychologist who travels from school to school and other coordinators and crisis interventions within the school."

"A lot of the mental health challenges that schools are dealing with originate outside of the schools. Therefore, additional community counseling services are needed to deal with mental health issues before they become school issues," Wilkins said. Hudson said it is difficult to attract mental health professionals to the county.

"Recruitment for behavioral health providers is difficult due to our location," she said. "Being isolated from some urban lifestyle offerings (proximity to an airport, shopping, higher end dining, entertainment, etc.) has usually been the main barrier to enticing providers to come to

Hudson added despite highlighting the benefits of living in a rural community to candidates, the search remains difficult.

"We promote what our area has to offer: outdoor recreation, low crime, beautiful scenery. slower paced lifestyles," Hudson said. "However, finding the person that wants that type of full-time living (not just vacationing), has been difficult. This is not an isolated barrier to just PCC; recruitment in general can be difficult. PCC works with a recruitment company to find behavioral health providers on an ongoing basis."

According to West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources staff members, there is not a Child and Protective Service agent based in the

A Chance Encounter Brings Donation to the Schools

By Ammie Ruddle

One memorable conversation sparked an individual to organize a donation drive for students and staff members with Pendleton County Schools.

For the first time since 2019, the box truck pulled into the Franklin Elementary School parking lot.

The school's staff and members of the Pendleton County Board of Education stood on the parking lot prepared to unload the truck's contents. In the building, staff members designated space for each item. Kimberlee Hevener, Franklin Elementary School's assistant principal/academic coach, said everyone was using their "best guess" regarding the items on the truck.

The mission to provide school supplies to county students began nearly two decades ago when Vicki Johnson, who works for a federal agency outside of Washington, DC, stopped at a gas station in Franklin and spoke to a girl. Johnson recalled the girl was "polite and kind" to her.

Johnson asked the girl where she learned her manners and the girl replied "school."

The interaction had such an impact on Johnson that when she returned home, it prompted her to begin to collect school supplies for students in Pendleton County. Johnson has no connection to Pendleton County except for a chance encounter with a child at a gas station.

"We started with a pick-up truck, then a van and now a box truck full of pallets of supplies," Johnson said. "Everything is completely 100% donated, including the gas."

However, this year, Johnson said, they ran into a snag. Donors are no longer allowed to make monetary donations. "Many of the donors prefer to donate money, and we would use that to purchase more school supplies," Johnson added. "Due to this snag we did not get the amount of donations we normally do."

Johnson said they hope to put together Amazon wish lists to send to donors who prefer to make a monetary donation for next year.

Items on the truck included binders, notebooks, paper, pens, backpacks, lunch boxes, markers, science kits, balls and much more.

The library at FES was stocked with the donated supplies. They will be distributed to the other three schools - Brandywine and North Fork Elementary and Pendleton County Middle/ High School when needed by students.

Grant County Man Facing Charge

By Shawn Stinson

A Grant County resident is facing a felony charge of fleeing in a vehicle related to a July 28 incident.

Benjamin Howard Smith, 45, of Corner Road in Maysville, is facing a charge of fleeing in a vehicle in an incident that began in Grant County.

Authorities allege Smith attempted to allude law enforcement officers in Grant County and was driving south on U.S. Highway 220 towards Pendleton County. Grant County authorities contacted Pendleton 911 dispatchers to inform them Smith was in a high-speed pursuit.

Pendleton County Sheriff Chad Bowers, Chief Deputy Andy Hinkle, Deputy Matt Kontyko and West Virginia State Police Trooper Kevin Raymond responded to the call and drove towards the Upper Tract area. The responding law enforcement officers prepared for the vehicles to drive into the area.

Grant County Sheriff Brian Ours informed the officers the unknown individual was driving a white Dodge Challenger with a black hood. Ours said he had "lost sight" of the vehicle near Jake Hill Road. He added the driver of the Challenger was travelling "at a high-rate of speed" and "taking blind turns in the northbound lane of traffic."

Grant County authorities were able to end the pursuit and detained the individuals inside the vehicle. Moments after the vehicle was stopped, the Pendleton County authorities arrived at the scene. It was at this time Grant County

Emergency Simulation Training Scheduled In the County

By Ammie Ruddle

Emergency service coordinators and members gathered at AGK Italian Restaurant in Franklin for their quarterly Pendleton County Local Emergency Planning Committee meeting.

Officials discussed several items during the brief meet-

However, the most important aspect of the meeting was the discussion of a county-wide rescue squad exercise.

This exercise will take place in three steps in a period of a year. The simulated accident will include a school bus with children and a semi-truck hauling hazardous material.

The initial step will be a tabletop discussion to map out specifics of the exercise. This will include additional training information needed for emergency service personnel to prepare for the simulation.

The second step is a functional discussion, including seminars, workshops and tabletop exercises. These types of exercises typically highlight existing plans, policies, interagency and inter-jurisdictional agreements and procedures.

The final step will be a fullscale emergency simulation exercise. This will simulate the real event as closely as possible. It is designed to evaluate the operational capability of emergency response. It will be conducted in a stressful environment that simulates actual response conditions. It will also require the mobilization and actual movement of emergency personnel, equipment, and resources.

Another topic of discussion was that there have been no major fires in "several years," said several officials.

They also mentioned the number of wrecks involving semi-trucks has decreased in recent months.

The committee has completed the emergency plan, the Emergency Support Function #10 Haz-Mat plan, which is an 80-page document for hazardous material.

Additional details regarding the stimulation will be discussed at the next meeting; the date has not been

"We had a great set of animals at the fair this year and an even better set of youth exhibitors," commented Trey Keyser, chairperson of the 4-H/FFA market steer, lamb, hog and goat sale committee. "The youth livestock sale was exceptional and prices received for animals set new records for the sale. The support from local businesses and individuals of our tri-county youth was amazing and made the youth's livestock projects a huge success."

Council Members OK

There was a single item on the agenda at the latest Town of Franklin council meeting.

The five council members - Kristin Dingess, Genevieve Glover, Jarred Rawson, Keely Smith and Edwin Wimer – as well as Bob Horan, mayor, and Bruce Minor, recorder, attended the Aug. 9 meeting at the town office.

The single new business item on the agenda was the approval of eight policy updates for the upcoming water project. Frank Wehrle, town manager, discussed the policies with the council members.

The eight updated policies unanimously approved by the council members were a confined space program; hazard communication program; health and safety manual; health, safety and environmental program; leak detection program; lockout and tagout program; spill prevention and response plan; and water meter replacement program.

Wehrle submitted the July financial statement for approval by the council members. The statement was unanimously approved without comment.

Elizabeth Scott, assistant business manager, updated the council members on the progress of creating a website. She said a contract has been signed with Taylor Yokum to create the website.

The council members unanimously accepted a change in the June minutes. They also unanimously accepted the minutes from the July 12 meeting without comment. The next meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. Sept. 13 at the town hall.

county. The CPS workers that are tasked with the county's cases also cover five other counties, including Tucker, Grant, Mineral, Hampshire and Hardy. Mike Landis, with the Potomac Highland Guild in Petersburg, outsources their agents to Pendleton County.

Currently, when a mental health issue is greater than what PCC or the school officials can provide resources for, they must refer the individual to an out-of-the-county provider. According to Hudson, the where and whom is based on several factors.

"It depends upon several items which could include all or only some of these patient's preferences: insurance coverage and participation of referring provider, availability of provider for referred service and type of service needed," Hudson added. Individuals without transportation will need to rely on others to keep appointments or they may not receive the needed mental health assistance. Note – This is the first in a series on mental health issues in the county.

New OB/GYN Joins Davis Medical Practice Team

Davis Medical Center has announced that Dr. Adriana Fulginiti has joined the Women's HealthCare team, located in the DMC outpatient clinic in Elkins.

Fulginiti earned her medical degree from St. George's University School of Medicine in Grenada, West Indies. She completed her obstetrics and gynecology residency at Monmouth Medical Center in Long Branch, New Jersey. She holds a bachelor of science in physiology and minor in Italian studies from McGill University, Montreal in Quebec, Canada. "Dr. Fulginiti offers women all facets of obstetrical and gynecological care," said Catherine Chua, D.O., Davis Health System chief medical officer. "She is a great fit for both our women's health team and the community. We're so happy she chose Davis Medical Center."

Dr. Fulginiti will begin seeing patients on Aug. 15. "Elkins is friendly and welcoming," said Fulginiti. "My husband and I love being outdoors. We were visiting last year when the first snowfall came. We just fell in love."

Dr. Adriana Fulginiti

Dr. Fulginiti is certified in the Fundamentals of Laparoscopic Surgery and has extensive experience in treating patients with urinary incontinence and other urinary problems. She will care for female patients from adolescence through post-menopause.

"Every patient's needs are different so I personalize medicine to treat them specifically," Fulginiti added. "I love being a part of the woman's life, treating them throughout their health journey."

She and her husband live in Elkins with their two dogs, Jax and Chase.

Appointments are being scheduled with Dr. Fulginiti for August by calling 304.637.3948.

Few Tombstones Found in County Are Inscribed in German

In spite of the fact that German was spoken in sections of Pendleton County in earlier days, surprisingly few tombstones are found inscribed in German.

In the oldest Lutheran church in West Virginia (Propst Church, 1769) and at St. Michael's Lutheran Church at Wilfongtown, not a single tombstone is inscribed in German in either cemetery, even though their early church records are in the German language.

An examination of the surnames offers an insight into the patterns of settlement. The Propst Cemetery shows the following names: Blakemore, Bodkin, Eye, Hedrick, Hively, Mischler, Hoover, Nicholson, Plaugher, Propst and Rexrode. The markers at the 1807 St. Michael's Lutheran Church bear the following surnames: Crummett, Dove, Eckard, ${ m Hoover}, { m Kiser}, { m Losh}, {
m Mitchell},$ Propst, Puffenbarger, Rexrode, Simmons, Smith, Snyder, Wilfong and Varner. The early names at Mt. Hope Lutheran Church, near Upper Tract, include a preponderance of the names Alt, Mallow and Schmucker. The surname perpetuation is best seen through the examination of one family line. John Michael Propst came to the area in 1748; he and his wife, Catherine, had nine children, six sons and three daughters. They married Caplingers, Rexroad, Miller, Cowger, Crummett, Eye and Huffman, all of German heritage. West Virginia To Implement Amber Alert Program

The West Virginia Broadcasters Association in cooperation with Gov. Bob Wise, the Office of Military Affairs and the State Emergency Alert System (EAS) committee, is in the preliminary stages of implementing the Amber Alert program.

Amber is an acronym for America's Missing Broadcast Emergency Response. The program is a voluntary partnership between lawenforcement agencies and broadcasters to send out an emergency alert to the public when a child has been abducted and it is believed that the child's life is in grave danger. Most recently, the program was praised for the quick response in locating two abducted teenage girls in California. The program, with its increasing success, is now operable in 13 states.

Types of Forest Roads Explained

By Kim Montooth

After working for the U.S. Forest Service for five summer seasons, you'd think I would know a little bit about most everything concerning Forest Service management. Well, the truth is, every summer I learn many new management aspects of the Forest Service.

Much of the learning doesn't take place until one of the visitors asks a question that I really don't have an answer to. Then it's time for me to get out the books and start asking some questions

One thing I've learned about from visitor's questions is Forest Service road management. "What is the condition of the road to Spruce Knob?," is a question asked by many visitors. When our reply is the road to Spruce Knob is a hardpack gravel road, most visitors don't seem too pleased. It would be nice to have the road to Spruce Knob and other areas throughout the forest paved, but paved roads are very expensive.

Many of us take the roads we travel on for granted, unless they're rough and filled with potholes. The forest road system is a great service to all. Without these roads, many areas such as Spruce Knob, Dolly Sods and Cranberry Back Country would be inaccessible to anyone but the most earnest backpackers.

The Monongahela National Forest has over 1,100 miles of roads that range from narrow temporary roads to paved ones. Many forest roads are maintained for a certain type and amount of traffic such as for logging and recreational use. On an average it costs $500 per mile to maintain these roads and that's over half a million dollars total.

Money for new roads or the upgrading of roads comes from two sources: Forest Service projects such as timber sale or money that has been appropriated by Congress. Because the Monongahela National Forest does not cut and sell as much timber as the forests out west, there is a limited amount of money for the construction or upgrading Another aspect of the system is that of Off-Road Vehicle Use (ORV). The use of motorized vehicles has dramatically increased. This increase in use has destroyed natural resources, created conflicts between other forest users. Because of these concerns and conflicts, the Monongahela National Forest has developed seven categories of roads and trails that are open to public use.

- 1) Open Maintained -These roads and trails are open for public use of registered vehicles.
- 2) Open Not Maintained These roads and trails are open for public use of any registered vehicles, but not maintained for public use.
- 3) Motorbike Route -These roads and trails are open for public use of registered two-wheeled motorcycles.
- 4) Snowmobile Route These roads and trails are open for public use of snowmobiles.
- 5) Open Deer Season Only These roads and trails are open for public use of any registered motor vehicle from the Friday before the gun season for antlered deer begins, remaining open to the day of the gun season.
- 6) Summer Closure -These roads and trails are open for public use from August 16 through April 14.
- 7) Special Recreation These roads and trails are open for public use such as in developed campgrounds.

Signs are posted along forest roads to inform the public of the special regulations for the categories of roads.

100 YEARS AGO

By LON K. SAVAGE

Editor's Note—The following is one of a series of articles on the Civil War. Each weekly installment covers events which occurred exactly 100 years ago.

Lee Advances in East, Kirby Smith in West

Gen. Robert E. Lee, commander of all Confederate troops in Virginia, gazed through his glasses from atop Clark's Mountain near Gordonsville, Virginia, 100 years ago this week, watching the movement of federal forces to the north.

A hot August sun beat down. Beside him, Gen. James Longstreet looked through glasses, too, at the panorama that stretched before them

It was August 18, and as the two officers watched, the flags of federal Gen. John Pope's army floated placidly above the tree tops some 15 miles to the north, between the Rapidan River in the foreground and the Rappahannock River off in the distance.

Shifting their glasses, the two watched as the white tops of federal army wagons moved over the rolling terrain back toward the north and the Rappahannock. Little clouds of dust arose, marking the tramp of soldiers, and, as Longstreet described it later, "presently, (the clouds) began to swell into dense columns along the rearward lines... the clouds grew thinner and thinner as they approached the river and melted into the bright haze of the afternoon

Then Lee put away his glasses, and with disappointment in his voice, turned to Longstreet. "General," he said, "we little thought that the enemy would turn his back upon us this early in the campaign."

To the north, between the Rapidan and Rappahannock, Pope, indeed, was turning his back on the Confederates and beating his way back across the Rappahannock. And although his disappointment to Lee, it marked one of the great changes of that summer of 1862: Lee's change from a defensive warfare at Richmond to an offensive against the federals nearer Washington.

Lee had arrived in central Virginia from Richmond only a few days earlier and had been anxious to attack Pope at once. But before he could attack, Pope had learned of Lee's plans. An officer of Gen. "Jeb" Stuart's staff had been captured by Pope's men and on his person was found a message from Lee to Stuart outlining the Confederate plans.

In fact, Stuart, himself, had nearly been captured that very morning. Surprised at a farmhouse by a federal detachment, he jumped a fence and ran into a nearby woods to escape, leaving his famous plumed hat behind as a prize memento for the federals

At any rate, Pope wheeled his army around and pulled back behind the Rappahannock to safer ground. As he did, Lee ordered his army to cross the Rapidan and prepare for an all-out attack.

As Lee moved out against Pope in Virginia, Gen. E. Kirby Smith moved out from Knoxville, Tenn., to the north in another major Confederate offensive.

Smith headed for Cumberland Gap along the Kentucky-Virginia-Tennessee borders with 6,000 troops. Learning Cumberland Gap was heavily guarded by federals, he turned westward and slipped through Roger's Gap into Kentucky. On the 18th, the same day that Lee and Longstreet had watched Pope's army from the mountain top, Smith occupied the town of Barboursville.

A Confederate army again was on Kentucky soil.

Next week: Lincoln and Horace Greely.

The Mountaineer Gardener

By County Agent JOHN HAMMER

To prune or not to prunethat is the question, or at least it's the question I've been asked many times the past few weeks. Most of the questions have concerned tomatoes, sweet corn and sweet potatoes—with a few questions on beans.

I realize that it's now a little late for any of you to change your pruning methods for the year, but I'd like to give you the best information I have on the problem and perhaps you can keep it in mind for next year.

Tomatoes—If tomatoes are not staked, do not sucker. Unstaked tomatoes, however, should have been given plenty of room. They should have been set at least four feet by five feet and five feet by five feet would have been better.

If your tomatoes are trained to a stake, remove all suckers until the plant reaches the top foot of the stake. For most tomatoes, the stake about five feet above the ground. Pruning of the lower leaves of staked tomatoes is not a good practice unless they are diseased.

Sweet Corn—On sweet corn, let the suckers grow. Records show that if suckers are removed, the yield will not be increased and it may be reduced. Most of the newer hybrids are sucker freely so just let them go.

Sweet Potatoes—There's nothing gained by clipping sweet potato vines except to get them out of your way and you may decrease the root size if the vines are clipped severely.

If you do not like the long vines, I'd suggest that next year you grow one of the bush varieties such as Georgia Bunch or Porto Rico Bunch and always plant them on light soil that has not been heavily manured. Too much nitrogen makes big tops and few roots.

Beans—The clipping of bean vines such as half runner beans and limas may not decrease the first picking materially but it will reduce later pickings. It's usually not a good practice.

OPEN OFFICE SUPPLY AND PRINTING PLANT

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ashenfelter have purchased the property now occupied by South Branch Maytag company opposite Ruddle's Meat market, and will install a job printing plant and office supply center which will be opened sometime late in the fall. The Maytag people will move into the Sites Federated store building which they recently purchased, and where a line of furniture will be carried along with the leading makers of electrical appliances which they have been handling.

The dwelling behind the store will be remodeled by the new owners and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cline and sons will occupy one of the apartments while the Ashenfelters will move from the Warner house behind the Franklin Cut-Rate into the apartment over the present Maytag

Rader Reigns as Antique Tractor Parade Queen

Sugar Grove

By Paula Mitchell

Queen Judy Rader looked quite regal as she rode through the Sugar Grove Antique Tractor Parade, chaperoned by Janet Judy in Terry Harper's convertible.

Judy is married to Willard Rader, and together they have two children, Willard Ray (Donna) and Krista (Ruben) Nieves. They are so proud of their grandchildren, Travis, Amber, Natalie and Natasha, and greatgranddaughter, Bella. A very close niece, Linda Custer, also lived with Willard and Judy for many years. Linda was very much like a daughter to them.

Judy is the daughter of the late Jesse Harvey and Virginia Harris Snyder Eckard, who lived just beyond the cut off to Crummett's Run. Jesse and Virginia's children, in order of birth, were Roscoe, John, Anna Lee, Jack, Judy and Bob. They were direct descendants of the pioneer Johann Casper Eckhardt. The family attended the Crummett's Run Church of the Brethren, where Judy well recalls having Virginia Crummett and Fred Simmons as her Sunday School teachers.

Following her graduation from Franklin High School, Judy married Willard Rader on June $4,\,1960.\,$ They were married by Rev. William Middleswarth.

Judy's employment was varied over the course of her career. She began with the Pendleton County Bank, when it used to be on the corner across from the Korner Shop. She then continued with the bank's present location working approximately six years. Once Alice Bowman retired from her role as bookkeeper at Ernest Bowman & Bros. store, Judy replaced her, working for 22 years. She then decided to try her hand with the sheriff's department, working for five years and eight months. Bowman's need for a person to work "the floor" which prompted them to call Judy. She returned there to work 12 more years, after which she retired.

Both Judy and Willard volunteered with the South Fork Rescue Squad, with Willard having 14 years, and Judy 25 years of service. She served many years on the Pendleton Manor's board of directors, serving in the capacity of secretary. Judy also was a member of the Sugar Grove Farm Women's Club. $\,$ The couple has enjoyed gardening over the years.

Traveling became a much enjoyable pastime for Judy. She enjoyed Branson, Missouri, Canada, Florida and many bluegrass festivals. She especially enjoyed cruises.

Judy enjoys attending family reunions and continues to be close to her many nieces and nephews. She is a very pleasant lady who carries a smile wherever she goes and shares with whomever she meets. Congratulations, Judy! The title of queen of the Sugar Grove Antique Tractor Parade is well deserved.

The People's Choice Award for their favorite tractor went to Janelle Mitchell.

Overall winners for the games were as follows: boys under 6 - Bengy Weiler; girls under 6 - Jaylen Smith; boys 6-12 - Corbin Smith; girls 6-12 - Harley Bowers and Sydney Demers; boys 12-18 - Colby Simmons; and girls 12-18 - Jayden Smith.

Rifle winners were Jack Bowers and Chris Riel with Jeff Moats and Lucinda Harper each receiving $20.

Quotes for the week are as follows:

It is good to sit out on the patio to hear the "Talk of the Grove."

Taking a vacation oftentimes plays havoc with the writer as she attempts to write the Sugar Grove news. Erroneously omitted in the August birthdays were Junior Wimer's birthday which was celebrated on the sixth. Then, Patsy Smith celebrated hers on the 13th. Hope it was a happy one.

Recent visitors of Rosalee Grogg were Marleta Wimer, Hendrix Bogan, Shannon Simmons and sister, Brandy, Diane Kuykendall, Steven Grogg and Kim Evick.

Connor Armstrong was very happy to win second place copilot in the parade. His sister, Kinsley, accompanied him.

Wes, Becky, Ben, Emma and Nathan Puffenbarger motored Friday to the West Virginia State Fair. Ben, Emma and Nathan spent Saturday night with their grandparents, Robert and Nancy Hodges in Harrisonburg, Virginia.

Spending several days with Sam and Brenna Cockran were Chris, Angela, Noah and to also visit with the Brandon and Tom Mitchell families were Richard and Mary Ziehl of Huntington, Maryland, Dr. Brett, Lynn, Faith and Corrine Weedon of Ijamsville, Maryland, Rich Ziehl of Edgewater, Maryland, Brooke, Camryn and Garrett Weedon of New Market, Maryland, Pat Mitchell of Charlottesville, Virginia, Tyler, Brittany and Emma Mitchell of Barboursville, Virginia, Janelle Mitchell, Destiny and Natalie of Charlotte, North Carolina, John Hughes of Mineral, Virginia, Gene and Joyce Sheffer of Montezuma, Virginia, Cynthis

Gillespie Addresses Safety Hazards On Shenandoah Mountain

The following intercepted letter was sent by Rick Gillespie to Virginia Governor Glenn Youngkin via their website communications.

Dear Governor Youngkin,

As the Emergency Services Coordinator for Pendleton County, WV, I am concerned with the continued and expanding safety hazards along US Route 33 west of Rawley Springs, Rockingham County, to the Virginia-West Virginia Stateline.

First, the road surface of Shenandoah and Charley Cockran of Solomons, Maryland. Mountain is in horrible shape. VDOT con-Motoring from their respective homes to tinues to delay the promised improvement ttend the tractor parade and lawn party project on the lower 1.7 miles of this mountainous roadway. And, their project fails to address the worst curve on the mountain, which has rock outcroppings that reach just shy of the pavement edge, causing numerous incidents with tractor-trailer trucks going westbound, encroaching into the eastbound

> The other issue involves all of the unhealthy trees that overhang the highway along the straight stretch of roadway just west of Rawley Springs to the base of Shenandoah Mtn. These trees and large limbs are falling at regular intervals. It is just a matter of time until a fatality will result. A major project of tree trimming and removal needs to occur. I suggest use of one of the helicopters with large rotating blades on it as the quick est way to clear this right of way. It would require some scheduled road closures but would be much faster than other methods.

On August 7th, one of our Pendleton County Emergency Rescue Ambulances was stranded on this stretch of highway due to high water and downed trees. This is not a good situation. Pendleton County relies heavily on Rockingham Memorial Hospital, with the majority of our ambulance transports to that hospital.

Please direct a study of the millions of dollars in revenue brought to Harrisonburg/ Rockingham County from Pendleton and other West Virginia Counties. Many of our citizens participate in your workforces as well, further enhancing Virginia's economy. Many of the poultry growers for the Virginia plants are located in Pendleton County. It is high time that Virginia recognizes this and makes significant improvements to US 33 west of Harrisonburg. Interstate commerce depends on it.

Thank you Sir for your attention to this matter.

Regards,

Rick Gillespie Pendleton County Emergency Services Coordinator PO Box 187

EDA Meeting - Candidates, Caves and Cupcakes

By Ammie Ruddle

Caves, candidates and cupcakes were some of the subjects discussed during the latest Pendleton County Economic Community and Development Authority meeting on Aug. 10.

Laura Brown, executive director, discussed the next step with expanding tourism through climbing and caving. She discussed with members that there are now two sets of attorneys working to create documents regarding the legalities of rock climbing and Brown added that the EDA hopes to receive money from Access Fund, which was created in 1991 to fight for legal and physical access to the land. Access Fund is a nonprofit advocacy organization that leads and inspires the climbing community toward sustainable access and conservation of the climbing environment. Brown said conversations with representatives from Access Fund unanimously accepted as was

have been held.

Other business discussed during the meeting included the Treasure Mountain Festival 5K run. Brown said, it is hoped that t-shirts and medals will be available to give to participants, courtesy of local businesses - T&K Markets, Summit Community Bank, Valkyrie Farms Coffee Roastery and Raymond's Gymnastics.

During a discussion regarding the organization's finances, board members unanimously agreed to consolidate three bank accounts into one. The main account will include three sweep accounts to be able to track spending for individual projects, tenants and other expenditures.

The board members also unanimously elected to host a candidate forum. The event is slated to take place in late September or early October. Additional information will be released at a later date.

CDC Officials Change COVID-19 Guidance agency in the U.S. recently altered its guidance regarding COVID-19.

Officials with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention announced on Aug. 11 it was dropping the recommendation that individuals quarantine themselves if they are in close contact with an individual who tests positive for the coronavirus.

In addition, they said individuals no longer need to maintain the suggested "social distancing" of 6 feet apart for each other.

Until the new guidelines were announced, CDC officials had recommended individuals not up to date on their COVID-19 vaccinations who came in contact with a person who tested positive needed to be in quarantine for at least five days. Despite ending the quarantine recommendation, CDC officials said an individual should wear a high-quality mask for 10 days and get tested in five

These changes come more than 2 1/2 years after the start of the pandemic. Officials said the changes are being instituted due to an estimate of 95% of Americans 16 years of age and older have acquired some level of immunity

The top public health from either being vaccinated or infected.

"The current conditions of this pandemic are very different from those of the last two years," said Greta Massetti from the CDC and an author of the guidelines.

Among the changes is ending the recommendation of schools to perform routine daily testing of students. School officials may continue to test daily during a surge in infections.

CDC officials also dropped a "test-to-stay' recommendation that stated students exposed to COVID-19 could test to remain in school instead of quarantining at home.

Individuals who do test positive for COVID-19 are asked to quarantine from others for at least five days regardless of their vaccination status. Individuals may end their quarantine if they are fever-free for 24 hours without the use of medication and are without symptoms or have an improvement in their symptoms.

Pendleton County Schools officials followed the suggested guidelines from state officials before the beginning of the 2021-22 school year. They released a statement requesting staff members or students to remain at home if they are exhibiting symptoms. Face masks or coverings were required for staff members and students when the county was labeled as orange or red on the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources coronavirus map.

PCS officials altered their decision regarding face masks and coverings later in the school year. They required a face mask or covering always be worn by staff and students during the day except for students in pre-kindergarten to second grade.

They reverted to their previous guidelines in mid-February. The face masks or covering requirement went into effect when the county was listed as orange or red on the WVDHHR coronavirus dashboard.

dend yield is 4.11%. Jack H. Walters, chairman and chief executive officer of the holding company, stated "Despite the backdrop of high inflation, supply shortages, and general economic uncertainty, Highlands continues to work with the small businesses and consumers in our region to help them turn their visions into reality. The first half of 2022 has been marked by interest rate volatility and increasing pressure on the expense side of the income statement as vendors and suppliers pass along increased costs. Loan demand has continued to be strong in most areas but we are cautious as to the impact that higher rates will have on consumers and businesses moving forward. We are pleased with our performance thus far and pleased to distribute another dividend payment to our shareholders."

AT 11:00 A.M. ON FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 2022

offer for sale certain property described in that deed of trust executed by Justin W. Stroop and Mary J. Propst to Jeffrey S. Bowers, Trustee, which deed of trust is described as bearing date the 9th day of June, 2007, and of record in the Office of the Clerk of the County Commission of Pendleton County, West Virginia, in Trust Deed Book 115, at Page 542, and given to secure Carey A. Evick Jr. and Claudia N. Evick, the Beneficiary, the payment of certain indebtedness represented by note therein described, of which property is more particularly described with the buildings and improvements thereon located situated, lying and being situate on the West side of and abutting on U. S. Route 33 in Bethel District, Pendleton County, West Virginia, as follows:

BEGINNING at a post on an old line also on line of right-ofway of U.S. Highway No. 33; thence with line of road S. 41 W 15.50 poles to a stake; thence N. $54\frac{1}{2}$ W. 12.36 poles to a stake by a fence; thence with the fence N. 27 E. 3.92 poles to a post; thence N. 45 E. 11.84 poles to a stake in an old line and with the same S. 54 E. 12.40 poles to the beginning, containing one acre and thirty-six square poles, more or less, and being the same real estate conveyed to Justin W. Stroop by those certain Deeds of record in the Clerk's Office of the County Commission of Pendleton County, West Virginia as follows: Deed Book 175, at Page 136, and Deed Book 187, at Page 358, to which references are herewith made for all pertinent purposes.

There is excepted from the foregoing description of said 1 acre and 36 square poles, an out-conveyance therefrom of a parcel containing 5/8 acre of record in the Clerk's Office aforesaid in Deed Book 81, at page 246, therefore, leaving a parcel of 3/5 acre, more or less, which was conveyed (assessed as 0.60 acres, more or less).

The conveyance was made subject to a right-of-way over the south side of the real estate conveyed adjoining the property of Frederick Rexrode and Margaret D. Rexrode, his wife, (formerly Edwin Nesselrodt) as conveyed to J. Herman Trumbo and Mary Madeline Trumbo by Audley G. Simmons and Lena Simmons, his wife, in that certain Deed dated April 8, 1957, and of record in the Clerk's Office aforesaid in Deed Book 78 at page 485.

The conveyance was also made subject to the provision contained in the aforesaid Deed to J. Herman Trumbo and Mary Madeline Trumbo, his wife, providing that said parties shall build and maintain the fence on the west side of the parcel con-

PROBLEMS UNDERSTANDING?

Could it be hearing loss, or is it just earwax? Earwax can mimic hearing loss by blocking certain consonant sounds. A hearing professional can examine and assess why you have problems understanding.

Take advantage of this FREE opportunity to have your ear canals inspected using a video otoscope.
