"We Couldn't Be More Proud of What He's Accomplished and Who He Is," David Seymour's Life of Service to Pendleton County Youth and Agriculture

By Stephen Smoot

Some men measure their impact on others in years. Others think in terms of contributions over decades.

Recently retired as the county's WVU Extension Agent, David Seymour might best measure his influence on the region's farming and youth agriculture education in generations, considering his impact on families through the years. He described the privilege of working with "three generations of farm families. The most rewarding thing is getting to deal with grandfathers, fathers, sons, and women in the family too."

Steve Conrad, president of the Pendleton County Farm Bureau rated him as "the best county agent in the state and had tremendous impact in sheep and cattle as well."

Seymour has served state farmers and agriculture education since the middle of the Carter Administration. He spent his first two years in Barbour County teaching agriculture, then moved to Pendleton County to serve in numerous capacities for 44 years. His tenure of service included 14 ½ years teaching at Franklin High School, then nearly three decades as WVU Extension Agent.

His wife, Barbara, noted that "to me, Dave's career is more of a ministry. He never says no to helping anyone with anything." This has included helping farmers with crops, teaching homeowners about insects and gardening, and putting together an infrastructure to best market local cattle.

For Seymour, however, the biggest passion lies in "working for the youth, helping everyone advance themselves in agriculture." He added, "I've seen people like John McCoy go from 14 years old to 50 years and older."

McCoy, a Pendleton County farmer, remembered that when he first met Seymour, "I was an active kid with ADD, pretty hyper and a little out of control." He explained that one summer, his parents bought him some sheep as a project and added, "My parents tried hard to help, but were not active in agriculture at the time."

"The first time I met him," McCoy said, "was at the fair. Mom and I were there together and we had no idea." At the time, Seymour was the high school FFA advisor and McCoy was still in elementary school. He noted that "he had no duty to help me," but asked "hey, do you guys need any help?"

Despite sheep not falling within his expertise at the time, he told McCoy "we'll figure it out together" and spent two hours assisting the project. "He didn't have to do that," McCoy remembered, "but he was all in." He also described Seymour as having a gift in engaging shy children and getting them to be more outspoken and involved.

Seymour also understood that travel could create life changing experiences for Pendleton County youth, organizing trips for the FFA and 4H to places like Kansas City and Louisville. He said, "I've seen our kids go from no electronics to now when we're doing farming by GPS." McCoy described how he organized similar trips for older farmers to Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa so they could see and learn information and techniques used elsewhere. He said, "he was always good at getting people to see things, have new experiences, and look at the world differently."

"He probably influenced some of the older students and farmers to do things better than they had in the past," Carl Hevener explained, "including new technology, field trials, and different ways of doing things than their grandparents had done." He also teamed with Carole Hartman to preserve Thorn Spring Park.

McCoy credits Seymour for bringing millions of additional dollars to the county's cattle industry through organizing calf pulls, beginning in 1998. These events bring larger numbers of producers and cattle together for more efficient marketing and sale. "He ramrodded it through," McCoy said, then added, "he went way beyond to make sure it worked and did a lot of marketing."

Marketing included hands-on efforts with producers, taking a van load of producers to the feed yards so they could learn more about the process and what they are working toward. Hevener estimated that the calf pull boosted "sales of the cattle anywhere from five to 20 cents, depending on the weight of the cattle compared to regular markets at the time."

All farmers had a friend in Seymour, but particularly the smaller operations. McCoy said "he didn't cherry pick, but made effort to help the little guy." This included "going to bat for us, traveling to meetings and seminars for weeks and months" to speak against EPA overreach and fighting on behalf of those he believed in. As McCoy said, "a lot of stuff they were trying to promote would cripple people."

Hevener remembered that when meeting with elected officials and others from the government, "Dave used politically correct terms when other farmers might use other terms."

One of the great constants over time is change and Seymour sees the need for area farmers to adapt when needed. "The cost of agriculture is really going up," he says "and the cost of the food supply is passed on to the consumer." According to Seymour, while most national statistics claim 8% nationally, for farmers the number lies between 20-25%.

"As prices rise," he says, "small farms are more challenging to be profitable." Seymour foresees that rising costs, plus the consolidation of meatpacking into a small number of megaproducers, will force change. That could come in smaller farmers looking for profitable niches to fill.

Seymour also added that "communities need to be more self-reliant" and that the agriculture industry should respond to rising fuel costs by shortening supply chains and selling regionally or locally. "We have no need to ship vegetables from California," he notes.

"He'll be hard to replace," said Hevener, "someone's got awfully big shoes to fill, whoever steps into his position."

Barbara added that he has also filled the most important roles in his family life, saying "he has served God and community and been a wonderful father and husband."

"Above it all, I got to be the one to share this extraordinary life with him. We are truly blessed."

FGU Researches Walnut Syrup

Lindsay Kazarick and Kate Fotos demonstrate the mobile syrup production trailer for Future Generations University.

By Stephen Smoot

Three years ago, Future Generations University used grant funding from the West Virginia State Department of Agriculture to fund studies on tapping sap from trees other than maple. Since then, researchers have studied the economic and biological viability of syrups produced from trees besides maple.

With walnut syrup topping $500 a gallon at retail, many have gotten sweet on the potential for the product for the region. Future Generations University's Kate Fotos explains that Pendleton County has untapped potential in walnut syrup, saying "we have three producers with about 500 walnut taps a piece."

Although the economic development focus and scientific research into walnut syrup is new, the product is not. As Luke Taylor-Ide from the university describes, "I've been running into people who have been doing this for years, talking to residents of West Virginia who didn't have maples, but have walnuts."

Traditions of walnut syrup production in West Virginia reach back into the frontier period. Roane County has hosted a Black Walnut Festival since 1961 which features a wide range of walnut products, including syrup.

Researchers at the university, however, are looking to turn tradition into a profitable industry for the region. They are seeking to establish what level of sap harvesting is most safe and efficient with walnut trees. As Professor Mike Rechlin explained, they are seeking to "see how intensely you can tap a tree," to determine the "sustainability of tapping." Scientists on site measure growth rates, healing rates, and the sap in the wood.

The science will also establish the different processes optimally used to create both maple and walnut syrup, even though one can use the same equipment to produce both. Fotos explains that the project aims higher than research. She pointed out that walnut syrup has a "pretty high profit margin."

The university's intent, just as with its maple syrup project,

National DAR Day of Service Observed

The National Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) Day of Service is celebrated each year on or around Oct. 11. It is a day to honor the anniversary of DAR's founding on Oct. 11, 1890. Chapters and individuals are encouraged to engage in meaningful service projects in their communities each year on or around this date.

At their monthly meeting on Oct.15, the South Branch Valley, NSDAR, 10 members and one prospective member brought donations of non-perishable food items, personal hygiene products, socks, and other requested items for active military personnel. As their National DAR Day of Service to America project, 10 boxes were packed to be mailed to military personnel who are currently deployed. There were many items left over after packing the boxes. These will be donated to a local food pantry and the Martinsburg VA Medical Center.

The South Branch Valley, NSDAR serves four counties, Hardy, Grant, Pendleton, and Hampshire.

One of the many committees the organization is actively involved in is the community classroom. This committee seeks out the needs of schools/students in the area of service. The project adopted this year is to provide a school in each county with requested supplies, rotating counties each year. Capon Bridge Middle School was contacted and requested personal hygiene products for its sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Three boxes were filled with donations from members of the chapter and delivered to the school by Judy Bowyer, regent.

The DAR is a volunteer service organization dedicated to the preservation of history, promoting patriotism and the education of our children. Any woman 18 years or older, regardless of race, religion, or ethnic background who can prove lineal descent from a patriot of the American Revolution is eligible for membership. DAR volunteers are available and willing to assist with guidance in genealogy research for women interested in becoming a member.

For more information, visit the DAR website at www. dar.org, email inquiries to membership@dar.org, or contact Bonnie Myers, chapter registrar, at khs7377@

Yellow Jackets Hold Off Wildcats on Homecoming

By Stephen Smoot

To learn to fly, one must first walk. That walk will inevitably involve adversity until one begins to fly and rises above it.

Last Friday night, the Wildcats hosted a Moorefield team whose record has not matched the normal expectations of the Yellow Jacket faithful. They had defeated Pocahontas County and Southern in similar fashion as Pendleton County while falling to East Hardy, Tucker County, and Petersburg.

Moorefield brought with them a senior and junior laden team playing for pride against a Wildcat squad with an outside shot at the postseason. The Yellow Jackets also ran an offense different from the Rodriguez influenced spread common in this region, using a system favored by Keyser that features a run heavy offense and misdirection, but discipline to execute properly.

For the Wildcats, quarterback James Vincell returned on offense, but Dillon Smith only had limited availability on defense.

Moorefield started quickly, taking the opening kickoff to their own 44. On the very next play, the Yellow Jackets took the ball and weaved through tacklers to score on a 56-yard run. Thirteen seconds into the game, Moorefield led 7-0.

The younger Wildcats kept fighting back the entire game. In their opening drive Chase Owens started with a 13-yard gain up the middle, powering through a tackler at the end of the run. Once again, Owens ran for almost four yards a carry in the game, gaining 45 yards on 12 attempts. Unfortunately, the drive stalled at the Wildcat 44 and Gabriel Harvey executed a nice punt to put Moorefield back at its own at the six. The defensive line blocked two attempts to run it in, but Moorefield scored its second touchdown on a pass play.

At the start of the second quarter, Pendleton County started a drive at their own nine. Owens started with a gain of six. On the next play a flag negated a big gain on a sweep by Josiah Kimble. Vincell then completed a nine-yard pass to Clayton Kisamore and another for three yards to Kimble. A penalty set the offense back on third down, however, and the drive stalled at the Wildcat 30.

Moorefield started its next drive at its own 33 after a chop block personal foul, but saw the Wildcat defense end it quickly. Owens jumped a pass route and intercepted the ball, evading tacklers on a 30yard return for the first Wildcat score of the night.

After the Owens touchdown, Moorefield received the ball with approximately six minutes left in the half. They settled in and executed a sustained drive that placed them on the Wildcat 27 with 14 seconds left. From there, Moorefield took a deep handoff to the endzone and led at halftime

Pendleton County took the next opportunity to punch back as they opened the third quarter with the ball, starting with Bradey Bowers returning the kickoff to the Wildcat 36. On the first play, Kisamore broke up what could have been an interception, keeping the ball with the offense. On second down, Justus Kuykendall exploded up the middle for an eightyard gain, followed by a 14 yard completion from Moorefield's defense then sacked Vincell and stopped a sweep for no gain. On third and 16, Vincell fired a pass to Connor Armentrout who walked a tightrope on the left sideline to scurry into the endzone. A Harvey PAT brought Pendleton

County within seven at 21-14.

Again, Moorefield responded with a long, sustained, patient drive with 11 runs and a pass that ended in a touchdown extending their lead to 28-14. The Wildcats tried to fire back. Taking the ball at their own 32, the offense gave up 11 yards on a block in the back penalty. On third and 15, Vincell floated a short pass to Owens that he advanced 18 yards to the Pendleton County 45.

In the opening minutes of the fourth quarter, Kimble took a pass to the Moorefield 36, followed by a 13yard run by Owens. Just as Moorefield's defense found themselves on their heels, however, they recovered a fumble and ran the ball back for their final score of the night.

Owens turned in one of his best games of the season, making big plays in the run and pass game, as well as on defense. The defensive line also turned in a strong performance. accounting for nearly half of the tackles. Terry Harvey Jr. led the team with 10 and Blake Harris and Lucas Redman each posting eight.

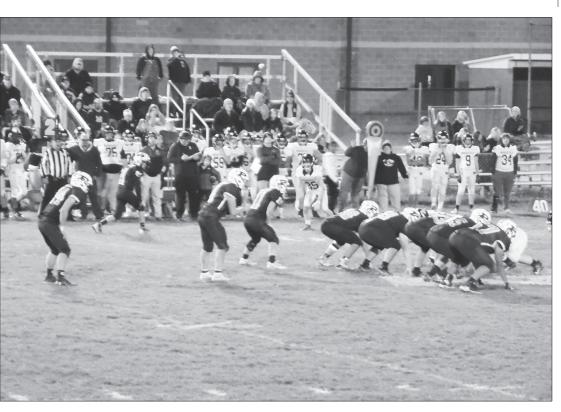

Tomorrow night, the Wildcats will host Cameron. Cameron comes in undefeated and ranked third in single A as of press time. They enjoyed an undefeated season last year as well, but fell to Gilmer County in the first round of the playoffs.

Offensive Statistics Passing: Vincell 17/23 201 yards TD

Rushing: Owens 12-45, Kuykendall 3-4, Vincell 3-2 Receiving: Kisamore 7-70, Armentrout 2-60 TD, Owens 5-54, Kimble 3-17

Defensive Statistics

Tackles: Terry Harvey Jr. 10, Dillon Smith 8, Redman 8, Harris 8, Bowers 6, Vincell 5, Kuykendall 5, Owens 3, Armentrout 3, Alex Reyes 3, Kisamore 1, Kimble 1

James Vincell returned to lead the offense last Friday, throwing for 201 yards, a touchdown, and almost a 75% completion percentage.

Wildcats Steal Thunder From Golden Tornados 3-0

Wildcat volleyballers celebrate a big spike at the net.

By Stephen Smoot

Almost two months ago, double A Keyser nearly defeated Pendleton County's volleyball squad.

Last week the Wildcats stormed into Keyser with an F5 level performance that wiped away opposition resistance, turning the usually raucous Keyser Krazy student section

Pendleton County had already earned the top seed in the sectionals coming into the game. This meant that the Wildcats enjoyed a bye before playing in their first postseason game Tuesday.

Game one opened with Wildcat spikes playing a role in three of the first four scores. Precision and aggression at the net early set the tone for the contest. Jenna Smith helped to break the game open early, serving six straight times. She was helped by spikes from Arianna Young and Kate Hedrick. At the end of Smith's service, the Wildcats held an 8-3 lead.

Keyser took advantage of miscues to score three straight, but Pendleton County regained control through Young's serving to extend the lead to 10-5. From there, the Wildcats went on a 10-5 run fueled by excellent serving from Elizabeth Alt, Avery Townsend, and Baylee Beachler. Pendleton Countv remained active at the net, with Beachler adding two spikes, a tap at the net, and an ace.

Game one ended with Allie Cooper serving and Young providing an exclamation point with a powerful spike.

Keyser jumped in front first in the second game with the early minutes very competitive. Keyser took a 6-5 lead, despite two spikes by Gabrielle DePue. The Wildcats then exploded on an 11-0 run on 11 straight serves by Young. Precision serving helped to keep Keyser off balance as Pendleton County dominated the net.

As the second game wound to a close, the Wildcats stayed well ahead of Keyser with a DePue spike, a Beachler ace, and costly mistakes by the opposition.

The Golden Tornados have seven seniors to Pendleton County's one, but the Wildcats looked more experienced. Although Keyser boasted solid athleticism, it could not contend with the set plays and sheer effort displayed by Pendleton County. Coach Rod Cooper explained that "a lot of hard work has been put in that is now starting gressive and confident," to pay off." This includes running "middles" plays to confuse the opposition, encouraging players to diversify personal skill sets and more.

Pendleton County's hard work and dedication to get better individually and collectively accounted for the dominant result over a Keyser team that almost beat them less than two months ago.

Assistant coach Madison Day praised the Wildcats "willingness to put their bodies on the line to put the ball up." She added, "they've got a lot of grit and that's something that you can't coach." Keyser started game three refusing to surrender, battling to a 4-4 tie. As she had done all night, Young commenced a long serve streak that led to a 7-0 run and built an insurmountable lead. During that run, Hedrick had a block and a spike, Townsend a spike, and Young an ace.

Shortly thereafter, Pendleton County tore through a 9-0 run, taking the game to 24-11. Alt served four straight times, including an ace, and Townsend's six straight also included an ace. The Wildcats often pressured the ball at the net with a two-player wall, relying on others athleticism to track down the ball and set it back up for a return.

Day explained that "we've gotten more agadding that "we're playing to our strengths." Coach Cooper added that the team is peaking at the best possible time with the postseason this week.

On Tuesday, Pendleton County faced Petersburg in sectional play. See next week's edition for coverage of the sectional games.

The Pendleton Past

by Harold Garber

Let me share Dr. Musick's Pendleton County story "30: The Murdered Prisoner's Ghost."

"About 1900, the Hall family lived near a socalled haunted hollow on a farm in Pendleton County. Their house was on one side of a dirt road, and on the other side stood two hills with a hollow between them. About halfway up the hollow stood an old log

The story was told that the log cabin in the hollow was used as a jail during the Civil War. One day an inmate dressed in white (probably his underwear) tried to escape. He ran as far as one of the hills, but was shot. Blood poured out of his right leg and stained his white pants. He reeled around, stretching forth his arm in a gesture of surrender, but was shot in the other leg. Blood also poured from his left leg. He was carried into the cabin, dead. It is not known whether he was buried or

As the years passed, the cabin decayed, the roof fell in and the area around it was grown over with brush. But when people passed by the cabin, they could hear the cries of anguish and

When Mrs. Hall moved into this area, she knew the hollow was supposed to be haunted, but she did not know the story of the prisoner. The Hill family grazed their cattle on one side of the hill, and it was Mrs. Hall's chore to bring them home every evening.

One evening a few cattle strayed up beyond the cabin. In taking a short cut, Mrs. Hall passed the cabin and heard the moans. She was not a woman to be easily frightened and called out in a loud voice, "I've heard there are ghosts in the hollow. If you're a ghost...come out! I'm not afraid. And if you're a man, come out. I'm still not afraid!"

But the noise that followed did frighten her. Hearing a loud rumbling, as if someone was removing debris, she ran down the hill toward her nearest neighbors. As she ran, she turned to see a man dressed in white, with two bloodstained legs, standing on the hill with his arms raised.

2,833 Homes in County May Contain Lead-Based Paint

It's not used for pencils and no longer in paint or gasoline. But lead is still a potential health hazard for Here's the concern. An estimated 60-80 percent of homes in West Virginia were built before 1978. Any house or apartment built before 1978 may contain lead-based paint. Lead can also be found in dust, dirt, old pipes, firearms and fishing weights.

"Lead is most dangerous for children under six years of age because they put their hands in their mouths plus their growing bodies absorb lead faster," said Chris Curtis, acting commissioner of the West Virginia Bureau for Public Health. "High levels of lead in children's blood can damage their brains and nervous system. It can also cause behavior and learning problems and slowed growth among other

The United States Environmental Protection Agency estimates there are 551,031 homes in West Virginia with lead-based paint in them. Below is a countyby-county breakdown.

- Pendleton—2,833
- Grant—2,816 homes; • Tucker—2,472 homes;

Proper Flying Of the American Flag Is Important

Americans rallied around the flag following the terrorist attacks on our homeland last Sept. 11. The vicious attack against American citizens resulted in a renewed realization of what our flag symbolizes, and Americans nationwide were quick to show the

Of course, there are always some who carry their flag waving a little too far. Personally, I am not very fond of the hundreds of flagcovered products suddenly available at stores, seemingly taking advantage of the tragedy to profit—but that's just my opinion.

Whether you fly the American flag daily or only on special occasions, you want to display the flag properly and with respect.

When attaching a flagpole to your house, windowsill or balcony, be sure the bracket is fastened securely so the flag won't become soiled or damaged. It doesn't take a great deal of wind to make the flag wave, and the weight and movement of the flag puts considerable stress on the flagpole and bracket.

Most Americans are aware the flag should never be allowed to touch the ground, but may not be aware it should not touch the floor, water or anything else beneath it, and the union is always at the peak. If the blue rectangle with white stars is flown down, it is a signal of distress. When displaying the flag in windows, the union should appear on the left when seen from outside the home. When hung horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be at the top and to the left.

It is customary to fly the flag from sunrise to sunset, and military bases follow this custom explicitly and with a great deal of ceremony. However, many of us are not always home at the right time to ensure the flag is raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset, so lighting the flag is a proper option. Flying the flag 24 hours a day it is always illuminated.

We see a lot of people flying flags on their cars. When doing so, the flagstaff should be clamped to the right side of the car, and the flag should never drape over any part of the vehicle. Displaying the flag properly from cars and floats in parades is important. When in a parade, the flag should never be carried flat or horizontally.

There are other rules for properly displaying the American flag, such as the flag's position with other flags on platforms, behind podiums, in front of church pulpits. Even flag lapel pins have rules-they should be worn on the left side near your heart.

There is a proper procedure and ceremony for disposing of a tattered or worn flag. Check with your local American Legion or VFW posts.

Computers Come to Pendleton; Films Will Explain Their Use

Do you know how computers affect your life? Do you know what computers will be like in just two or three years, and how your life may be changed? Do you know what computers can do for you?

The Woodlands Institute is sponsoring, through the State Library Commission, the West Virginia premier showing of "The Computer Programme," a series of training films which answer these questions, and then give the basic training needed to sit down at a small computer and begin programming in BASIC, a common computer lan-

Over the next five weeks, the series of 10 films will be shown county-wide in sets of two films per week. All county schools will have the films available and most have begun schedul-

At least four computers are now operating in this county, including one in the Franklin High School. Another computer is being installed this week in the school system and several more are expected in the schools before December. Two other local organizations plan to have computers by the end of the winter. We may have 10 computers in Pendleton County before spring. How will they fit into your life? These films may help you answer that question.

Grant Opens Campaign At Vicksburg

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant opened one of his most famous campaigns 100 years ago this week—a long, hard-fought campaign to capture Vicksburg, Miss., and to clear the Mississippi River of Confederates from end to end.

It was a small beginning—in fact, nothing more than a message from Grant to Gen. Henry W. Halleck, his commander in Washington. But Grant, himself, claims the message, on November 2, marks the beginning of the campaign. The end was still far off; in fact, nearly a year and a series of serious battles would pass before Vicksburg finally would surrender. Grant was in Jackson,

Tenn., that November 2, and he knew the job awaiting him. Thanks to his victories at Forts Henry and Donelson, his and Gen. Don Carlos Buell's victory at Shiloh, Gen. John Pope's victory at Island No. 10 and the fall of Memphis, the Mississippi was now cleared of Confederates from its northern reaches to below Memphis. At New Orleans, too, the river was in Federal hands, and Federal troops sailed freely northward past Baton Vicksburg, alone, with its huge guns overlooking the river from the bluffs, was the bottleneck in Federal plans. Grant must take Vicksburg and cut the Confederacy in two.

To do this, Grant had about 30,000 men that November 2, scattered through western Tennessee and northern Mississippi. He was opposed by an equal force commanded by Confederate Gen. J. C. Pemberton at Vicksburg, along the Tallahatchie River, Holly Springs, Miss., and Grand Junction, Tenn.

It was time to move, and Grant's message announced the movement: "I have commenced a movement on Grand Junction with three divisions from Corinth and two from Bolivar. Will leave here tomorrow and take command in person. If found practicable, I will go to Holly Springs, and, maybe, Grenada, completing railroad and telegraph as I go." And accordingly, next day, the Federal troops moved out southward and westward across the state line, into Mississippi countryside. They were well equipped and rested from the pleasant and quiet months of September and October, and they moved forward with eagerness.

It was on this march that Grant's men strayed from their ranks, looted Southern homes of food, clothing and jewelry and, at times, set fire to buildings, leaving ruins behind them. Grant, according to one man with him, fully acknowledged that his men behaved abominably and made efforts to arrest the guilty persons. But he could not let the atrocities committed by his men stop his march southward.

Next week: Election Day.

4,495 Registered In County -How Many Will Vote?

Registration Drops 324 In Two Years

A total of 4,495 residents of Pendleton County are registered to vote in next Tuesday's election according to figures released yesterday by County Clerk Luther H. Eye.

The registration at this time is 324 less than the number registered to vote in the county in the presidential election of 1960 and 111 less than were registered for the so called off-year election of 1958. Registration figures usually are higher for presidential elections because of the stepped-up political activity during those years.

Halloween Festivities Provide Much Amusement

Sugar Grove

By Paula Mitchell

The tradition of Der Belsnickel was brought to America by German immigrants and was soon adopted by other settlers. The Sugar Grove community was settled by Germans and so it made sense to bring this tradition with them. Lots of fun was had. However, over a period of time, this tradition gave way to what is now celebrated as Halloween, (on a toned-down level of entertainment).

The community children from far and wide donned their Halloween attire and made their way around the neighborhoods, Saturday night. The "tricks" have all but disappeared, with treats being passed out to all instead. Homeowners enjoyed the children coming to their home. Oftentimes, it was difficult to determine who the disguised visitors were.

Promptly at 6:30 p.m., the party continued at the Sugar Grove Rescue Squad building. The costumes were perhaps the best in quite a while. It was evident that a lot of thought went into them to be presented at the costume judging. Categories were scariest, most beautiful, super hero, funniest, best homemade and most creative, with the judges having quite a difficult time determining the Many games were played following the judging contest. Perhaps the most popular one being musical chairs. D.J. Sam Moats kept everyone in a jolly mood, with master of ceremonies being Jason Smith who outdid himself.

As always, refreshments followed the fun. Surprisingly, the children cooperated with this very well. All in all, the night was quite successful with many thanks to the Rescue Squad and Lions Club for delivering many happy memories for the children of the community.

Sunday's All Saints' Eve Trunk or Treat sponsored by the United Methodist South Fork Charge had a nice crowd of attendees. The Bible came alive with characters of Moses, Noah, Esther, Daniel and King Solomon. Seeing the manna and the Fruit of the Spirit was quite lies in "enterprise diversification." Taylor-Ide explained that the university wants to spur economic development through helping landowners make the most from their resources. "We want people to get more economic return off what they already have, their land."

Maple syrup already brings money into the region. A Virginia Tech study claims that the oldest maple festival anywhere, held in Highland County, Virginia, earned $2.5to $3 million for the area.

Although maple does sell well in the region, the university has higher hopes for walnut syrup and other related products. States such as Vermont, New York, and Ohio, as well as the province of Quebec in Canada, have robust maple syrup production in place already. Starting a walnut syrup industry from scratch could give West Virginia a competitive advantage in production. As Taylor-Ide suggests, "we don't have to be number one in maple if this is the only place to

Evan Nelson of Marshall University's Robert C. Byrd Institute said in a recent newsletter that "Canada and Vermont pretty much own the game when it comes to maple syrup. But in Vermont they have only three – count 'em, three – walnut trees in the whole state. Heck, I have three walnut trees in my backyard."

Nelson added, "At wholesale, maple syrup sells for about $40 a gallon, while walnut syrup, which is darker and richer, sells for $400 a gallon. That's a huge opportunity for us if we can take advantage of it."

Innovation is not confined to developing syrups from walnut. "We need to break the mold that says that sugar maple is somehow superior than others," Rechlin said. While the northern states focus on sugar maple, the university has promoted production of maple syrup from red and black maples as well.

The ultimate goal in developing maple, walnut, and even sycamore syrups in Pendleton County lies in using the products to boost both agriculture and tourism. Farmers can earn more from their land while unique products draw visitors in to local businesses. Those working with these syrups can add value by transforming the syrups into other products, such as candies, liquors, and more.

The final leg of the stool for the university is public engagement. Staff regularly take the "sapmobile" into the community. This enclosed trailer contains all the equipment needed to produce moderate amounts of any syrup. Fotos describes it as "a great educational tool" because it demonstrates each step-in production.

NFES Students Explore Sinks of Gandy

By Mckenzie Vandevander

Sixth-grader at North Fork Elementary

Sixth- and fifth-grade students from North Fork Elementary School traveled Sept. 29 to Experience Learning on Spruce Knob to experience exploring a cave, Sinks of Gandy.

Classmates shared their favorite parts of the cave. One of the classmates said that sound of the calming water was her favorite part, and one of the fifth graders said that his favorite part was where they saw the sun reflect on the water near the creek.

Fifth-grade students only went half way through the cave. The sixth graders explored the entire cave twice, having gone through quickly the first time.

Students had many new experiences throughout the cave. They went through two holes, the Lemon Squeeze and the Wormhole. The students also saw many creatures throughout the cave like salamanders, fish, and crawdads. The sixth graders got to swim out both times and play in the creek.

Exploring the cave was a fun and learning experience. Students learned how the stalagmites and stalactites form in caves. It takes more than 190,000 years to form one of them, and they grow less than 10 cm every thousand years.

SFVFD Received $500,000 Grant Turkey Season is For New Tanker, Still Has Need

By Stephen Smoot

Earlier this month, the South Fork Volunteer Fire Department won a federal grant for nearly half a million dollars. According to rules established in the grant, the funds must be solely used to purchase a desperately needed 3,000-gallon tanker.

As Jeff Bowers, SFVFD president, explained, "We didn't get $500,000. We received money to be applied to a tanker." He added that the department must "provide a percentage of the purchase price" as well.

"We don't have a real modern tanker," explains Nila Bland who serves as treasurer and administrator. Tankers become key pieces of equipment, as Bland explains, "if you are on the back roads and have no hydrants then you need something to haul water in."

Funds will come from a Federal Emergency Management Agency Fiscal Year 2022 Assistance to Firefighters

Grant funding replaced the old "earmark" system. At one time, US Senators and Representatives could use the process to get federal funds to support specific projects. Former US Senator Robert Byrd steered millions to West Virginia under the old ways. When Congress outlawed earmarks, competitive grants became one of the most important paths to obtain federal funds to support local Obtaining grants requires skill, patience, and effort. Bland explains that the application process can take time, saying "we waited on it for a year." Much of the time was spent by Bland and others working with the grant writer. Federal grants especially require significant amounts of information with applicants spending time and effort researching needed data.

According to the federal website Grants.gov, the work does not end with the awarded money. The organization must make sure that "grant dollars are used for their intended purpose" and that "grant recipients must account for costs and justify expenditures.'

Most federal grants come with specific stipulations on how to spend the money. Some have loose guidelines, while others impose strict mandates. Those who violate mandates put their organizations at risk for receiving future funds. Moreover, administrators could be prosecuted for any misuse of funds.

Another difficulty arises when some jurisdictions lack the human capital to find and successfully apply for grants, which has fortunately not been the case for Pendleton County.

As Bland stated, "people still need to give." Although the grant will help to pay for a vehicle, "we need more than just one." Fire houses stock large amounts of needed equipment, some of which have expiration dates and require replacement. Wear and tear on vehicles and gas expenses for the current fleet can add up as well. Much of the equipment needed comes at a high cost, especially in a time of fast rising inflation.

The fire department also seeks to raise money in other ways. Bland provided one example, saying "we are in the process of selling by sealed bid our Mack tanker." The Mack lacks modern equipment, such as an efficient 1,000 gallon per minute pump, more visible LED headlights, and other needs that the new tanker will possess.

Open Until Nov. 13

West Virginia's fall hunting season for wild turkey continues through Nov. 13 in Berkeley, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Randolph, Tucker and Webster counties.

All hunters 15 and older are required to have a valid West Virginia hunting license and a valid form of identification while hunting. Resident landowners hunting on their land do not need a hunting license. A West Virginia hunting license can be purchased at license agents across the state or online at WVhunt.com.

During the fall wild turkey season, only one bird of either sex can be harvested using a bow, crossbow or gun, including air rifles that are .22 caliber or larger. Hunting hours range from 30 minutes before sunrise to 30 minutes after sunset. The use of electronic calls and bait is prohibited.

For more information about the fall wild turkey season, download a copy of the 2022-2023 West Virginia Hunting and Trapping Regulations Summary, available online at WVdnr.gov/hunting-regulations.

Potomac Highlands Ag Showcase Encourages Youth

By Ammie Ruddle

Potomac Highlands Ag Innovation Showcase was hosted Oct. 14 and 15 by Eastern Ag Innovation at Eastern West Virginia Community and Technical College in Moorefield.

The two-day event showcased agriculture careers and vendors for area students and the general public and featured displays, information from federal and state government agencies, agriculture-related vendors and employers and various departments at Eastern.

Friday began with student activities that included an agricultural career fair, a vendor demonstration area, and tours of the college.

In addition, there was an agricultural technology and innovation student challenge competition, which was won by a team from Mineral County.

Norman Bailey, chief of staff of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, stated in a news release that he was encouraged to see so many young people interested in agricultural endeavors.

One of the main attractions on Saturday was a demonstration of the Te Pari Racewell sheep-handling system by Scott Bowdridge, Ph.D., assistant professor of food animal production at West Virginia University. Sheep were supplied from the farm of Brad and Alexandria

Multiple vendors participated in the two-day event including: Pilgrim's, Eastern Career Services, Merck Animal Health, West Virginia's Jumpstart Savings Program, Farm Credit Knowledge Center, Eastern Workforce Education Department, USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, USDA Farm Service Agency, James River Equipment, Weese Farm - Veggies & Blooms, West Virginia Department of Agriculture, Science Department's Te Pari Sheep Handling System.

In addition to the vendors, food was also available from Meadowbrook Farms BBQ of Maysville.

"The Ag Innovation Showcase provided a great opportunity to share available resources, innovative equipment, and technologies to benefit agriculture operations," Megan Webb, Ph.D., dean of advancement and continuing education at Eastern, stated in the news release. "We look forward to offering this public event and celebration of agriculture in conjunction with our Youth Ag Innovation Showcase and the Potomac Highlands Ag Technology and Innovation Student Challenge next year."

Eastern Ag Innovation is part of Eastern's Workforce Education Department, and provides a range of agricultural workforce development, education, and training opportunities in the Potomac Highlands.

Proud to have the support of all of these organizations & the hardworking people they represent!

Spruce Mountain Man Was Asset to North Fork

By Charles Teter

The story I am about to write is about a man named Moses Bennett who was born in the year of 1869. He was born, raised, and lived in the Spruce Mountain area, which is the highest point (4863 square feet) in West Virginia. At the time of his birth, West Virginia had just become a state in 1863, breaking off from Virginia. During that period of time people depended on wildlife for their food supply. Wildlife was plentiful. People didn't go out and shoot game for the fun of it. They took only

Food supplies such as salt and other spices were purchased at Circleville, a little community that developed around a man named Zircle who operated the post office there. The location, if you are aware of the old baseball field at Circleville High School, with home base being at 12 o'clock, the little post office was located at about two o'clock across a small stream on a bank.

The writer as a young boy, use to chase baseballs over there and would wonder what that odd depression was in the ground. The land is now owned by Robert Phares. The old post office still stands in another location. From Moses' log cabin to Circleville was about 15 miles down and 15 miles up. So, in elevation, you dropped from 4800 feet to 2500 feet. Moses' physical features were very large. He was 6.2 inches tall, straight as an arrow, very muscular and strong.

What did Moses do? He was very intelligent, always working to find out more of what was going on around him. That is why he would always stop and talk to people when he came upon them. As I stated previously, he would come to Circleville to get supplies. A bag of flour, sugar, or salt was sold in 100-pound bags. Once Moses put this on his shoulder, he never laid it down until he arrived at home on Spruce. If he happened to come upon was approximately 75 yards away from the road going south. From this area he had a beautiful view of the North Fork Valley, North Fork Mountain and Blue Ridge Mountain into Virginia. He actually could see as far as the eye allowed him to see. On a clear day one can see forever.

Moses was employed by the West Virginia US Forlimb broke which caused an injury to his leg that he carried to his grave. After Moses' death, the tower was burned down by vandals.

The author can remember as a young boy going up on Spruce and seeing the charred remains of the tower. Modern ways of fire observation came along. It was the fire tower where men stayed day and night during fire season. One fire tower was located at Gatewood switch.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Meets

By Betty Inskeep

Grant County Coordinator

Alpha Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met on Oct. 22 at the Forman Community Center in Grant County. The room was festively decorated in fall colors with mum centerpieces and gourd favors with "The Gourd Prayer" attached.

Alpha Kappa is comprised of members from Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral and Pendleton counties. Betty Inskeep gave the blessing before the 25 attendees enjoyed a delicious brunch prepared by Betty Coffman.

Vickie Skavenski, president, called the meeting to order, and Ann Bennett led the Pledge of Allegiance. Grant County hostesses gave inspirational thoughts entitled "A Prayer for Autumn Days." Ruby Alvaro shared a memorial tribute for Mineral County member Sharon Floyd who passed on June 21. Members learned of the death of Jo Ann Wilking, a former Hardy County member, on Sept. 11.

New members, Karen Davis, Beth Barr, Janice Heavner, Jessica Saville and Judy Bowyer, were introduced

Donna Kuhn, Sharon Harr, Patty Adkins, Yvonne Williams, Vickie Saville and Vickie Skavenski.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Pendleton County Schools Department of Special Education will be destroying the confidential records that have been maintained for students that were tested to determine their eligibility to receive services as exceptional students. Records will continue to be kept on all students who are now in school. All confidential records of students placed in Special Education Programs are maintained for six years after the student exits the school system. We are currently destroying records on students who graduated in 2014, 2015 & 2016.

Federal and state laws require that we provide public notification of our intent to destroy these records and that we provide the opportunity for students and their parents or guardians to review these records prior to their destruction. We will begin this process on November 21, 2022. If you have any questions or wish to review or receive records, please contact Malynda Selmon at 304-358-7065 ext. 126.

King and Queen Crowned At Homecoming Game

By Natasha Wilson

There was plenty of excitement at Friday night's homecoming game between the Wildcats and the Yellow Jackets, including the crowning of this year's king and queen, Haiden Waggy and Ryleigh Cook. Flower girl, Addie Miller, and crown bearer, Hyrum Hartman did an amazing job filling their role for the evening.

Due to attending the 95th National FFA Convention, Cook was not present to accept the crown. Her mother, Jennifer Cook, stepped in and accepted on her daughter's

20% Discount Program Helps Pay Utility Bills

By Charlotte Lane

Public Service Commission Chairman

As winter approaches, it is time to start preparing for the heating season. All around the world, the cost of fuel is higher than last year. While the Public Service Commission doesn't control the cost of natural gas, coal or any other fuel source - those prices are determined by the open market - we know heating bills will be higher this year. Sadly, such increases always hit hardest on those who are most vulnerable, so I want to spread the word that help is available.

If a person is eligible to receive financial assistance through the Department of Health and Human Resources, one is probably also eligible for a discounted rate on one's heating bill. The Special ice Rate Program, better known as the 20% Discount Program, is administered by DHHR and is available from all natural gas and electric utilities, except municipal or cooperative service providers. West Virginia American Water Company also participates in the program.

In order to qualify for the rate reduction, a person must receive assistance from at least one of the following programs: Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, previously called Food Stamps, if the recipient is at least 60 years old; Social Security Supplemental Security Income; or WV WORKS, previously called Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Temporary Aid to Needy Families. A person must receive these LIHEAP assistance, it program benefits between could give a person just November and March to the edge one needs to stay receive the reduced rate comfortable and warm this for the gas and/or elec-

Reduced Residential Serv- tric bills issued for those months. The discount program for West Virginia American Water runs year round.

> While DHHR administers the program, individual utilities are responsible for determining who will be granted the reduced rate. If a person qualifies to apply for the discount, DHHR will notify one. Then a person may contact one's utility companies to apply. If a person has not been contacted, but feel that one should qualify, contact the local DHHR office to ask for a review.

> Last year the 20% Discount Program saved West Virginians more than $6.5 million on their heating and water bills. If a person combines this resource with the federally-funded
