Clay County Middle School faces the chopping block

By Allen Hamrick

It's been an intense time in Clay County as swirls of talk about the potential closure of Clay Middle School have surfaced ahead of the most recent meeting of the Clay County Board of Education. Rumors and theories on social media amongst parents and other members of the public have led to passionate outcries both for and against the idea. It was time to set the record straight so the Clay Board of Education held their bi-monthly summit and had their first round of peace talks and fact based presentations on the proposal to shut it down.

After a rousing pledge of allegiance from the people at the meeting, the BOE got down to the immediate business at hand, approving minutes and agenda items. Angela Brown was up to the podium first and gave the MOU and budget presentation for Clay County Health Department's joint initiative with Clay County Schools.

After Brown's presentation, CCMS Vice Principal Jocelyn Kiser stood for her allotted five minutes of passionate exhortation, fighting to keep CCMS as a school. She presented a slate of facts comparing other schools that have formed the same type of educational system that may be in store for Clay, elementary and high school while skipping the middle school all together. None of the schools profiled looked like they were prospering academically.

Superintendent Phil Dobbins was up next with the student and staff attendance report, and once he finished, he turned his remaining time to his presentation as to why closing the middle school would be advantageous for Clay County.

The proposal would close the CCMS at or near the 2026-2027 school year, the consequences of which would cause the 6th grade to revert back to add one more year to elementary school and for 7th and 8th grade students to be absorbed into the high school. Superintendent Dobbins made many points as to why the school closing would be under consideration due to the fact that student population continues to spiral down. When the student population dwindles, that means less funding the county gets to operate the schools efficiently.

The new proposal states that new classrooms and other improvements to CCHS would be completed in order to accommodate the 7th and 8th grades. The middle school would be turned into the

WV regulators dismiss AEP rate hike proposal

By Nadia Ramlagan

A proposed rate hike by American Electric Power that would have affected customers in two dozen West Virginia counties is off the table for now.

West Virginia regulators dismissed AEP's case, citing incomplete documents and failure to disclose financial information.

Courtney MacDonald, coalition coordinator with West Virginians for Energy Freedom, said while advocates would like to cheer the case dismissal, it will likely resurface.

She said residents should stay tuned. "There were so many eyes on this case," said MacDonald. "There was a lot of outrage and frustration from West Virginians that already can't afford their electricity bills."

The proposal would have raised rates by nearly 18% - or around $29 a month for residential customers, and hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue for AEP.

The utility argues the rate hike is needed to cover increased costs involved in procuring and supplying energy.

MacDonald contended energy companies should be working to lower costs through efficiency programs and renewable power sources, instead of placing the burden on communities.

"Fifteen to 22% for schools, 25% for churches, and 25% to 30% for small businesses," said MacDonald, "which we all know in this post-COVID world are already struggling."

MacDonald added that residents who want to be involved in the regulatory process and share their views with the Public Service Commission can sign up for alerts online, at energyfreedomwv.org.

"You will get an alert to let you know that it is time to start writing letters again, and we provide a form that makes that easy to do," said MacDonald. "Within two minutes, you can have your own personalized message sent to the PSC."

Mountain State residents saw their average electricity costs jump by 90% between 2005 and 2020, an increase higher than almost all other states, according to the group Conservation West Virginia.

West Virginia Attorney General Patrick Morrissey announced artwork by students from central and southeastern West Virginia, who are regional winners of the office's eighth Kids Kick Opioids contest, were on display at the State Capitol building from Sept. 30 to Oct. 6.

The artwork designs showcasing efforts to raise awareness of opioid abuse were created by Bailey Frame and Jackson Stricker of Clay County Middle School in Clay County; Thomas "Max" Houck, Raegan Bostic, Jayden Dunbar and Tristan Sturdivant of Mountain View Elementary and Middle School in Monroe County; Abigail "Abbie" Markley and Rayna Kerr of Green Bank Elementary and Middle School in Pocahontas County; and Mitchell Koerber, Aubree Dilley, Harmony Thompson and Kaylah Dowling of Marlinton Middle School in Pocahontas County.

Artwork created by Mallory Koerber from Marlinton Middle School in Pocahontas County, which was selected as the statewide winner, along with statewide runners-up Isabella Swayne from Andrew Jackson Middle School in Kanawha County and Catherine Tirona from St. Joseph the Worker School in Hancock County, will be on display at the Capitol through Nov. 12.

"Many West Virginia families have experienced the heartbreaking realities of opioid dependence, and our aim is that the entries from these artistic students will bring greater awareness and change—these entries really showcase the tremendous talent of our elementary and middle school participants," Attorney General Morrissey said.

"Our students are seeing firsthand the devastating effects of opioid use disorder because they are growing up in a time when drug abuse is so prevalent," the Attorney General added. "Our hope is the work of these artistic students will bring greater awareness and change, and touch the minds and hearts of those who view them at the Capitol."

Koerber's design also appeared as a public service announcement in newspapers across West Virginia. In addition, entries from Koerber and the state runners-up can be viewed on the Attorney General's website.

The Attorney General received a total of 2,135 entries from 2,177 students at 71 middle and elementary schools across West Virginia. The submissions included a mix of drawings, poems and other designs aimed at promoting awareness.

Kids Kick Opioids represents one of many initiatives through which the Attorney General has sought to combat West Virginia's drug overdose death rate, including a lawsuit against the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration that achieved sweeping reforms to the nation's drug quota system.

The Attorney General also has fought the opioid crisis with civil litigation, multistate initiatives, funding to target opioid abuse, criminal prosecutions, new technology, engagement with the faith-based community and education.

The West Virginia Board of Pharmacy, West Virginia Association of School Nurses and the Capitol Police assisted the Attorney General in judging the public service announcement contest.

The Public Service Commission of West Virginia welcomes all forms of energy production. The idea of electricity powered by alternative fuels is popular across the United States and resonates across the globe. These fuels include gas, solar, wind, coal, and even nuclear energy.

In line with that, the Commission is seeing an increased number of applications to approve alternative fuel developments in the Mountain State. Our record shows we have welcomed every alternative fuel application we have received.

A quick review of what has happened recently will give you an idea of the diversity of these applications. We have approved gas-fired, wind-driven, and solar-energized projects.

We have not gotten an application for nuclear power ... but if we do ... we will give that due consideration, too.

Here's what we have done in just the last year. In April, we approved the siting in Doddridge County of one of the largest gas-fired electric production plants in the nation. This truly incredible project will provide enough power for 1.8 million homes annually. Furthermore, the $3.3 billion development will not affect any of your rates.

Also last April, we approved a major solar power plant and accompanying battery storage unit in Mineral County. Last December, we endorsed one wind and seven solar projects in conjunction with the state of Virginia. We authorized a major solar project in Mason County last October.

What we do is take each application we receive and give it a fair hearing. I am pleased to say we have approved every alternative energy source petition we have received. Our website has a link called Renewable Energy Projects that lists all the renewables we have approved, and it provides details of those cases. Please take a look.

Coal remains the primary source in West Virginia for electricity production because it is reliable. Maintenance of reliability is one of our top goals. Coal produces electricity at night or when the wind is not blowing.

And while we continue to burn coal, we welcome all forms of energy. I can assure you we will continue to give every application a fair hearing and decide on the merits.

WV Division Of Forestry urges caution during fall fire season starting Oct. 1

Fall fire season started Monday, Oct. 1, and will continue through Dec. 31, the West Virginia Division of Forestry (WV DOF) announced last week.

"This past summer's drought has led to more trees losing their leaves fast this fall," said Jeremy Jones, Director/State Forester of the West Virginia Division of Forestry. "We ask the public to help protect our beautiful forests and follow burning laws and to please be mindful of the weather and conditions we are facing this year."

During the fall, dry leaves and forest floor debris become more flammable. Burning is prohibited during the daytime hours because, even in fall, relative humidity typically increases in the evening.

Debris burning is West Virginia's most common cause of wildfires, averaging more than 35% of all wildfires over the past ten years.

A summary of forest fire laws and safe fire practices can be found on the state Division of Forestry website.

WV DOF reminds residents to confine their outdoor burning to the hours of 5 p.m. to 7 a.m., according to the West Virginia State Code Chapter 20-3-5. Fires set during that time must be put out before 7 a.m.

The fall fire season state law restrictions include:
No outdoor burning from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Any fire set between 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. must be extinguished before 7 a.m.

Fires must be attended at all times.

Before leaving any fire for any length of time, the fire must be completely extinguished.

Clear at least a 10-foot area (safety strip) around the fire and make sure all burnable material has been removed.

Any equipment that can throw sparks and operating on land subject to fire by any cause must be provided with an adequate spark arrestor.

If your fire escapes, you are liable for the costs of fighting the fire and any damage the fire may cause.

Violation of the burning law is punishable by a fine of up to $1,000.

The WV DOF can issue commercial permits to burn during the prohibited periods.

West Virginia residents can review the Daily Fire Report, which highlights the current active fire season online.

The Division of Forestry protects nearly 12 million acres of forestland across West Virginia. For more information on fire safety and programs like forest legacy, logging and landowner assistance, visit wvforestry.com.

Don’t Keep Score

By Joe Mazzella

I had a friend and neighbor once who was a real “score keeper.” She had grown up learning: “Neither a borrower nor a lender be.” Every favor or act of kindness done to her then had to be paid for either in cash or in kind. Once when I mowed her lawn and forgot to tell her when I was done she followed me to my house to pay me. I could see that living this way, always having to keep score, always having to have the books of her life perfectly balanced caused her a lot of stress. But she continued to live this way even with the misery it caused her.

My own parents grew up not wanting to take charity either, but as poor as they were they still often helped others. Mom and Nana would make special foods to share and give away vegetables from our garden, while Dad would often do chores for someone in need. And when they did so I always saw a special sparkle in their eyes and joy in their smiles.

Then one night our home caught fire and burned to the ground. We all survived but lost everything we owned. We were devastated, homeless, and without hope. But the next day help arrived. The whole community rallied around us in love. They brought us food and clothes, found us a temporary place to stay, and helped my Dad finance a new home for us to live in. There was no way we could ever repay their kindness. There was no way we could ever repay their love. Yet, I soon saw that no one expected us to. Because in the faces of each person who helped us were those same sparkling eyes and joyful smiles.

You see, when it comes to Love, God doesn’t want us to keep score. God gives us more Love than we can ever repay. And God only asks that we freely and joyfully share our love as well. The truth is the more love you share, the more love you have. The more you give, the more you receive. It doesn’t balance out. It just keeps growing. Don’t keep score then. Just Love.

West Virginia State Historic Preservation Survey & Planning Grants Available

Applications are now being accepted for FY 2025 Historic Preservation Survey and Planning grants through the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) of the West Virginia Department of Arts, Culture and History (WVDACH). It is anticipated that approximately $90,000 will be awarded from funding appropriated by the United States Congress for preservation efforts through the National Park Service Historic Preservation Fund.

Grant funds are awarded on a matching basis. Deadline for receipt of applications is 11:30 p.m. on Oct. 31, 2024. A complete program description, including funding priorities and selection criteria, and access to the GoApply on-line grant application portal, are available at <https://wvculture.org/agencies/state-historic-preservation-office-shpo/grants/> or contact Claire Tryon at (304) 558-0240 or Claire.E.Tryon@wv.gov.

State or local government agencies, not-for-profit organizations, for-profit organizations or firms, and educational institutions and Certified Local Governments (CLG) are eligible to apply. Eligible projects include architectural and archaeological surveys, preparation of National Register of Historic Places nominations, heritage education programs relating to preservation activities (i.e. hands-on window or masonry workshops), pre-development activities and comprehensive planning documents projects. Funded projects must be completed by June 30, 2026.

A competitive process is used to determine the recipients. An outside grant panel reviews and makes recommendations to the West Virginia Archives and History Commission. The final decision will be made by the Commission. The projects are selected based on how they best meet the established priorities and criteria stated in the grant application packets. All grant monies must be administered in accordance with federal and state requirements.

The announcement of grantees is planned for April 2025, contingent upon receipt of an allocation by the National Park Service.

The Department of Arts, Culture and History is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

Where Do All My Nasal Fluids Come From?

I am finally, in what I think is the last phase of my recent health confusion. My nose is dripping, and I think I use at least one box of tissues daily.

I did not know I had so much of this in my body, and I am not exactly sure where it came from.

When I was young, I remember having a bad case of this kind of thing, and I asked my mother, “Mom, where does all my snot come from?”

I had never seen my mother as angry as she was then. She looked at me and growled, “Son, I never want to hear you say that word again. We do not use the word ‘snot’ in our house. We use the phrase, ‘nasal fluids’. If you ever say the word ‘snot’, you will be in more trouble than you have ever been in your life. Do you understand me?”

Well, to be honest, I didn’t quite understand what she was talking about, but you always listen to your mother, right?

Several weeks later, I was having the same situation, and I said, “Mom, where does all my sn... whoops, I mean my nasal fluids come from?”

She was quite generous, forgave me, and was happy I remembered what she said. I will never know where she came up with the phrase “nasal fluids.”

I haven’t thought of that for a long time, but it came back to my memory just this week. I’m unsure how the word snot compares with the phrase nasal fluids. I sort of think my mother came up with that phrase because I don’t know anybody else who has ever used it.

But as I was thinking about this, I had yet to find out where my nasal fluids came from. This past week, my nose was running like Niagara Falls. With all that nasal fluid coming out of me, I must try to figure out where it comes from. If it comes from me, why isn’t there a limit?

If nasal fluids were gold, I would be very wealthy by now. Unfortunately, they are not gold, and I am not wealthy.

This phenomenon makes it very difficult to go out in public. I’m sneezing, and my nose is running all the time. To go out, I have to take a half-dozen boxes of tissues. Even then, I have to be quick on the draw.

Everybody has this kind of problem, but I don’t care; it’s what I’m facing that matters to me. I have to take care of my own nose, and that’s a fact with my hands up.

When I think I’ve mastered my nose and nasal fluids, I take a deep breath, and before I’m done, that fluid is running out of my nostril faster than ever before. What does it take to satisfy my nose?

It’s too bad my mother isn’t around. She’s in a nursing playground for Clay Elementary. The oldest part of the middle school would also be demolished and also converted into a parking area. All these plans hinge on whether or not the School Building Authority, the SBA, approves the funds to bankroll 85 percent of the project.

Once the presentation was over, the board proceeded with its typical business of whether to approve or disapprove extracurricular trips, volunteer applications, policies, personnel changes, discipline actions and paying the bills. The meeting was adjourned until the next regular meeting scheduled on Oct. 15 at 6 p.m. at the Clay County High School.

With a packed room of teachers, administrators, politicians and media, the very air in the room felt as if it was in distress as a type of shock set in and questions began to rise and fall. People began talking in the shadows with quiet lips and listening with estimation. Superintendent Phil Dobbins addressed many of the “why” questions people were reportedly asking. The main reason for considering the closure, according to the slide-show presented, was that Clay County Schools is losing funding based on student population. Something has to be done because of it; at the end of the day, you either have the money to keep the lights on or they will be turned off anyway.

On the other side of the coin, most of those uncomfortable with the idea agree that something has to be done but just wish it would be approached with all options on the table instead of just one, perhaps go with a PreK-8 school instead of K-6 and 7th-12th. Questions swirl about this new proposal costing more in the end than it would to just rearrange things at the schools. What about the levy money, how is it going to be used? Why not use the SBA money to expand the elementary schools instead? Why not renovate Clay Middle School if it’s that bad? Why not expand Big Otter and Clay Elementary into K-8 schools? What’s going to happen to the excess teachers? How will this destroy what is a part of the county’s DNA? There was many more questions

Red Cross: Urgent need for disaster shelter volunteers

Increasing frequency of extreme weather disasters like Hurricane Helene are driving high demand; volunteer or donate to support disaster relief efforts at redcross.org

The American Red Cross Central Appalachia Region is issuing an urgent appeal for volunteers who are willing to travel this fall to support emergency shelters for major national disaster relief efforts. Currently, nearly fifty local Red Cross workers are deployed to help those impacted by Hurricane Helene. Locally, our teams are on the ground supporting impacted individuals by providing meals, snacks and cleanup kits to hard hit areas of McDowell and Mercer Counties in West Virginia and Scioto County in Ohio.

Interested volunteers are urged to sign up today at redcross.org/volunteer. All candidates must complete necessary training, have a current driver’s license and be able to commit to a two-week deployment. Applicants who don’t have disaster experience, but have supervision, management or organization skills; a strong desire to help others; and the ability to thrive in a fast-paced, dynamic environment, are encouraged to apply.

“When disasters upend lives, Red Cross volunteers are on the frontlines providing refuge and comfort to people in their darkest hours,” Erica Mani, Chief Executive Officer for the Central Appalachia Region of the American Red Cross said. “They truly are the heart and soul of the Red Cross — comprising 90% of our workforce — to help ensure families never face a crisis alone.”

‘This Is Safe’: Helene Family Shares What Shelter Means To Them:

In emergency shelters, Red Cross disaster volunteers provide people with a safe place to stay, necessities like food and water, and critical services like mental health support and basic health services such as replacing lost medications or medical equipment.

Over the weekend in Perry, Florida, Amber Barteau and her family sought refuge at a Red Cross shelter after discovering that Hurricane Helene devastated their home — which marked the third time they’ve survived a hurricane in just over a year. “As soon as I pulled up to the shelter, it made me feel good,” Amber said. “I thought to myself, this is safe, and I’m going to be OK.”

Red Cross Mobilizes Massive Response To Helene:

As of Monday, more than 1,200 Red Cross disasters responders are on the ground across 10 states devastated by Hurricane Helene in the Southeast, including hard-hit home and suffers from dementia, so I couldn’t ask her anyway. She would not remember. But if I can get back to my mother when I was a teenager, maybe I could find out from her what this nasal fluid is all about.

I have reached the point where I don’t feel the fluid flowing out of my nostril. Because of that, I don’t know if it’s running down my face and dripping off my chin. What an embarrassing situation that is.

As always, The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has somewhat of a solution for my dilemma.

One morning, she looked at me and said, “Why don’t you wear a mask? Nobody will see anything about that because everybody is familiar with masks these days.”

This is the most brilliant thing she’s ever told me. I never thought of wearing a mask, which would prevent people from seeing what’s going on behind the mask.

Nobody would notice me because many people still wear masks, and I would fit right in.

One day, I tried it, and it seemed to work, except when I got home and took off the mask, it was filled to overflowing with my nasal fluid. How all of that stayed in my mask without overflowing is something I’ll never know. But at least nobody could see I was wrestling with this kind of problem.

Recently, I have been taking about a half-dozen masks when I go anywhere. I try to change my mask every hour, at least. That way, my nasal fluids do not overflow my mask, and nobody sees my problem.

Being able to cover up a problem, especially my problem is a challenge.

I must confess that I’m not very good at covering up any of my problems. No matter how much I try, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage can always see through my endeavors.

My biggest challenge is dealing with the world. There is one verse that gives me comfort and encouragement. “For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?” (1 John 5:4-5).

My faith in Jesus Christ is what enables me to overcome the world around me. When I try to do this by my own cleverness, guess what? I always fail. My great challenge is to trust God when any problem comes my way.

as to the why, where, what, and how of the new proposal, with each having opinions and answers. Bottom line, according to the presentation, if there’s not enough money to support the youth that is left in the schools efficiently, cuts and a reshuffle has to be made.

Is it a done deal? This question was also asked, and there are a lot of passageways for the concept to navigate before its official. There will be five summit meetings on the proposal in which the public can attend and make known their opinions and concerns about the closing.

In the final meeting, the BOE will make a final judgment on the proposal based on what’s best for the school system and public input. Some say the meetings are just a formality, but at the same time, people can come to the meetings and ask questions and voice their opinions.

The meetings are scheduled as follows: at CCMS on Nov. 6 at 6 p.m., at CCHS on Nov. 7 at 6 p.m., at Big Otter Elementary School on Nov. 12 at 6 p.m., and at Clay Elementary School on Nov. 13 at 6 p.m. The last meeting will be held at the CCHS on Nov. 19 at 6 p.m.

Clay County High School, Clay Junior High, and Clay Middle School has been a part of the Clay County landscape since the early 1900’s with a fire in 1969 that moved Clay County High School down the road to Bradley Field, the opening of Clay Junior High in 1974 and Clay Middle coming onto the scene in 1991. The school has served the public for many years and has brought through it some of the greatest teachers and minds to come out of this county. Our students have become doctors, lawyers, politicians, homemakers, veterans, science visionaries, engineers, masons, carpenters, welders and more. Change is inevitable and, unfortunately, all good things seem to come to an end, whether it is understood or not.

The public is welcome to attend and submit statements and questions to the BOE for consideration, and they urge you to do so. Come to a meeting or to all of them and decide for yourself. Get the answers you seek, and don’t be caught between the paradox of what’s real

North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida.

On Tuesday night, more than 2,700 people stayed in nearly 80 emergency shelters supported by the Red Cross and other community organizations. As storm-ravaged communities like those in North Carolina become more accessible, the Red Cross expects the need will continue to grow. While disaster assessments are still underway in hard-to-reach areas, emergency officials are planning for shelter operations to last at least several weeks, based on the storm’s initial widespread destruction.

Hurricane season is far from over — and the threat of more storms looms now in the Gulf and Atlantic oceans. What’s more, the Southwest and California are forecast to have above-normal wildfire risk this fall. As extreme weather worsens, disasters are becoming more intense and frequent — leading the Red Cross to respond on a nearly continuous basis.

How To Help”

Beyond becoming a Red Cross volunteer, people can help in other ways too following Helene:

Donate Financially: Financial donations are the quickest and fastest way to get help to people who need it. Visit redcross.org or text the word HELENE to 90999 to make a donation to help people affected by Hurricane Helene. Donations enable the Red Cross to prepare for, respond to and help people recover from this disaster.

Give Blood: Hurricane Helene has caused more than 1,500 blood donations to go uncollected in the Southeast — yet the need for blood remains constant for patients in need. Those outside the affected areas are encouraged to schedule a blood donation appointment now by visiting RedCrossBlood.org or using the Blood Donor App to help restock the shelves.

About the American Red Cross:

The American Red Cross shelters, feeds and provides comfort to victims of disasters; supplies about 40% of the nation’s blood; teaches skills that save lives; distributes international humanitarian aid; and supports veterans, military members and their families. The Red Cross is a nonprofit organization that depends on volunteers and the generosity of the American public to deliver its mission. Widen Relief Committee Meets

In order that the new representatives of the members of the Employees' League of Widen Miners might become acquainted with the functioning of the Widen Relief Committee, all six of the League's officers attended the committee's meeting at the offices of Elk River Coal and Lumber Company on January 27 at 3 P. M. New employee officials present for the first time were President. Billy Facemire; Bargaining Committeemen, Carl Young, and James Triplett; and Secretary, Edgar Donohue. Re-elected Committeeman, Lloyd Butcher, Jr., and Treasurer, Joe Truman were also present. Representing Elk River Coal and Lumber Company were Vice President H. L. Beattie, Mine Superintendent R. G. Elliott, Outside Superintendent G. D. Craft, Mine Engineer E. R. Ketchka, and General Mine Foremen Scot Williams and Darrell Wood.

Routine approvals made of retirement pensions for twenty-seven men and of survivors' assistance to twenty nine widows and fifty minor children of deceased employees. There was no change in either list during January.

Levy Friend was the only new applicant for disability assistance, with Okey Truman and Ray Cummings being cleared for return to work during the month. In addition, thirteen employees previously approved received disability benefits for the entire month. Only one case required any special action, that being an instance where an employee married while he was on the disabled list. The committee ruled that an employee's family status at the time he applied for assistance would determine his benefits, with the exceptions that a new-born child could be added at the time of birth and that other newly-acquired dependents could be added after having been the employee's dependent for a period of six months.

Hospital and medical benefits were provided for one hundred sixty-one employees and members of their families, at Charleston, Clarksburg, Clay, Clendenin, Cowen, Gassaway, Richwood South Charleston, Spencer, Summersville, Sutton, and Weston W. Va. and at Ojai and Palm Springs, California. A retired employee vacationing on the West Coast accounted for the California items. Two bills were deferred for further information, one involving the legal custody of the children where parents are separated and the other a matter of a member of an employee's family entering Charleston General Hospital as a private patient when she was entitled to hospitalization under the contract agreement between that institution and Elk River Coal & Lumber Company and its employees.

Altogether, one hundred ninety-one active or retired employees received direct benefits for January, in addition to the survivors enumerated above.

Several instances have come to light recently where it was found that employees had neglected to add their new-born children to their list of dependents. There is no connection between the dependency list in the office and withholding tax exemptions. All dependents must be listed on the employee's card in order to be eligible for benefits, whereas it is entirely proper for an employee to omit some exemptions from withholding in order to accumulate a tax refund. Be sure your card is complete and up-to-date.

Tomorrow will be the most wonderful day in history. That's the day when we are all going to begin doing better.

(Hope) filed an application to change depreciation rates (Application) pursuant to Rule 20 of the Commission’s Rules of Practice and Procedure (Procedural Rules), 150 C.S.R. 1 and its general ratemaking authority under W.Va. The Commission set a procedural schedule, including a hearing date on the Application that will begin at 9:30 a.m. on January 29, 2025, in the Howard M. Cunningham Hearing Room at the Commission’s offices at 201 Brooks Street, Charleston, West Virginia.

Anyone desiring to intervene should file a written petition to intervene within 30 days following the date of this publication unless otherwise modified by Commission order. Roxie Schoolcraft was crowned CCMS Homecoming Queen

By Allen Hamrick

The Mustang football team had a tough, tough time Thursday night against the visiting Braxton Knights. It looked as though the Mustangs and the Knights were pretty evenly matched except for the Knights running back that was big, fast and could run with the Mustang line on his back. A bewildered bunch of fans watched as the Mustang defense allowed 26 points for the Knights in the first half. The first half had everything from nail biting drama to jaw dropping let down. The only score the Mustang offense could muster was a great run by Collin Elliot and eventual TD in the opening kickoff. After that, it was all Knights as they seemed to have a picnic at the end zone on every set of downs. Mustang offense just had a difficult time on the field as the line seemed to cave under Knight pressure, forcing QB John Paxton to scramble much of the first half. Then half time came and went and something happened in the Mustang defense. They either ate a big can of Whip Butt and Beans or just decided they were tired of getting run over by the Knight offense.

The Knights got the ball in the 2nd half and never saw the end zone again as the Mustang defense put the man pants on and stopped any offense the Knights mustered. Unfortunately, the offense was still having their problems with the Knight defense but was able to score another TD on a Caleb Robinson run. However, it was too late as the game ran out of time and the Knights won 26-14 giving the Mustangs their first loss of the season. Chances are the Mustangs will see them again before the season is over. With just two games left in the season against Richwood at home on Thursday and at Calhoun next Thursday, there is a chance these two teams will see each other in the CW-VAC Championship game, just a chance but only time will tell. Come out and support the Mustangs in their last of the season games.

Half time was also the time to announce the 2024 Football Homecoming Queen of CCMS. The cheerleaders lined up in formation to welcome the new queen to the field. Nobody knew who it would be as the announcement is hush-hush affair. The 6th, 7th and 8th grade princesses, along with their escorts, strolled onto the field as each was announced. Once they were all lined up on the field, it was time to announce the new 2024 CCMS Homecoming Football queen. As the field went silent, the announcer called out Miss Roxie Schoolcraft as the new 2024 CCMS Homecoming Football Queen. Queen Schoolcraft graciously accepted the crown as CCMS principal Leslie Goe placed it on her head. She was escorted Jackson Stricker. The newly crowned queen of CCMS will no doubt wear their crown well and represent the school with pride. Congratulations to the new Queen and her court. The homecoming court included 6th grade princess Brooklyn Johnston, escorted by Peyton Rogers, and princess Sydney Cadle escorted by Bricen Nichols. Seventh grade princess Kourtney Murphy was escorted by Trenton Parker, princess Layla Stewart was escorted by Nathan Hall, and princess Kinley Ramsey was escorted by Ryder McMillion. Eighth grade princess Hannah Gandee was escorted by Jacob Vance, princess Madalynn Schoonover was escorted by Briar Dorsey and princess Gracie Cottrell was escorted by Logan Adkins. They all represented the school and families very well. Once again, congratulations to the queen and her court.

Lady Panthers hold senior night

By Allen Hamrick

It was senior night for the Lady Panthers as they hosted a tri match between Capitol High and Buffalo this past week. The team said farewell to three of the best that has hit the floor behind the net. Rylee Burkhamer, Madison Morton and McKenzie Edwards will be some tough shoes to fill - Rylee, with her mind blowing kill shots, Madison with her pin point setting and McKenzie with her saves. This team will definitely miss their skills. It will be a sad farewell but the three will have a great future ahead of them in whatever they choose to do. Not only the team, but CCHS will take the hit as well. I have followed these ladies since middle school and they are the cream of the crop in attitude and skill as volleyball greats. On senior night, however, the Ladies, full of emotion, did not fair too well against Capitol High and Buffalo. The first game of the set was one of those games a player has nightmares about.

The Lady Panthers couldn't seem to get a good offense going and was pounded by Buffalo as they went 0 and 2 against the Lady Bison. Up next was Capitol, and the Lady Panthers played a better game, but in the end it was too much of an emotional evening to get the team's focus on the games. The Lady Panthers lost the set and match. The Lady Panthers will be on the road the rest of the season; their next matchup will be at Greenbrier West on Tuesday and Hoover on the 12th. The season is winding down with just six games left in regular season. Once again, thumbs up to the seniors for giving the fans their money's worth every time you took the floor. You will be missed, and we wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors. Come out and support them as they try and get back on the winning track to the state competition.

In other volleyball news, the CCMS Lady Mustangs have been on the warpath winning their last matches and 10 out of 11 games. Braxton was the latest to run into the Lady Mustang juggernaut. Anytime the Lady Mustangs play Braxton, it will always be a wild and tough game. Varsity came out pumped up, fans seemed to come alive and the decibel levels went into eardrum bursting excitement. Varsity did not disappoint the fans at all; they played as a team bent on taking on anybody and taking them down. They defeated Braxton in two straight games. They then travelled to Valley and proceeded to stomp tem into the maple. If they continue to play like this then the championship trophy is as good as theirs. The Lady Mustangs have nine more regular season games before the CWVAC tournament. Go Lady Mustangs!
