Nearly 55,000 West Virginians are set to lose Medicaid. Here's what to expect, and when.

President Trump's "Big Beautiful Bill" takes away health care over ten years, mainly beginning with the onset of work requirements in 2027 and extending to 2034.

If you rely on Medicaid for your health care, or you know and love someone who does, you've almost certainly heard about the massive cuts Congress made to the program.

A new law makes the biggest cuts to the program in history.

Nearly 55,000 West Virginians will lose Medicaid health insurance over the next decade, according to an estimate by KFF, a health analysis and news non-profit.

Congress passed the "Big Beautiful Bill" last month, but your ability to get treatment won't end right away. People will lose care more gradually – here is how and when the changes are expected to affect you.

Who relies on Medicaid in West Virginia?

Say you work a low-paying job and your employer doesn't offer health insurance.

Or maybe you live in an isolated part of the state to be close to family, so you work odd jobs to get by.

You may be someone who uses Medicaid because you're too disabled to work, someone who spends all your time caring for a family member or someone in active addiction.

One in ten West Virginians who receive Medicaid is likely to lose coverage over the next decade.

Just over 500,000 state residents have Medicaid as of this month, according to the state Department of Human Services.

How did the new law change Medicaid?

Congress made the biggest cuts to Medicaid in two ways.

Medicaid is a matching government program, meaning it's partially funded by the state and partially by the federal government.

When President Donald Trump signed the bill into law last month, the federal government restricted how much it will give states for Medicaid.

As states receive less money, they will be forced to stop paying for some of your care.

In addition, the law requires you to prove that you are working to qualify for Medicaid based on income.

Medicaid historically covered people for reasons like old age, illness or pregnancy. In 2014, officials expanded the programs to cover people based on income alone.

In West Virginia, about one third of Medicaid recipients, 165,000 people, are covered because they're considered low-income.

Kelly Allen, executive director of the West Virginia Center on Budget and Policy, noted state health officials will ultimately determine how you'll demonstrate you're eligible, such as by providing a W2 or paystub.

You could lose coverage if you are working but aren't able to prove it.

The law states that you don't have to meet this work requirement if you're:

- caring for kids age 13 and under or for disabled family members

- pregnant or receiving postpartum Medicaid coverage
- disabled
- medically frail
- have a substance use disorder
- have a disabling mental disorder or serious and complex medical condition
- a former foster youth

But you could lose coverage if you can't prove you meet those exceptions, and states are given discretion to refine the definitions of terms like "medically frail" and "complex medical conditions."

"We don't know what that's going to look like yet, whether that's a doctor's visit, a doctor's note, or proof of being in regular treatment," Allen said.

Next year, the state will receive less money for Medicaid, and cuts incrementally increase until 2034.

Health analysts predict state officials may first cut some of your Medicaid services.

For example, other states frequently cut dental benefits when facing tough budget years.

West Virginia officials could choose to cut some other state services to divert money to Medicaid.

But in January, your representatives in the state Legislature won't have as much money to allocate due to other costs, including tax cuts, the Hope Scholarship and the rising cost of the state health insurance program, PEIA.

And if you or someone you love experience addiction, you should know West Virginia lawmakers discuss ending coverage of medication for fentanyl and other drug cravings.

The biggest coverage losses begin in 2027, when Medicaid work requirements begin. But states can start work requirements a year sooner or a year later with federal permission.

If you're 19-64 years old and enrolled in Medicaid for low income, you must prove you work, volunteer, participate in a work training program or perform some combination of those activities for at least 80 hours per month. You may also go to school half-time.

You might lose coverage because you can't find a job or can't pay for a vehicle to get to work.

If you're on Medicaid based on your low income, you'll also face two additional challenges in 2027.

The state will require you to prove you're eligible for coverage every six months instead of every year, which current law requires. So if you move, or you're evicted and become homeless, you could lose care if the state can't contact you.

Medicaid currently pays for health care costs you had up to three months before you enrolled. In 2027, pre-enrollment coverage will decrease to one month.

The state may start charging you up to $35 for some services and would be permitted to deny care if you can't pay.

So you might not be able to pay for a visit when you're behind on bills or need groceries.

2029-2034

As states lose more and more Medicaid funding over the next decade, the Georgetown Center for Children and Families estimates that by 2034, 7.5 million Americans will have lost Medicaid.

Your Voice. Your Vote. September is National Voter Registration Month

By Kris Warner, WV Secretary of State
In September, the National Association of Secretaries of State and the WV Secretary of State’s Office celebrates National Voter Registration Month. Since National Voter Registration Month was started in 2002, we use every September as a timely reminder that the foundation of our democracy rests not just on the right to vote - but on the responsibility to be ready to exercise that right. In every election, whether local, state, or national, the power of the vote is the most direct way citizens shape the future of their communities and country. But that power begins with one simple act: registering to vote. My office and all 55 of West Virginia’s county clerks want every eligible citizen to be properly registered and ready to vote. Across the United States, millions of eligible voters remain unregistered. In addition, some voters may not realize they need to update their registration after moving or changing their name. Others may feel disconnected from the political process or unsure whether their vote truly matters. National Voter Registration Month is a chance to change that narrative. It’s an opportunity for me and my office to educate, engage, and empower eligible West Virginians. In West Virginia, we’ve made it easier than ever to register. Through the Secretary of State’s office, citizens can register online, check their registration status, and find information about upcoming elections. Everything relating to issues about elections and campaigns in West Virginia can be found at GoVoteWV.com. These tools are designed to remove barriers and ensure that every eligible voter has the opportunity to participate. But accessibility alone isn’t enough. We must also foster a culture that values civic engagement and understands the impact of every vote. Consider this: local elections often hinge on just a handful of votes. School board decisions, city council policies, and county budgets are shaped by those who show up. These outcomes affect our roads, schools, public safety, and economic development. When citizens don’t vote, they leave those decisions to others - often a small fraction of the population. Moreover, voting is not just a right—it’s a legacy. Generations of Americans have fought to expand access to the ballot box. From the suffragists of the early 20th century to the civil rights activists of the 1960’s, to the passage of the 26th Amendment that reduced the voting age from 21 to 18, the struggle for voting rights has been a defining chapter in our nation’s history. Honoring that legacy means participating in the process they fought to protect. National Voter Registration Month also serves as a call to action for organizations, schools, and community leaders. Hosting registration drives, sharing resources on social media, and encouraging conversations about civic duty can make a real difference. When people see their peers engaged, they’re more likely to take that first step themselves. As a lifelong West Virginian, a political party leader, a candidate myself, and now as WV Secretary of State, I’ve seen firsthand the dedication of election officials across West Virginia who work tirelessly to ensure fair, secure, and transparent elections. But their efforts rely on one essential ingredient: voter participation. A healthy democracy demands informed and active citizens. And that begins with being registered. So this September, I urge every eligible West Virginian to be sure that you are properly registered to vote. Help a friend or family member do the same. If you’re eligible to vote but not yet registered, make it happen. If you’re already registered, make sure your information is up to date. These small actions have a big impact. Democracy is not a spectator sport. It thrives when we all take part. Let’s make National Voter Registration Month more than a reminder—let’s make it a movement.

Appalachian Power, Wheeling Power to keep rates unchanged for now following an order from the PSC of West Virginia

Appalachian Power (APCo) and Wheeling Power have received an order in their recent base case from the Public Service Commission of West Virginia (PSC) that indicates a desire to support the company’s securitization plans to mitigate the impacts of this rate increase on customers. The PSC’s decision directly recognizes the benefits of the company’s proposed securitization plan. “We’re pleased that the PSC saw the advantages for our customers in our securitization plan,” said Aaron Walker, Appalachian Power president and chief operating officer. “However, we are disappointed that the PSC didn’t recognize the full investment made on the system on behalf of our customers.” Although the order recognizes the need for a base rate increase of $76.1 million, customer rates will stay the same for now. The PSC will soon make a final decision on securitization, a proposal that aims to ease the impact of the base rate increase by spreading out the cost recovery over a longer period.

The order provides additional support for customer assistance programs and extends the eligibility window for certain assistance programs. Additionally, it adopts proposed net metering changes to ensure fairness for customers who install their own generation equipment. At the PSC’s direction, APCo will conduct a study to determine the feasibility of a summer rate plan for residential customers. About Appalachian Power: Appalachian Power has 1.1 million customers in Virginia, West Virginia and Tennessee (as AEP Appalachian Power). It is part of American Electric Power (Nasdaq: AEP), whose nearly 16,000 employees operate and maintain the nation’s largest electric transmission system and more than 225,000 miles of distribution lines to deliver safe, reliable power to 5.6 million customers in 11 states. AEP is also one of the nation’s largest electricity producers with approximately 30,000 megawatts of diverse generating capacity.

Janice Thomas came in the Mule Barn for breakfast the other day, and sat at the counter for the first time. She usually gets one of the tables, or a booth against the wall. We were kinda flattered that she'd come sit with us, but wondered why. After all, this high school art teacher never has been one to sit down and solve the world's problems, the way we do.

She didn't keep us waiting long, though.

"Boys," she said, "I have a deer pointer."

She let the silence pounce heavily on our sweet rolls while we pondered this.

"A what?" Doc said.

"A deer pointer. You want deer, you just let ol' Woof out and you'll find 'em."

"Woof, eh?"

"Yes. He's that new dog I got after that Lab of mine died. I've had Woof for about six months now. He's half bird dog and half heeler and he points deer."

We looked at each other and grinned. When it comes to telling stories at this particular lunch counter, the first liar doesn't stand a chance.

"Points 'em you say?"

"Locks right up. Steady to wing and shot."

"This I have to see," Dud said.

So after coffee we all went out to Janice's place while she turned this little dog out into the wood lot. He ran here and there and then froze into a perfect field-trial point. We walked up quietly and sure enough, there was a doe standing about 40 yards away. We'd never seen anything like it.

"When I got him," Janice explained, "he thought he'd herd deer, with that sheep dog blood he has in him. Well, the first time he tried that, some doe just kicked the puddin' out of him. His tail didn't work right for a week.

"So now he's switched over to the other half of his heritage and points 'em. He's found that works out a lot better for him."

She grinned. "And no ... you can't borrow him this fall."

I was a little boy sitting in church on a hard, wooden pew, trying to sit still and not squirm while listening to the sermon. Most of it went over my young mind each week, but there always came a point when we recited the Lord's prayer. And there was a part of it that I understood very clearly: "Give us this day our daily bread." That part spoke to me because each Sunday afternoon my beloved Nana would bake a couple of loaves of homemade Italian bread for our after church dinner. My brothers liked the middle part but I always enjoyed the heel piece at the end. I would cover the still warm bread with butter, watch it melt, and then eat the piece with a smile on my face and a joy in my heart.

I think, though, that what I enjoyed more than eating the bread was seeing Nana's face when I ate it. She was so happy. Her eyes sparkled when she said: "Mangia, Mangia" which means "Eat, Eat." I so loved her joy-

I Didn't Have Google, I Had Granma

Dr. James L. Snyder

It was Thursday, and as usual, I was busy working on weekend projects. My biggest project, of course, was my Sunday sermon. Most people don't understand the amount of hard work that goes into preparing a Sunday sermon. And I work hard.

I was spending time researching some ideas on Google. I spend a lot of time on Google because it helps with my research. I'm able to find certain subjects very quickly.

Until Thursday, I didn't realize how much time I spent on Google. It's really a blessing in my life.

I had some coffee, and I was resting in my chair, thinking about what I was finding on Google. I thought back to when I was a youngster, and back then, we didn't have Google, nor did we have the Internet. What would young people do today if they didn't have Google, the Internet, or cell phones? I'm not sure they would have a life.

In my younger days, we didn't have any of that, but there was one thing we did have that made all the difference in the world. We may not have had Google, but we had Grandma.

I spent some time with my Grandma, especially during the summer. If I wanted to know anything, all I had to do was ask her, and she always had the answer.

Looking back now, I realize how important my Grandma was to me in that regard. There wasn't a subject that I could bring up that she didn't know something about it. Whether she was making things up or not, I will never know. All I know is, she had an answer for every question I could put in front of her.

Once, I had to do an essay for my science class. I was really stumbling around, and then Grandma stopped by to visit us. When that happened, I had a brilliant idea.

I went to Grandma and asked her about my subject and if she knew anything about it. She said she did, and she began explaining everything to me about that, and I took notes. Looking at those notes afterward, I didn't quite understand everything, but I put them together as best I could and prepared my essay.

That was the first essay I received an A. My teacher took me aside and asked me how I came up with all of these wonderful ideas in my essay. I did not know what to say, I was a little embarrassed. I simply told him I had done research on that subject. He smiled at me, congratulated me, and said, "Well done. Keep up the good work."

I hope that when he said "keep up the good work," he was referring to my relationship with my Grandma on these subjects.

ful smile, her shining eyes, her sing song voice, and her huge hugs whenever I came into the kitchen to watch her cook. She cooked to fill our stomachs but it was her love that filled my heart. I still miss her every single day. And I always try to be as generous, kind, giving, and loving to others as she was in her own life.

Now that I am older too I understand that our "daily bread" isn't just food for our stomachs but also nourishment for our souls. When we pray to God asking for our daily bread what we are really asking is that He in His infinite Love give us just what we need to Live and Love today. Because Today is the only day any of us ever have.

May God always give you your daily bread: bread for your body and bread for your soul. May God always give you the Love you need to fully live Today. And may you like my dear, sweet Nana always share your bread, your kindness, and your love with everyone.

I don't know how my grandmother got so smart. No matter what the subject people were talking about, my grandmother had something to say about it. She was known throughout the community as a very wise lady, and I could understand why.

I've always wanted to ask her how she knew all the things she knew. If I had that answer, maybe I could be as smart as she was. But I never dared to ask her why she was so smart about so many things.

Throughout my teenage years, I received advice from my grandmother. Her advice always turned out to be the right advice. I learned to trust her advice, and it helped me out.

One area of my life that I never ask her for advice on was my "Dating Life." Actually, I did not have such a life, but if I had sat down with Grandma, I'm sure she could have given me advice along that line. I'm not sure I would've taken her advice, but it probably would've been good advice.

Looking back, I'm glad I didn't ask her about that. That may have changed my life entirely, and I'm glad my life is the way it is today.

Every once in a while, when I'm searching for something on Google, I think of my Grandma. In my mind, she was Google before Google was even invented. Where she acquired all her wisdom is beyond me, but I was glad to draw on it when I needed to.

I have learned that asking the right question to the right person will bring you to the right answer. And that sure described my Grandma. Thinking about that lately, I wanted to sit down with my Grandma and go over a list of questions I have today. As I think of it, what would be some of the answers that she would give me?

Over the last few years, I hope I have inherited some of Grandma's wisdom. I'm not sure I have, but I'm going to pretend I did, and pass it on to my grandchildren, just like my Grandma did.

A verse of Scripture came to mind. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed" (James 1:5-6).

God's wisdom is better than Grandma's. I just need to ask Him. Asking opens the door to the flow of wisdom I need in my life.

cious Festival a cherished tradition in Clay County for more than five decades.

This year, there will be live music performances on Friday evening from Marissa Ramsey at 5 p.m., Logan Truman at 6 p.m., Grace Campbell at 7 p.m., and Almost Journey (a Journey tribute band) starting at 8 p.m. On Saturday, catch Brodey Proctor at 5 p.m., Marissa Truman at 6 p.m., then Josh Pantry at 7 p.m., and the final performance of the Festival will be a live show by Aaron Tippin at 8 p.m.

With a wide smile and engaging Southern drawl, Aaron Tippin proclaims he's the "luckiest hillbilly that has ever lived," and there's no arguing it. After all he's been struck by lightning twice and lived to tell, piloted planes with engine failure and even somewhat more miraculously, he's survived more than three decades in the music business and is still going strong. Along the way, he's earned six gold albums and one platinum. He's released more than 30 singles, including such hits as "You've Got to Stand for Something," "My Blue Angel," "I Wouldn't Have it Any Other Way," "Kiss This," "Workin' Man's Ph. D.," "There Ain't Nothing Wrong with the Radio" and "Where the Stars and Stripes and the Eagle Fly," which was not only a country hit, but top 20 on Billboard's all genre Hot 100 chart. Of course, luck often plays a role in achieving success in the entertainment industry, but the real driving forces behind Tippin's achievements are a dedicated work ethic and undeniable talent.

Mystery Students

GIRL—

Do you remember seeing this brunette with the soulful brown eyes, walking down the hall? You may have noticed her because she is usually humming her favorite songs, "Don't Ask Me Why" and "Poor Little Fool" or dreaming of that wonderful food—chicken, which she likes very much.

She is also mad about all cars, especially brown ones, dancing, and her ex-steady guy. In her wardrobe you will find lots of reds and blues which go with her 5 feet 7 inches of dynamite.

BOY—

Everyone remembers this boy who went to school here in '56, but afterward went to Ohio for two years. This year he is back with us again. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall, has light brown hair and brown eyes. His favorite song is "Guess Things Happen That Way." His ambition is to graduate.

TEACHERS COUNT NOSES

I cocked my bare feet on the arm of the swing. I lay there with a smile of anticipation for the long holiday ahead, while the poor teachers trudged along the dusty streets acquiring writers cramps taking State Census.

Widen School was closed, Friday, September 6, 1958, while the teachers took a report on all children under the age of twenty who are at home.

These State Census are taken every ten years. The school statistics are compiled from these census. These census also are used to determine the number of new pupils who will enter the first grade in the next years.

Helen Keller, the great deaf-blind leader, has reached the age of 78, according to the American Foundation for the Blind, of which she is International Counselor.

OFFICE NEWS

Widen High School has scheduled assemblies for every other Wednesday from 11:10 to 12:00 o'clock. That schedule will be continued if the programs given justify that amount of time. Teachers and students will be notified in advance if the period is cut to the usual thirty minutes.

All members of the band are now practicing at the auditorium five days a week, from 11:10 to 12:10, except on Wednesdays when assemblies are scheduled. On those days band members will attend assembly. This new schedule entirely eliminates band practice after school and will give those boys who are interested in basketball, etc., an opportunity to participate therein.

Also, there has been a change in the bell schedule and the length of the school day. The school day begins at 8:24 A.M. and ends at 3:15 P.M. for first grade pupils. The day ends at 3:30 P.M. for all except the first grade. Elementary pupils are permitted to enter the building at 8:15 A.M. and high school students at 8:20 A.M.

This change in schedule has been made to give additional, badly needed, teaching time, and to give full six hours each day of instruction.

CLASS LEARNS LESSON

Chemistry class started with a big bang this year. Eleven students discovered the potential power of sodium submerged in water.

During a demonstration of the reaction of sodium with water, conducted by Mr. Keller, instructor, an over-zealous student decided to lend his help. Before he could be stopped he pushed the floating sodium under water with forceps—BOOM! Water shot all over the ceiling. The instructor received minor burns and the startled student was found later—carefully concealed under the desk!

WIDEN SCHOOL HOLDS FIRST ASSEMBLY

Widen School Band entertained the high school students, faculty and guests at the first assembly of the year on Wednesday morning, September 10, 1958.

The band, under the capable baton of Mr. Gerald Simmons, played the beautiful, modern "Black Night Overture", the stirring "March Gloria", and the tuneful melodies from "My Fair Lady", "With a Little Bit of Luck," "I've Grown Accustomed to Your Face" and "I Could Have Danced All Night."

Judy LaCorte, Student Body President, presided as Mistress of Ceremonies. She led the group in the traditional flag salute. Mr. Simmons conducted the group singing of "America". Rev. Ernest Hammack led devotions and spoke a few words of encouragement and advice to all students.

Mr. Matheny introduced all new members of the Student Council and then the fourteen new members were given the oath of office.

Mr. Baer made several important announcements.

Several visitors were present to hear the band. We wish to extend an invitation to all parents, former students and friends to attend assemblies.

GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

Twenty-five students are enrolled this year. When asked what they liked best about school, here is what they said:

Peggy—Work

Terry—To learn and play

David—To eat

Sally—The teacher

Jimmy—Reading

Emma—Drawing

Karen—Writing

4th Grade News—

Twenty-five students are enrolled this year. One girl has been absent because of illness.

6th Grade News—

There are 26 patrolmen in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades together. There are one captain, four lieutenants, and the rest are patrolmen.

We have two bulletin boards. One is the Honor Board, the other is the board for notices and other things.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS

Coach Stover will start basketball practice October 15 at the new Widen Community Building. The schedule for the basketball team consists of twelve games and we hope to schedule more later on. The coach has hopes for having a Junior High basketball team, if possible, and if there are enough boys who will participate, Coach Stover has high hopes for both teams.

We think we can have a very good basketball team if the boys are willing to give their time and patience to concentrate on the game. Some of the returning players will be Kyle Barnette 6'3", David Wilson 5'9", David Hamrick 5'11", "Abe" Holmes 5'6", Victor Frame 5'3", and many more good prospects.

Coach Stover also plans to have a baseball team in the early spring of 1959. He has had previous experience at coaching baseball teams in the Pony League throughout the summer.

The Department of Environmental Protection's (DEP) Division of Water and Waste Management (DWWM) is proposing to reissue two General Permits to facilitate sludge management regulatory procedures for septic tank cleaners. DWWM plans to issue these general permits under the authority and mandate of the West Virginia Sewage Sludge Management Regulations (Title 33, Series 2). Any owner of a sewage or septage pumping operation that can qualify under the terms and conditions of one of these proposed General Permits may apply. Those accepting General Permit coverage agree to comply with all permit terms and conditions. However, the DWWM Director can require any owner to apply for and obtain an individual permit. The Director can exercise this authority when it is determined that such a permit will better protect human health and the environment. New individuals seeking coverage under these General Permits must complete and submit a permit registration application form. To allow for continued coverage during the reissuance process, the DWWM will extend permit coverage for six months to all individuals who currently are registered under these two (2) General Permits. These individuals will be required to submit a permit registration reissuance application for continued coverage beyond the extension date. The draft permits and fact sheets may be inspected by appointment between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday at the Department of Environmental Protection, DWWM-Permitting, 601 57th Street, S.E., Charleston, WV 25304. Panthers fall to the Patriots in their season opener

By Allen Hamrick
This past Friday, it was opening night for the Panther football team as they took their show on the road to Roane County to take on Midland Trail for their season “home” opener. With the million-dollar football field in its final phase of construction, Roane County allowed the Panthers to take the field on their own Raider real estate. This was also a good opportunity for the Raider coaches to see live and in person the 2025 Panther team.
Clay’s new field is supposed to be finished by mid-September, and the official champagne bottle will be busted. As it stands now, September 19 will be the date of the Panthers’ next home game against Sissonville IF the field is indeed ready. So, break out the caviar and finger foods for your tailgate parties; hamburgers and hot dogs are for grass fields, baby, and the Panthers are stepping into the future mid-September.
The air was cool and crisp, a perfect night for football as the Panthers rolled onto the field looking to repeat last year’s 28-7 win against the Patriots. The Patriots came out with a more than full team with blood in their eyes. The Panthers got the ball first, and with some excellent running by Brody Scarbro, the Panthers were moving down the field. New QB Cooper Collins, brother of the award-winning Panther QB Noah Collins, took to the field as leader of the pack. This was his first game as a Panther starter, and although there were some glitches in some plays, he did a respectable job for his first time at the helm. However, the Panthers had a challenging time getting the ball down field and in scoring position.

The Patriots scored early in the first quarter with a kind of bait and switch play after the Panthers defense was holding them at the line. This fired up the Patriots, and they did not look back as the Panther defense couldn’t get dialed in on their offense. At the half, it was the Patriots with a small lead 0-7. In the third quarter, the Patriots came out swinging again with a combination of passes and long runs. The Panthers got their game on and scored a TD of their own but missed the extra point. The score stood at 6-20 at the end of the third. In the fourth, the Panthers made a run for the endzone and scored another seven points but could not match the 21 racked up by the Patriots.
Final score was Panthers 13, Patriots 41. The Panthers’ next game is at Buffalo, and with this loss under their belt, they can now get to the business of winning. Go Panthers!

Jakoby Nichols grabs this pass from Collins for the TD.

Lady Panthers open their season at Nicholas County

By Allen Hamrick
CCHS Lady Panthers volleyball hit the floor running this past week in a tri matchup with Charleston Catholic and the Lady Grizzlies of Nicholas County. On deck first was Charleston Catholic coming into the match hopeful but not overzeal-

ous. The Lady Panthers did not get off the ground too well and seemed to be a little flat-footed against the fast-playing Irish girls. The Lady Panthers were bombed by at least four Lady Irish, including former Lady Panther Illyana Evans. The Lady Panthers could not return the favor and fell to the Lady Irish in two games 15-25, 11-25. The girls would need to define the problems and straighten them out before scraping with the Lady Grizzlies who were themselves just thumped by the Lady Irish. However, the Lady Panthers could not put their heads into the game as the Lady Grizzlies took out their vengeance against them. The Lady Panthers went down again in two games by the score of 10-25 and 12-25. This week they will be at the nets again on the road at Buffalo on Saturday. So, if you get the chance, get out and support the team. Go Lady Panthers!

Jaedon Delwarte gets in a kill shot.

Zoey Jones makes the close net point.
