Town of Clay awarded grant funds to replace water tank

Governor Patrick Morrisey has announced more than $15.4 million in grant awards to projects across the state aimed at updating water and sewer infrastructure and environmental conservation.

The water and sewer infrastructure grants announced by Governor Morrisey total $12,643,588 for projects in 13 counties.

“As my administration continues our work to make West Virginia more competitive with our neighboring states, these critical upgrades to water and sewer infrastructure are moving the needle,” said Governor Morrisey. “Clean water and functional infrastructure lift up the standard of living and propel economic growth in our communities.”

The following water and sewer infrastructure projects were approved by the Water Development Authority in the county for funding:

Town of Clay: Clay County – The Town of Clay was awarded a $477,500 IJDC grant to replace a water tank that has been deemed to be deficient in the Health Department’s Sanitary Survey and added to a Corrective Action Plan for replacement. The project area is in the Clay area in Clay County and will affect 528 customers. These funds, along with funds from the Appalachian Regional Commission, provide the $1,257,500 needed for this project.

Other funding included:

Wilderness PSD: Nicholas County – Wilderness PSD received an IJDC grant of $500,000 to upgrade and extend water service in the Mt. Nebo area of Nicholas County. This system improvement will affect 2,054 existing customers and adds one new customer. These funds, in combination with grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission, Nicholas County Commission, and the Young Life Resort, cover the total project cost of $2,771,500.

Flatwoods Canoe Run PSD: Braxton County – Flatwoods Canoe Run PSD was awarded $2,889,500 to fund an upgrade to the current SCADA system that will provide quality control measures to the water system such as data collection, leak detection, automated shutoffs, and manual remote-control functions. The waterline replacement portion of the project will replace the deteriorated waterline leading to the Route 19 water storage tank, which would reduce water loss in the existing water distribution system and reduce operation and maintenance costs associated with the frequent repairs. The primary project area is Exchange in Braxton County, and this project will benefit 2,009 existing customers.

Sugar Creek PSD: Braxton County – Sugar Creek PSD was awarded $37,500 to conduct an evaluation and develop a Preliminary Engineering Report to determine the location, capacity, type of treatment, preliminary probable construction and project cost to replace the aging current plant. The primary project area is Frametown in Braxton County and this water plant upgrade project will support 610 customers. This funding, along with funds from Braxton County Commission will provide the $75,000 needed for the evaluation.

House To Start Session With Focus On Jobs

House Speaker Roger Hanshaw, R-Clay, announced several initiatives he expects the West Virginia House of Delegates to consider when second regular session of the 87th Legislature convenes in January.

“West Virginia voters continue to tell us they want us to focus on jobs,” Hanshaw said. “When our leadership team surveyed the 91 Republican Delegates in the 100-member House to prepare for this year, 81 of them responded, and overwhelmingly the focus was clear: economic development and the education that builds it for the state.”

Hanshaw noted that the proposals came from interim committee reports and studies, along with workgroups and conferences to learn from other states since the 2025 regular session had adjourned.

“This is by no means an exhaustive list of everything that will be debated during the session, and we certainly don’t have all the details ironed out on these things yet either,” he said. “We recognize the growing majority party includes many voices and each of our communities has different needs, but every community benefits from good jobs and opportunity.”

Hanshaw spoke about efforts to enhance workforce-ready education programs within the state, starting with a pay raise for teachers and service personnel. Other proposals included the ReCharge West Virginia Act, which would reimburse certain training costs for existing businesses that upskill their workers and boost their wages, as well as two work skills pathway programs: Skills at Work, and Tech Maintenance, Repair and Overhaul for future aviation careers. The West Virginia Collaboratory proposal would connect higher education research with the Legislature to provide data-driven solutions for major challenges.

Several proposals to ensure fair regulations and minimal red tape look to continue shaping the job-creating business climate West Virginia is becoming known for.

“These may not be the most provocative bills, but they are issues our members hear about when they’re at the gas station and the grocery store,” Hanshaw said. “Things like expanding what we define as ‘recovered feedstock’ and ‘solid waste’ would

Clay County Commission holds December meeting

By Gary Lee Stuber

The regular meeting of the Clay County Commission on December 8 was the only meeting for the Commission in December. All three commissioners were present: David Schoolcraft; Joyce Johnson, president, and Duane Legg. County Clerk Shelia Stone was present as recorder. The commission approved the next meeting to be on January 2, which is a Friday and will be an organization meeting for the year. The meeting, which is required by law, will set the schedule dates and times for next year’s meetings, which are all subject to change year to year.

The fairly brief meeting was mostly regular business: minutes from the previous meeting, bills, purchase order, budget revisions, erroneous assessments as presented by the Assessor, fiduciary appointment as presented by the County Clerk, probating last wills and testaments, and final settlements of estates.

The commission accepted the Letter of Resignation of Marsha King, effective December 31.

The commission approved the purchase of an ambulance and a cot from Stryker from the state funded Ambulance Equipment Fund.

After a number of weeks of consideration and looking at options, the commission approved a new PEIA insurance change effective January 1, 2026 for all employees who wanted to take advantage of this. The plan change is for the Commission to directly pick up 80% of employee premium costs for employees that choose Plan C. The employees during open enrollment have the option to choose Plan A. But the commission will only pay 80% for those employees who remain in, or change to, Plan C. During comment opportunity, no one in the room objected to this change.

Terry Martin gave a number of reports beginning with the 2025 HUD Community Development Block Grant. Last year they applied for funding for the Osia Water Project and only five projects were funded. He wanted to know if the commission wanted him to reapply this year. It would only require one public meeting to announce it. They gave him permission to tender the application. Next, he addressed the Congressional Directed Spending 911 Center update, telling the commission they were on the federal budget for up to $4.5 million dollars to relocate the 911 center. Before further progress can be made, the US Congress would need to approve the annual budget which will probably happen in January or February of next year. Last year because it was a Continuing Resolution, the President stripped out all extraneous spending from last years budget. The funding is still in the budget, but that budget would need to be approved. It could take up to six months after the budget is approved, because they will have to update a new application with HUD and an environmental study would need to be prepared on any selected site.

Terry Martin also gave updates on several projects. Regarding the Big Otter Nebo Waterline, Terry said they were about 60% complete and are expecting to have all work completed and people connected to water in March. The Grassy Fort Waterline is still in design and is about 75% completed. The issues right now are just getting easements and right-of-way signatures for the physical line. As far as the Clay County Judicial Annex is concerned, there are only minor things to be completed. So final payment will be delayed until the work is finished. After the meeting in a conversation with Sheriff Deputies, it was clarified that the Department is now using the patrol office in the new Judicial Annex. But the retaining cell is still not in use because benches are still three weeks out from arriving, and they will need to be bolted to the floor when they arrive.

The commission also noted that they had 13 applications for a second full-time janitor and were looking them all over And that finishes the Clay County Commission for the year.

A Crack In The Clouds

By Joe Mazzella

It was a gray, gloomy day. The sky had been over-cast for 3 days in a row. Even when it wasn’t raining there was little light. It looked like all the colors of the world had dimmed thanks to the gray sky overhead. It looked like a dreary preview of the many Winter’s days to come. I was driving along in my car on my way home. I had put on some Christmas music to try and lift my spirits but I still felt tired and run down from the lack of light.

I put in another Christmas CD and listened to the music. Suddenly, “Joy to the World” was playing and I smiled. It had always been one of my favorite Christmas carols. Since no one was in the car with me to hear I started to sing along in my weak, raspy, cracking voice. Just as I started to sing, though, a crack appeared in the clouds and a beam of sunlight broke through. It shined through my windshield and landed on my face like a Heavenly Kiss. I soaked in its light and warmth and felt such joy. I blinked back at my moistening eyes and continued to sing. Then as quickly as it appeared the crack in the clouds closed and the sun was hidden again. But its light lingered in my soul. I thanked God for this little miracle that had energized my weary heart and continued to sing all the way home.

This life has its share of gloomy, gray days and not just in the sky either. When these days appear you have two choices. You can join in the grayness or you can be the light that finds a crack in the clouds and shines through to brighten another’s heart. For myself, I will always choose the light. I will always remember that God is the Love within us. And I will always do my best to share that Love with the world.

Find that crack in the clouds then. Do your best to bring a little more light to this life. Do your best to bring a little more Joy to this World. Do your best to share the Love within you.

When the new college opened in the next town – a somewhat larger town than ours – our folks began wondering if making the 30-minute drive to class would be worth it.

Dud was the first to figure out that it was.

“Boys,” he said, sitting at the Mule Barn philosophy counter and flipping his cup upright with one poetic motion, “I’m signed up over at J.H.T... I’m going to get me an education.”

“That’s great, Dud,” said his mentor and straight man, Doc. “What are you taking?”

“Just one class to start out, Doc,” Dud said. “Thought I’d kinda e-e-e-ease into it, you know. I’m taking functional literacy. We’re going to study words and their meanings.”

“I thought you did that in high school. Maybe even in grammar school?”

“Right, Doc. But this is college, you know. We’re going to take functional literacy to a higher plane!”

When Jerry Hat-Trick Junior College recently opened its doors, it attracted a great deal of attention. Not only was it the first privately-endowed junior college in the country, but it was named for its benefactor, the famous retired hockey player. It had always been Jerry’s dream, he told the world, to bring about a greater appreciation for the associate in arts degree. To do this, he paid educators to meet in think tanks all over the county and come up with classes that were “outside the box.”

Jerry did well in hockey, naturally, but endowing a two-year institution of semi-higher learning became possible only after he married the heiress to a pork-belly fortune. You might call that “functional matrimony.”

So J.H.T. J.C. was born, having innovative classes like “Pruning for the New Millenium,” “Creative Sword Swallowing,” and “First-Strike Self Defense.”

It got some of the rest of us considering a return to the halls of Virginia creeper for a tune-up. After all, as charter members of the Mule Barn truck stop’s world dilemma think tank, it’s our duty to stay on the cutting edge.

Let’s see if your local junior college boasts a class in “How to teach an old dog new tricks.”

When it comes to gifts, I’m not gifted

By Dr. James Snyder

Christmas is my favorite holiday. A time of celebration and enjoying family time together.

It wasn’t always my favorite holiday. There was a time when my birthday was my favorite holiday of the year. I enjoyed celebrating my birthday with presents and that amazing birthday cake that The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage always made.

That is, when I reached 50 years on my birthday, it came to an end. No more celebrating getting one year older. Every day on my birthday, The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage would say, “Today you are one year older.” And then she would laugh.

That was the last birthday I had, and I don’t remember it anymore, or at least that’s my story, and I’m sticking to it.

Now Christmas is my favorite holiday, and I enjoy just about every aspect of it. It’s great to have my family together around the Christmas tree and sharing Christmas presents. That’s a really fun time of the year.

I must confess that I do have a problem with the Christmas holiday.

I don’t have any problem with gathering together and eating a marvelous Christmas dinner. The issue I have concerns the gifts. When it comes to something like gifts, I am absolutely not gifted.

Unlike The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, I really don’t know how to shop. I don’t know what gifts to buy for anybody in my family. Sometimes I give cash.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage starts her Christmas shopping right after the 4th of July. All summer long, she will be shopping for and storing those Christmas gifts in her craft room. Of course, I never go into her craft room because I would get lost and not know my way out. But she can figure out every gift every individual in our family deserves.

I can’t sit down and name all of the family members, let alone know what they would like for Christmas.

When I was a kid, my parents would take me downtown to visit Santa Claus. I would sit on Santa Claus’s lap and tell him what I really wanted for Christmas. Little did I know that my parents were right next to Santa, listening to all my Christmas wish lists?

It was amazing on Christmas Day to find out that Santa had come through with my Christmas gifts. It took me a long time to realize that Santa had nothing to do with my Christmas gifts, but they all came from my parents. My parents knew me better than I knew myself.

That said, looking back on my life of Christmas gifts, I do not believe I could name my favorite. I’m recognize advanced technology for recycling and allow for more manufacturing, and that’s a proposal for more jobs, plain and simple.”

Other business climate proposals included allowing portable benefits for the modern workforce to more flexibly maintain retirement or insurance savings across multiple employers; Mountaineer Flex, a performance-based, flexible tax credit to encourage major investment and job creation without limiting it to a specific industry; a timing proposal for the PSC to allow an Energy Infrastructure Approval fast track for more modern and reliable power which also would create jobs; and TEAM-WV, which would create a competitive, statewide nonprofit to drive a cohesive strategy for site development, partnerships and business growth.

“We always look to serve the long-term interests of the state with real and lasting infrastructure and development, along with the knowledge that different parts of the state have different needs,” Hanshaw said.

Governor Patrick Morrisey Announces Plan to Include State Employee Pay Raises in 2026 Budget Request

Governor Patrick Morrisey announced that his proposed Fiscal Year 2027 budget will include pay raises for state employees, citing West Virginia’s improved financial outlook made possible by his administration’s disciplined, balanced-budget approach over the past year.

“I believe in casting a wide net,” said Governor Morrisey. “Our state employees are the ones who teach our children, fix our roads and bridges, guard our prisons, police our streets, and administer the programs thousands of West Virginians rely on. They enter public service not for their own benefit, but for the benefit of our people. They deserve to share in the positive results of our fiscal progress.”

The pay raises proposed by Governor Morrisey will apply to state employees who are funded through the general revenue budget, which includes the vast majority of state workers. This category covers teachers, State Police, corrections officers, and many other essential public servants.

Governor Morrisey’s proposed pay raise will also address critical vacancies in areas such as Corrections, Child Protective Services, and Education.

“Too often, we lose talented teachers, service personnel, and police officers to neighboring states offering higher pay,” Governor Morrisey said. “We must reverse that trend by ensuring our public servants can build their careers here in West Virginia. Keeping teachers, law enforcement, and other dedicated professionals is essential to maintaining the vital services our communities rely not even sure what I got for Christmas last year.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I celebrate our 55th Christmas this year. She can sit around the Christmas tree and recall every gift we have ever received or given and to whom.

That makes Christmas a great challenge for me. The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has no problem with Christmas gift shopping. I must confess that most of the time I let her do the shopping for me, I have to pay for it.

One of the greatest disappointments in Christmas gifts is that I don’t know who wants what.

Another problem I have with Christmas gifts is that I don’t know what I want. I can’t think of anything that I would want anybody in my family to buy me for Christmas. They always come around and bring me things that surprise me, and I appreciate it. But if I had to make a list of what I wanted for Christmas, that list would be blank even today.

My other big problem with Christmas gifts is for The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. I would never know what Christmas gift she would like from me. What does she need for Christmas? After all, she has me, so what else does she need?

If I’m going to do Christmas right, I’ll need to ask The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage what I should get for each of the family members. When I asked her that question, she didn’t need to think about it and came up with a long list of what I could get for each of my family members.

Oh boy, if I didn’t have her, I wouldn’t be able to celebrate Christmas as I do today.

In her craft room, she has a special place, I don’t know where it is, where she stores all of her Christmas gifts for the coming year. She knows what she has and who it’s for. I sometimes wonder whether Santa Claus might be part of their family heritage.

I’m looking forward to a wonderful Christmas. It is amazing to me to see the gifts people give each other. I can only assume that they get that trait from The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage.

Celebrating Christmas around the Christmas tree is a wonderful time to be with family.

Thinking along this line, a scripture came to mind. “Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God” (1 Corinthians 10:31).

Christmas is a great time to gather and give God the glory for all He has done for us. A time to remember all God has done for us during the year and looking forward to the New Year.

Dr. James L. Snyder lives in Ocala, FL with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Telephone 1-352-216-3025, e-mail jamesnsnyder51@gmail.com, website www.jamesnsnyderministries.com.

Finally, proposals to address responsible economic growth included the Construction Cost Relief Act, which would exempt building construction materials from the state sales tax; the Welcome Home Act, which would help real estate developers by separating their parceled inventory to fairly tax what is developed; the West Virginia First Small Business Growth Act, which would allow capital and financing for job creators already in the state; an update with additional funding to the Industrial Access Roads program for local Economic Development Agencies; and expanding site readiness grants with more funding altogether while including smaller acreage.

“I cannot think of a single societal ill that cannot be improved by a thriving economy,” Hanshaw said. “Ensuring people have opportunities to earn a decent living and make the right decisions for themselves and their families should not be controversial or even political, which is why we will remain focused on the principles that create and maintain a growing and diverse economy.”

The plan to provide more competitive wages for state employees is the latest step in the administration’s broader effort to rebuild West Virginia’s economy after securing $5.5 billion in economic development investments that will bring 5,500 jobs. The Morrisey Administration has secured additional wins, successfully championing universal licensing reciprocity to reduce barriers to work and implementing the one-stop shop permitting system to cut red tape and speed up business development. Additionally, House Bill 2014 has positioned West Virginia as one of the most attractive states in the country for data center investment, while supporting microgrids, strengthening the energy grid, lowering income taxes, and helping counties fund critical infrastructure.

ANNUAL SHOOTING MATCH HELD BY BVSC

The "Lower Gob Dump" at Widen was the scene of the annual shooting match held by the Buffalo Valley Sportsman's Club on November 15, 1958.

Mr. Richard Manning was Chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, and was assisted by Charles Barrett, John Henley, Scott Williams, Tom Mullins and Jerle Hamrick.

Mr. Fielding Kyer, County Conservation Officer helped to direct the shooting match. Mr. Manning has announced that this project was very successful and expresses his thanks to those who served on his committee and especially to Mr. Kyer for his time and effort.

The Widen Band Boosters Club was on hand all day with their "lunch wagon" selling hot dogs, barbecues and coffee. Those who helped on the "lunch wagon" were Mrs. Elizabeth Manning, Chairman, Mrs. Maude Hamrick, Mrs. Charlotte Morris, Misses Hazel Baughman, Mailyn Lewis, Patricia Manning and Terry Shaffer.

School Superintendents To Meet Here Nov. 19

The County Superintendents of Central West Virginia and their Supervisors met November 19 at the Clay County High School to study the curriculum for the schools and to make reports on what their respective counties are doing to improve the curriculum, it was announced by Supt. Brooks Smith of Clay County.

Those attending were Superintendents Oakford Deitz of Nicholas; Troy Morrison of Calhoun; Roy Cartright of Braxton, Mac Brooks of Pocahontas; A. L. Walker of Fayette, Roland Butcher of Gilmer; John Shock of Webster; and Brooks Smith of Clay; and the Supervisors from the respective counties.

Supt. Brooks Smith said Tuesday that the superintendents were trying to work up a more practical and useful curriculum for the schools.

Hallowe'en Party

Mrs. Cecil Butcher and Mrs. Elvin Ashley, teachers of the Intermediate Sunday School Class of the Widen Baptist Church, entertained their class with a masquerade party, Thursday evening, October 30, at 7:30 p.m.

Prizes were given to the best dressed and the homeliest persons.

Games were played and prizes were awarded to the winners. Each pupil and guest were given a Hallowe'en hat.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated with artificial pumpkins and candles made in the form of witches.

After the party, the teachers and some of the pupils went "trick and treating". Fortunately, they were treated by everyone so they played no tricks.

Christmas Seals Are In The Mail

The annual sale of Christmas Seals opened November 14th in West Virginia and the entire United States and its possessions. The Christmas Seals are mailed to the citizens of Clay County by the West Virginia Tuberculosis and Health Association, the state association, because there is no Seal Sale conducted by local people in Clay County this year.

The funds derived from the annual sale of Christmas Seals will be used by the voluntary tuberculosis associations to help control and prevent this infectious disease in Clay County and the state, through the program of case-finding to find unknown cases of tuberculosis; education to prevent this infectious disease; research to study the disease and to promote techniques in surgery and drug therapy and to search for a vaccine which will prevent and cure this disease; social service to help the tuberculous patient and the patient's family; and rehabilitation to return the arrested case of tuberculosis to a useful and gainful life.

Tuberculosis still remains a major public health problem in spite of all that has been accomplished. Much remains to be done and funds are needed to carry on this work. The annual sale of Christmas Seals, by mail, is the only source of revenue of your tuberculosis association and you are requested to please purchase the Christmas Seals mailed to you and to use them on your Christmas mail and packages.

Panthers claim end of season glory

By Allen Hamrick

It has been said, “If a man has any brains at all, let him hold onto his calling, and in the grand sweep of things, his turn will come at last.” W. McCune.

During the 2025 season the Panther football team ground their way into one of the best teams in the state, evidenced by the fact they went to the quarterfinals in the state tournament. This team dedicated themselves to the sport of football and got the job done. In the world of high school football, Friday nights are about a team of eleven players and their standbys coming together and moving as one. This Panther team was in it to win every down, every kick and every quarter.

However, when the stadium lights go out and the season ends, it’s time for the collective big wigs to get together and recognize the individuals who went above and beyond and powered their teams. This past week the Panther football franchise solidified its place in the state with five players earning All State recognition. This is a testament to the grit, discipline and culture built up by Coach Jason Nichols and his assistant coaches. It’s grand enough to have one player make the list, but five across the different levels speaks volumes of the students in the halls of CCHS.

Leading the group was Jaxon Brown, kicker for the Panthers who was awarded 1st Team All State. Jakoby Nichols, Jaden Morris and Cooper Collins were named 2nd team All State. Coming in with Honorable Mention honors was Joel Elliott who I would put up against any wide receiver in the state. Not sure what the powers that be who make these decisions were thinking but honorable mention for a player as good as Joel Elliott is a kick in the pants. He deserved much better. Clay County fans should be very proud of these young men because awards like this don’t just happen, they are a result of hard work and a refusal to quit. They didn’t just play for themselves; they played for the fans of this county. The pads and jerseys have been put away until the next season and these five players have set the standard for future Panther teams as to exactly what it takes to reach this level.

Congratulations to these players!

Jaden Morris – 2nd Team All State

Jakoby Nichols – 2nd Team All State

Cooper Collins – 2nd Team All State

Joel Elliott – Honorable Mention All State

Governor and First Lady Open Governor’s Mansion for Free Holiday Tours

Governor’s Mansion and West Virginia State Capitol tours now available to be booked online

Governor Patrick Morrisey and First Lady Denise Morrisey have opened the Governor’s Mansion to the public for free tours. Just in time for the holidays, tours of the Governor’s Mansion and West Virginia State Capitol give visitors an inside look into two of the Mountain State’s most iconic landmarks.

As announced during last week’s Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony, a unique treat awaits at the Mansion this holiday season. The First Lady has created a special life-size gingerbread house that children will be excited to enter on their way to the front door of the Governor’s Mansion. Starting today, tours of both the Governor’s Mansion and the West Virginia State Capitol are available to be booked online.

“We are so excited to open up the Governor’s Mansion for tours,” said First Lady Morrisey. “The Christmas season is a special time to share the Mansion’s rich history and holiday spirit with families and guests across our great state. I can’t wait to see children’s faces light up when they see our special gingerbread house.”

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Governor’s mansion, one of West Virginia’s most beloved residences. Nestled along the banks of the Kanawha River, this stately home has been the center of historical milestones since 1925.

Tours of the Governor’s Mansion are offered Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Tours of the Governor’s Mansion can be combined with a tour of the West Virginia State Capitol Building for an immersive historical day. To schedule your free guided tour today, visit <https://wvtourism.com/tours/>. Reservations are required.
