"Establish a foundation of trust by empowering both employees and managers to be effective in remote work scenarios." - Gartner

Why you must focus on improving the remote working experience during COVID-19

- The ongoing COVID-19 pandemic is forever changing the world of work with individuals, teams, and entire organisations have been forced to work remotely for the first time.

- It's vital to assess your communication, performance management and leadership processes together with your technology infrastructure, to determine their ability to fully support remote working.

The impact of our Remote Working Survey

- Understand how well your organisation has adapted to remote working and if your people have all the support they need to thrive.

- Give your remote workers a voice and tailor your ongoing workforce strategy to prevent disengagement, stress and low productivity.
