WELCOME TO DAROGA STATE PARK

Daroga State Park is an oasis of green lawn surrounded by the desert “scablands” of the Columbia Basin. This 90-acre camping park features 1.5 miles of Columbia River shoreline and offers visitors plenty of sunshine and water recreation in a beautiful outdoor environment.

The park offers a variety of recreational activities, including boating, fishing, hiking, water skiing and swimming. The nationally recognized Desert Canyon Golf Course is just two miles away.

Overnight accommodations

The park offers 17 primitive campsites, which are walk-in or boat-in only (not accessible by vehicles). Campers using the primitive campsites should be prepared to walk a quarter-mile to a half-mile to the campsites. There also are 28 utility sites with water and electricity. The utility sites accommodate RVs of any size. All campsites are reservable from May 15 to Sept. 15. and available first come, first served the remainder of the year. There also are two group camps, each accommodates up to 150 guests. Reservations for the group camps can only be made by calling (888) CAMPOUT or (888) 226-7688.

Park history

The name “Daroga” comes from the first letters in the first names of the three Auvil brothers, Dave, Robert and Grady, who started an orchard/ranch at this site in 1928. The brothers developed a new type of peach on the ranch, catalogued as “the Daroga Peach.” The orchard moved upland from the current park site with the construction of the Rocky Reach dam. Prior to fruit production this riverscape was used by Native Americans for centuries.
