State Park

Welcome to Fort Ebey State Park

Fort Ebey State Park, on the western side of Whidbey Island, was built as a coastal defense fort during World War II. This 645-acre camping park features concrete platforms marking former gun sites and an underground battery that is ripe for exploring (with a flashlight).

The park also boasts 28 miles of walking trails and 25 miles of biking trails. A spectacular hike along the bluff leads to the gun battery, and multiple picnic sites provide panoramic views of the Puget Sound shipping lanes, Port Townsend and the Olympic mountain range. At low tide, visitors can walk on the driftwood-strewn beach. Entering the forested trails, hikers and cyclists encounter Douglas-fir, hemlock and native rhododendrons (the Washington state flower). Don't miss the breathtaking, ever-changing sunsets!

Other popular activities include paragliding, smallmouth bass fishing in Lake Pondilla, and eagle watching. There are two large fields at Fort Ebey that accommodate sports activities. The beach at Fort Ebey is open to seaweed harvesting from April 16 through May 15 with a shellfish/seaweed license.

Overnight Accommodations

Fort Ebey State Park offers 39 standard campsites, 11 partial-utility campsites with electricity and water hook-ups, one water-trail campsite available only to campers who arrive at the park in human-powered watercraft, one restroom (ADA compliant), and two showers (one ADA compliant). Maximum site length will accommodate most extra-large RVs (limited availability). There is no trailer dump station available at this park. The campground is open April 1 through Oct. 31, with reservations required May 15 through Sept. 15.

The park also provides a group camp that accommodates up to 60 people. The camp is located on a bluff down Point Partridge Road. The site has a vault toilet and running water. Flush toilets and showers are a five-minute walk down an easy trail. Minimum number of people is 20, maximum is 60. Maximum number of cars is 30.

Park History

Established in 1942, Fort Ebey was one of the last forts built in the Puget Sound harbor defense system. Its single fortification, Battery 248, was designed with the newest technology available, including radar to help aim the guns and camouflage to hide the battery from aerial view. Two six-inch shielded guns were mounted at Fort Ebey in 1943.

Though the fort was manned until 1948, it was declared surplus in 1947. The system of coastal fortifications to defend U.S. coastlines became obsolete after World War II.

Fort Ebey lies within the traditional territory of multiple southern Coast Salish tribes. The tribes hunted large mammals, harvested Camas bulbs, roots, nuts and berries on the land, and used the waters for fishing and shellfish harvesting. In the 1850s, the area was homesteaded. The fort was acquired by Washington State Parks in 1968, and opened to the public in 1981.
