biomorphic

Inspired by the age-old use of bamboo in channeling water from rivers and brooks, the Confluence basin mixer by Artize has been designed to deliver a natural flow of peace and serenity into your bathroom. The calming effect of naturally falling water has been replicated in Confluence by crafting a gentle flow that descends from a half-cut bamboo into your palms.

Its biomorphic design is the culmination of bringing one of mankind's most natural experiences of engaging with water.

Engineered for perfection

The design of Confluence overcomes several intriguing engineering challenges. It ensures that the flowing water never leaves the contours of the perfectly angled, bamboo-inspired channel.

The unique step-fall dispensing system also guarantees that the water arrives without creating a splash, always delivering an even and tranquil experience. The carefully calculated angle of the basin mixer also ensures that water doesn't stay in the spout.

Confluence is a synthesis of true craftsmanship - a combination of exquisite detailing, form and technology that brings a natural flow of water into the bathroom.
