Winter-proof your bedroom

In winter the thought of curling up in bed with a good book is temptation itself.

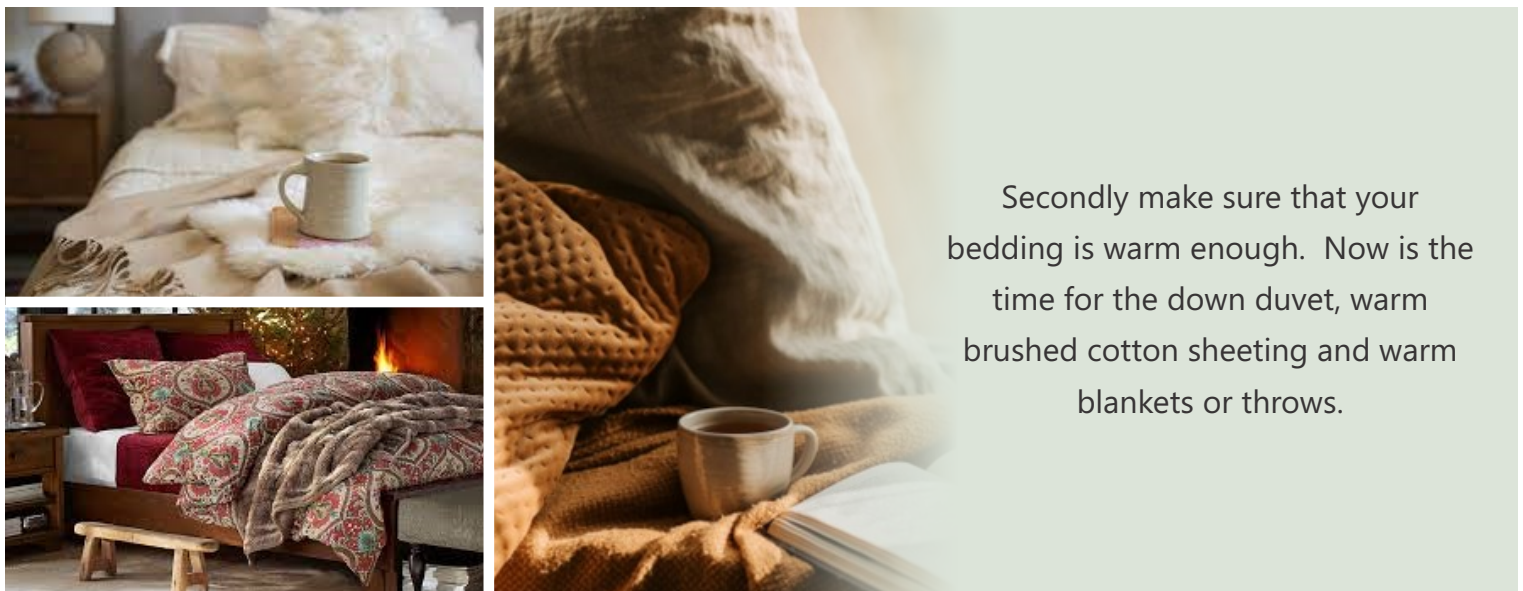

The question to ask yourself is "Is my bedroom winter-proof?" Mine certainly wasn't, so I found some great ideas for making your bedroom extra snug during this winter.

Firstly, make sure your curtains are shut tightly against the cold. Shut curtains create space next to the window which insulates the room. If you have a block-out lining on your curtains, all the better.

Use a draught excluder if there is cold air seeping into your bedroom. Those old-fashioned sausages at doors worked wonderfully.

Secondly make sure that your bedding is warm enough. Now is the time for the down duvet, warm brushed cotton sheeting and warm blankets or throws.

Thirdly, add a loose rug or carpet to your bedroom – cold feet are no fun on a wintry morning! Also add quilts and extra blankets.

For extra warmth and coziness, an electric blanket or hot water bottle cannot be beaten. Now's the time to use them!

Using a humidifier is also advisable – even though you might not have a direct source of heat in your bedroom, moist air feels much warmer than dry air.

Linens Drawer helping to keep you warm this winter

At Linens Drawer our watchword is sleeping comfort.

This is particularly important during the cold winter months, when your bed becomes a dear friend you hate parting from!

Trust Linens Drawer to provide the most beautiful, luxurious, and durable bedding to keep you and your family warm throughout the winter.

You will want to start with a mattress topper to provide extra warmth – Linens Drawer stocks microfibre as well as feather toppers to ensure comfort and warmth.

Sleep on Egyptian Cotton sheets and pillowcases – they are naturally soft and smooth and seem warm to the touch.

Duvet inners are available in down/ feather, pure cotton and microfibre. Whichever one you choose will be comfortable and keep you warm.
