01. INTRODUCTION TO OKHA

OKHA the contemporary furniture brand, established by the acclaimed architectural practice SAOTA in 1997, is recognized for its expressive exploration of form, texture and materiality, bringing attention to the merging of asymmetry and natural order.

Creative Director, Adam Court, via an inner/outer view, examines the inter-being of things, taking product and design beyond the object.

Now represented by the world's leading design galleries and showrooms.

CHEETAH PLAINS

OKHA created statement pieces for luxury safari lodge, Cheetah Plains, working in close collaboration with ARRCC (the architects and interior designers) and architect, Stefan Antoni of SAOTA to achieve a high level of sophisticated bushveld beauty.

The project consists of three independent bush houses, named Mapogo, Mvula and Karula, each made up of several individual structures which include a central lounge, and dining room with bar area, a family media and entertainment room, a covered terrace, an open boma courtyard and separate freestanding bedroom suites.

INVERMARK

Located in the heart of Cape Town's Higgovale, at the foot of Table Mountain, Invermark is a bold, concrete structure paradoxically in symbiosis with its lush organic surroundings. The home, designed by Krtzinger Architects with interiors by OKHA design studio, both internationally recognized for their design excellence, embarked on a journey to transform an existing structure into a contemporary haven that captures the essence of modern living.

SPRINGBOK

From the street, this Cape Town home on the slopes of Table Mountain, has a discreet, modest presence. Passers-by see little more than a slatted timber fence, which gives no indication of the panoramic vista on the other side of the front door as you enter and descend into the living spaces. Floor-to-ceiling windows and sliding doors embrace the view over the city towards the ocean and let in abundant natural light.

CLIFTON 301

OKHA's interior project, Clifton 301, is a seasonal two-bedroom apartment in a sophisticated contemporary complex designed by SAOTA. Flanked on either side by Table Mountain's legendary Twelve Apostles, it looks out over breath-taking panoramic views of the Cape Atlantic Ocean and is in equal parts a luxurious getaway, relaxed coastal retreat and entertainer's dream.
