Estereotipos

latinos

Todas las culturas tienden a explicar el comportamiento del "otro", el que no pertenece a su cultura, a través de estereotipos. Los estereotipos se transmiten y se fijan a través de los medios de comunicación, la educación, las leyendas... y los chistes.

Los "gallegos"

En Argentina, los chistes de "gallegos" son muy populares. Esos chistes no se refieren solo a los habitantes de Galicia, sino en general a todos los españoles. Eso es así porque dentro de la oleada migratoria española que llegó a América a fines del siglo XIX y principios del XX, la comunidad gallega fue la más numerosa, y en países como Argentina y Cuba se empezó a llamar "gallegos" a todos los españoles. Esos inmigrantes que se instalaron en grandes ciudades modernas como Buenos Aires eran personas de origen campesino, pobres y a menudo de bajo nivel educativo. Así se creó el estereotipo de "gallego inculto y bruto, pero honrado y buena persona."

Manolito, el personaje del cómic Mafalda del dibujante argentino Quino, es hijo de un inmigrante español y tiene las típicas características del "gallego". Este estereotipo también está presente en películas y obras de teatro.
