

Loan words

Class Objective: I will be able to understand and identify Loan words.

Concept A: Introduction

- Korean has many loan words and Korean-style English words which are called “Konglish” (Korean + English).
- Such words make up a significant part of everyday vocabulary. Borrowed words are words that sound and mean the same as English words.
- They are easy to remember, because they sound like English, though with a Korean accent.
- 콩글리시 (Konglish) and 외래어 are loanwords that derived from another language, and they are parts of the three main components of the Korean language: pure Korean words, Sino-Korean words, and loanwords.
- 외래어 are Korean words that are derived from another language because there is no equivalent or substitute words for them in the Korean language.

For example:

컵 = cup

카페 = cafe

초콜릿 = chocolate

카메라 = camera

택시 = taxi

인터넷 = internet

- Other konglish words sound like English words, but have a different meaning.
Koreans often shorten some English word to make a new konglish word:

에어컨 (air-con)

노트 (note)

버스 (bus)

택시 (taxi)

슈퍼마켓 (supermarket)

커피숍 (coffee shop)

부페 (Buffet style restaurant)
