Concept B: Story 1:

The Winning Spree

There was once a boy named Rohan who liked nothing more in the world than to win. He loved winning at whatever it may be: football, cards, video games... everything. And because he couldn't stand losing, he had become an expert in all kinds of tricks and cheating. He could play tricks in practically every situation, without being noticed; even in video games or playing alone. He could win without ever being caught.

He won so many times that everyone saw him as the champion. It meant that almost no one wanted to play with him, he was just too far ahead of everyone. One person who did play with him was his neighbour, a little boy, Nitin who was a bit younger. Rohan really enjoyed himself at Nitin's expense, always making the boy look ridiculous.

It was the time for the championship tournament, Rohan was terribly embarrassed: he was a good player, but without his cheats, he couldn't beat a single competitor. He was soon eliminated, and sat there, sad and pensive. Finally, they announced the name of the tournament champion. It was Nitin, his neighbour. The one he had always beaten through his cheating. Nitin had become smarter and learnt from his defeats and finally gone ahead to win the tournament too.

Rohan felt ashamed, he walked up to Nitin and congratulated him. He then said "Rohan, I wanted to tell you something. Sorry Nitin, I have been cheating all this
