Eager to experiment with The Balvenie peat using what he had learnt from a recent trip to Islay, distillery manager Ian Millar ordered a batch of Speyside peat for the kiln. For a week a year, The Balvenie distills a batch of peated malt, resulting in a whisky rich in honey, vanilla and citrus notes with an extra layer of delicate smokiness.

The Balvenie Distillery is built on the coves that are told from each generation of craftsmen to the next. They're our lifeline. It is how we pass on what we know, how we process experiences, and how we create new ideas. The Balvenie Stories range documents these tales of true character.

From the distillery comes:

(01) THE WEEK OF PEAT
A sweet, smoky and fragrant expression of The Balvenie, crafted by distilling peated malt for one week of the year.
