— The JEWEL of ETERNAL LOVE —

Within the Mayan Kingdom, there was a beautiful princess named Cuzan, who was promised to be married, by way of her father King Ahnu Dlundunxnaan, to the prince of Nan Chan, Ek Chapal, the future Lord of the Kingdom.

The princess did not accept the wishes of her father, because she was secretly in love with CHAPOL, a young farmer. They both knew that it was an impossible love, but every day at dusk, after the sun was hidden, they would see each other secretly, and their love became luminous.

When the king heard this news, he ordered for Chapol to be disposed of, but when he saw his daughter suffering greatly, he gave up his orders, and turned to the Shamans, or "men of knowledge" of the town for wisdom, and ordered instead for Chapol to become an insect. As days passed, the princess drowned herself in a deep sadness for not having her beloved.

Meanwhile, Chapol was turned into a beetle.

A Shaman in the town was so touched by such a great love, he gave the princess that beetle, giving her the hope that every day just as the sun was setting, the beetle would become her beloved again. However it would only last for a few minutes, but this would be enough time for the princess to feel loved and happy once again.

Because of her respect for King Dlundunxnaan, the princess had no other option than to accept the wishes of her father and marry the prince, Ek Chapal, whom her father had chosen for her.

Yet still this did not separate her from Chapol, for to whom she swore her eternal love. When Ek Chapal discovered that this beetle was nothing less than Chapol, he tried to kill him, but fortunately he always failed, because the beautiful princess did not let him out of her sight at any time.

Moved to desperation by the intentions of her husband, Cuzan found a way to hide him in a precious jewel. She called upon the best jeweler to embellish and enhance it, who then placed a gold chain with beautiful diamonds around it, so she could wear it around her neck and always have it close to her heart.

This was how the sunset became her best friend and accomplice, and that beautiful beetle became the most precious jewel she ever had.
