our story

In 1845 our family traveled from Germany to the Republic of Texas and for 174 years we have been farming and ranching the banks of Cummins Creek. Over the years, we've occasionally took time to make a little wine from the wild grapes that grow along its banks. Presently—up on the third bank—our family is passing on this tradition and encouraging the sixth generation of agriculturists.

Just as our family has evolved, so have the grapes we now grow. The Blanc du Bois variety is a hybrid grape that thrives in the Texas weather and is transformed into a smooth white wine that releases aromas of flowers and fruits infused by the surrounding countryside.

We hope you enjoy this Blanc wine from the third bank of Cummins Creek, resulting from our decades of tradition and the uncommon environment this old creek and God gives us.
