TEXAS ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE COMMISSION

Undead Head Ed is a Ghost Chile Robust Porter. This brew comes from the mind of our friend Ed: brewer, beer lover, Grateful Dead fan, and eventual zombie. It uses a ridiculous number of malts and American whole cone hops. Ghost Chiles were added both in the kettle and post-fermentation.

Tasting Notes: Dark chocolate in color with a rich brown head; strong, sweet, & roasty malt body; subtle chile flavor and hop bite.

Ingredients: Maris Otter, four specialty malts, two roasted malts, a touch of wheat, a sprinkle of 6-Row (ask Ed), Simcoe, Columbus, and Centennial whole cone hops. Ghost Chiles. House Yeast.

Our ale is unfiltered and unpasteurized.
Decant with care as some yeast settling is normal.

GOVERNMENT WARNING:
(1) According to the Surgeon General, women should not drink alcoholic beverages during pregnancy because of the risk of birth defects. (2) Consumption of alcoholic beverages impairs your ability to drive a car or operate machinery, and may cause health problems.

Lone Pint Brewery is a grassroots insurrection with the true ale lover in mind. We are dedicated to creating distinctive local Texas ales that are tasty, hoppy, and quaffable. We use raw whole cone hops for bittering, flavoring, aroma, and dry hopping additions in all of our brews. However, an equally important ingredient is the renewable energy that powers our Brewery. The spent grain is fed to a local dairy farmer's cows and the spent hops are composted.

Craft brewing is an American institution. Our brewhouse and tanks are from Nevada, our boiler from Pennsylvania, our kegging machine from California, our chiller from Oregon, and our mill from Canada (close enough, eh?). Point being, we kept the love at home, doing our part to insure that craft brewing will always remain an American institution.
