TEXAS ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE COMMISSION

The Huarpe Indians, the original inhabitants of the Mendoza region, were the first to establish an irrigation system using the melt waters of the Andes. The main channels, still in use today, were all named after Indian chiefs such as Cacique Allayne, from whom our Malbec takes its name. It is crafted from two parcels of Malbec: one from the old vines on our Finca Libertad Estate and the other from our high altitude Finca La Encerrada vineyards. The result is a complex wine brimming with fresh strawberries and plums infused with subtle spice and caramel notes from six months in French oak barrels. Expressive and well-balanced with silky tannins and a lingering ripe fruit finish, it partners well with our famous steak, pan fried lamb and dishes with richly flavoured sauces.
