WE ARE HERE

Clouds build as they travel thousands of miles across the Southern Ocean and gather around the land mass of New Zealand. The Maori call this Aotearoa, or Land of the Long White Cloud.

Central Aotearoa is 42 degrees below the equator, which is where 42 BELOW was conceived. And coincidentally, we are located near one of the most sought after Aotearoa's most treasured water springs used in crafting our vodka - some of the world's smoothest. This is why international judges have applauded 42 BELOW for its "controlled finish that releases flavor rather than heat".
