ALIENOR

LAKE COUNTY SYRAH

2009

ALIENOR is a tribute to Aliénor of Aquitaine and to the substantive contribution she made to the fine wines of France when, after the annulment of her first marriage with Louis VII King of France, she married her second husband Henry Plantagenêt in 1152, soon crowned Henry II King of England in 1154, and ascended the throne of the Kingdom of England after once being Queen of France.

As Queen of England, Aliénor shared the sustaining traditions of her native country by turning vast areas of France into English territory. During her reign, grape production and wine export grew to levels unequalled before or since.

Queen Aliénor's remarkable contributions to the wine trade in the 12th century deserve ongoing and contemporary recognition, which we offer in this bottle of Côte de Castelero. An accomplishment in the spirit of Aliénor, prepared in a tenor steeped in the traditions of Côtes du Rhône wines, yet informed by centuries of practice and refinement, the wine itself is a dernier cri that retains the finer qualities of that which has since been all but forgotten by the world outside France.
