The Jabberwocky
1 PT. 9.4 FL. OZ.

8.5% ALC/VOL 114 IBUs

The Jabberwocky, our Imperial India Pale Ale uses Golden Promise malts and two very pungent whole cone American hops. This brew is hopped so heavily that post-boil, after all of the wort has been transferred to the fermenter, the hop mass at the bottom of the kettle is more than one foot deep. Post-fermentation, The Jabberwocky is dry hopped with colossal amounts of the same two hops. The beer is named after a monster we all hold dear.

Tasting Notes: deep golden with a head made of hop resin; light malt breadiness hidden beneath an onslaught of pungent hoppy tropical-fruitiness. "Shun the furious Bandersnatch! Shun it!"

Ingredients: Golden Promise Malt, Columbus and Citra Whole Cone Hops, House Yeast.

ALC/VOL 8.5% OG 1.072 FG 1.014 IBUs 114

Our ale is unfiltered and unpasteurized.
Decant with care as some yeast settling is normal.

beer = good

Lone Pint Brewery is a grassroots insurrection with the true beer lover in mind. We are dedicated to creating distinctive local Texas ales that are tasty, hoppy, and quaffable. We use raw whole cone hops for bittering, flavoring, aroma, and dry hopping additions in all of our brews. However, an equally important ingredient is the renewable energy that powers our Brewery. The spent grain is fed to a local dairy farmer's cows and the spent hops are composted.

Craft brewing is an American institution. Our brewhouse and tanks are from Nevada, our boiler from Pennsylvania, our kegging machine from California, our chiller from Oregon, and our mill from Canada (close enough, eh)? Point being, we kept the love at home, doing our part to insure that craft brewing will always remain an American institution.
