Almaviva

Born of the encounter of two cultures and two companies, Almaviva is a great red wine which, in the Bordeaux tradition, is made from three noble grape varieties: Cabernet-Sauvignon, Carmenère and Cabernet-Franc. It is produced in limited quantities by Concha y Toro and Baron Philippe de Rothschild in the vineyards of Puente Alto, to the south of Santiago (Chile). Almaviva, the name and emblem of this Franco-Chilean wine, though it has a Hispanic ring to it, belongs to classical French literature: Count Almaviva is the hero of The Marriage of Figaro, the famous play by Beaumarchais (1732-1799) later turned into an opera by the genius of Mozart. The label, meanwhile, pays homage to Chile's ancestral history, with three reproductions of a stylised design which symbolised the vision of the earth and the cosmos in the Mapuche period. The design appeared on the "kultrun", a ritual drum used in that ancient civilisation. Hand-in-hand, two great traditions thus combine to offer the whole world a promise of pleasure and excellence.
