Affligem

ALE ANNO 1074

Blond

Blond Blonde 330 ml 11.2 FL. OZ.

In Europe, Belgium's Abbey beers are called "the Burgundies of Belgium" because of their intense flavor and robust body. Founded in 1074 by Benedictine monks, Affligem is the oldest abbey in Flanders. Artifacts indicate the Abbey was brewing beer for pilgrims as early as 1121. Eight centuries later, a French Cistercian married the traditional Affligem recipe with modern techniques, he called the result "Sommels Antiques Renoués". Following the prior's rules, only all-natural ingredients are used. A fine dosage of yeast lets Affligem mature and mellow in the bottle. The result is a true "Briquet Burgundy" - the perfect beer to sip and enjoy slowly.

Some Affligem is called simply "Abbey Beer".
These beers are a true match. Many other city or town beers are in the market, but none have the same quality as Affligem.
