RIESLING

DAUENHAUER VINEYARD
Oregon

15,000 years ago, the Missoula Floods ripped across the Pacific Northwest. Colossal walls of water carved the landscape with ten times the strength of all the world's rivers. Volcanoes erupted with lava and ash. The soils of the Willamette Valley were born.

2007 OREGON RIESLING

In nature, life springs from devastation. The Missoula Floods created soils abundant in minerals, ideal for producing Riesling with bright acidity and complex character. Our Dauenhauer Vineyard's old vine Riesling—planted in the mid 1960s—is 100% dry farmed in the heart of the Willamette Valley. The grapes are naturally packed with vibrant acids enabling us to craft a Kabinett-style wine that is sweet and yet balanced. The wine shows delicate aromas of apple and lemon.
