VALLE DE UCO
MALBEC
2012

Cristián Allamand's 2012 Valle de Uco Malbec is made from grapes that Cristián Allamand personally owns or manages in Valle de Uco; a cool, high altitude valley located at the foothills of the Andes range 80 km south of the city of Mendoza, Argentina. There is a variety of regions and sub-regions in Argentina with the potential to show an ample range of flavors and styles. Thanks to the unique microclimate of Valle de Uco, Cristián Allamand is able to craft wines that are ripe, silky and intense, yet elegant and most importantly terroir driven. This wine is Cristián Allamand's way to capture the personality, a sense of place, that Valle de Uco expresses through grapes conscientiously grown to make unique wines in Argentina.
