RIESLING

WALLULA VINEYARD
Columbia Valley

15,000 years ago, the Missoula Floods ripped across the Pacific Northwest. Colossal walls of water carved the landscape with ten times the strength of all the world's rivers. Volcanoes erupted with lava and ash. The soils of the Columbia Valley were born.

2007 COLUMBIA VALLEY RIESLING

In nature, life springs from devastation. The Missoula Floods created soils abundant in minerals, ideal for producing Riesling with bright acidity and complex character. Our Wallula Vineyard sits upon 1,000 foot cliffs towering above the Columbia River. The dry yet temperate climate and distinctive soils allow us to craft a wine that is intense, balanced, and beautifully structured with aromas and flavors of lemon, guava, and high umami.
