In the nineteenth century, our Estate Property in Stonewall, Texas, was surveyed by Captain John Coffee Hays of the Texas Rangers. This iconic Texas Ranger was the inspiration for a sculpture by artist Clay Dahlberg in 1995. In this portrayal, Ranger Hays peers alone over a large boulder at the Comanche war party that has surrounded him at Enchanted Rock. This image depicts the valiant Texas spirit of the nineteenth century. It allows us to reflect on the lives of our ancestors in the Texas Hill Country. We celebrate Dahlberg and the many Texas grape growing families who trace their roots to these hard, unpredictable times. Let us raise a glass to their grit and determination.
