The grandmothers of the wine world...

There is much to learn and contend with being a farmer of Goldschmidt Vineyards — a farmer for past and future generations, a farmer to care for and nurture the land, and a farmer to produce a product that is a combination of both art and science. Producing fine the task is often a high-stress endeavor, but the rewards are great. The appearance and performance of the vineyard are the result of the farmer's vision and the dynamics of the vineyard. The farmer's vision is the driving force behind the vineyard, and the dynamics of the vineyard are the result of the farmer's vision. The farmer's vision is the driving force behind the vineyard, and the dynamics of the vineyard are the result of the farmer's vision.

LONE TREE VINEYARD

I have found it is impossible for one vineyard site to produce great Cabernet Sauvignon, Sauvignon Blanc and Shiraz grapes but these are the wines I love to make. The "FOREFATHERS" concept is my salvation because we can farm separate appellations for each of these three varieties from three vineyards around the New World.

I consider these appellations to be the FOREFATHER appellation for each variety. Being in the perfect place eliminates the need to blend, with complexity coming from the soil and microclimate. This wine is 100% single vineyard, 100% single variety, and 100% single appellation.

The Lone Tree Vineyard in Alexander Valley sits above the valley floor on one of three uniquely different knolls. This southernmost knoll, facing east, allows the grapes to mature in the cool morning sun, rather than the heat of the afternoon. Resulting in longer ripening, the tannins, and fruit flavors can come to full maturity.

Fuller flavors, richer tannins and a supple finish makes this one of the true standouts of the region. The Lone Tree Vineyard is a unique place and has been touted as such by some of the most esteemed wine writers. — Nick Goldschmidt
