Inspired by flavors reminiscent of James Bartram's garden - hints of classic juniper berry intermingled with dry spice notes of cinnamon and angelica root, and fruity citrus aromas.

Bartram's Gin is a nod to colonial history.

In 1728, James Bartram, King George II's Royal Botanist for the colonies, established Bartram's Garden - the first botanical garden on the continent. Located in Philadelphia, the garden thrived on international trade of local plant species throughout the 18th and 19th centuries. Today the garden is an historical site that includes original as well as many modern species.

Experience this GIN in honor of the history of Bartram's splendid garden.
