Sandro (Miskl) was inspired to be creative early on in life by his father, an architect and artist. In the early '80s he was moved by the urban art movement that flourished around him, and spray paint and markers became his choice of medium. Known for his elaborate wild styles, and expressive colors, Miskl gained worldwide recognition with his three dimensional letters. Latterly, he meshed his graffiti style with his father's clean design esthetic and process, to present a new style of contemporary art.
