WE DID NOT ARRIVE HERE BY CHANCE...

The 2013 vintage will always be the year and vintage that changed my life. It is uniquely hard to remember, and impossible to forget. More than a decade has passed since my first vintage of Native9 was created, but 2013 was the vintage of firsts. It is the first year of being entirely self-employed, which is profound and scary for those who have not experienced it. Most importantly, 2013 marks the birth of Zane Rey and Lauren Grace Ontiveros. Kristen and I welcomed them into our lives and world carefully timed just after harvest on November 13, 2013. This vintage represents my first year as a father who now can share his passion for the land with his own children. I believe that the best examples of the wine experience always start with a unique, amazing site. But what is not mentioned in this equation enough is that the human element. Even the impact of an epic site has been brought about by people, and their effort....

I invite you to enjoy the greatest year of my career and celebrate vintage 2013.
