ARTIST 0007/1800
CHRIS DEAN
DETROIT

Chris Dean's synthesis of offbeat imagery and stereoscopic process has brought the nostalgic medium of lenticular pictures to a new level of artistry. The 40-year-old Detroit native began working with stereo images during his time at San Jose State University in the 1990's. Dean sees a future of artistic opportunity for those working with related technologies. Humor is a force for good in Dean's work, which shows through the user interaction required by lenticular imagery. The odd historical context of lenticular work is embraced by Dean, who often references popular culture. "While not underselling meaning, I consider fun to be a primary concern," states Dean. Currently Dean is living in Ferndale, Michigan with wife, Heather, and children, Jasper and Otto.
