In local dialect "bocale" refers to a 2 liter wine or oil jug and is also the nickname of the Valentini family who have been dedicated to wine making since the early 199s. The tradition of Bocale continues today at a small 5 hectare vineyard in Montefalco, Umbria.
Hand picked by the owners, this wine is produced using Saangiovese, Sagrantino and Merlot grapes and vinified with naturally yeast.
To maintain the caracteristics of the wine, this wine is not subject to any stabilization or filtration, therefore, any sediment is to be considered a guarantee of quality.
