20mille GRAND VIN DE BORDEAUX

En nombre viticole, plus dense est la plantation, plus bas est le rendement de la vigne et meilleurs sont les raisins. C'est fort de ce constat que certains vigneronniers particulièrement exigeants ont planté jusqu'à 12 000 pieds à l'hectare.

En vin, aller plus loin. Vous serez donc entre les mains le seul vin de la planète issu d'une plantation à 20 000 pieds/hectare. A une telle densité, la vigne est un jardin où mille machines se seraient succéder sans l'homme. Les grappes ressemblent à des humains et ne portent que deux à trois grappes de raisins exceptionnellement concentrés et chargés de soleil. Leur vin est un nectar d'un vin sublime aux excellentes dégustations.

Viticulture tells us the higher the plantation density, the lower the yield per vine and the better the grape quality. Armed with this knowledge, certain demanding winemakers plant as many as 12,000 vines per hectare (4,000 vines/acre). As a result, you now hold in your hands the only wine on the planet produced from a vineyard containing 20,000 vines/hectare (8,094 vines/acre). Our name "20mille" reflects this mythical, mythical 20,000 in English. At such a high density, the vineyard becomes its own garden—a place in which nature is so dense that no machine succeeds in penetrating it. The vines resemble human plants and render only two to three exceptionally concentrated sun-filled grape clusters. The wine they give us, with its a veritable nectar. I hope you will thoroughly enjoy.
