Po-Cha-Na-Quar-Hip III
Braggot Ale
1 PT. 9.4 FL. OZ.

Po-Cha-Na-Quar-Hip marisaweeka! This is our Braggot, a mead-ale hybrid dating back to the Middle Ages. We brewed it in collaboration with the local Magnolia Meadery, Enchanted Manor, who supplies mead to the Texas Renaissance Festival every year. Our Braggot uses American two row malt and raw, unfiltered, and unpasteurized Texas wildflower honey from Montgomery County. Whole cone American hops and Osmanthus flowers are added during the boil and later dry hopped with the same. hakai braggot namu nahniaka?

This ale is named after the Texas Penateka Comanche War Chief potsunakwahipu, or Po-Cha-Na-Quar-Hip. Po-Cha-Na-Quar-Hip's leadership helped to shape the early history of Texas. The Penateka were known as Pelnahtekuh or "honey eaters." unha nu nakisupana?iny?

Tasting Notes: Bright orange-yellow with a hoppy apricot and honey scented white head; robust wildflower honey and apricot flavor, followed by clean hop bitterness, finishing with light herbally sweetness. Cheers potsunakwahipu!

Our ale is unfiltered and unpasteurized.
Decant with care as some yeast settling is normal.

Lone Pint Brewery is a grassroots insurrection with the true ale lover in mind. We are dedicated to creating distinctive local Texas ales that are tasty, hoppy, and quaffable. We use raw whole cone hops for bittering, flavoring, aroma, and dry hopping additions in all of our brews. However, an equally important ingredient is the renewable energy that powers our Brewery. The spent grain is fed to a local dairy farmer's cows and the spent hops are composted.

Craft brewing is an American institution. Our brewhouse and tanks are from Nevada, our boiler from Pennsylvania, our kegging machine from California, our chiller from Oregon, and our mill from Canada (close enough, eh?). Point being, we kept the love at home, doing our part to insure that craft brewing will always remain an American institution.
