ALTO DE LA BALLENA

RESERVE CABERNET FRANC 2013

The careful management of the vineyard using the best agricultural practices, along with low yields per vine, made it possible to produce high quality grapes for this wine. After being hand harvested in small boxes, the grapes were lightly crushed and underwent cold maceration for two days. Fermentation then took place in stainless steel vats at controlled temperature. The optimum ripeness achieved in the vineyard enabled the wine to be kept in contact with the skins for twenty days once the alcoholic fermentation had finished. It was aged in French oak barrels for 12 months. To preserve its qualities it was lightly filtered and bottled without stabilizing.
