TEXAS ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE COMMISSION

Mourvèdre, also known as Mataro, has been cultivated in the historic Dry Creek Valley for more than a century, keeping company with the region's wild turkeys. This late-ripening grape variety–with its reputed "savage" streak–is rarely made into a single-varietal wine. On our Biodynamic farmed estate, however, we're able to nurture it to full ripeness, bringing out spice, licorice and brambly-fruit character of such appeal that the wine demands its own bottling.
