MARAUDING MYSTIC

An accomplished thief and son of a minister, John Murrell justly acquired the nickname Reverend Devil. While he preached sweet salvation, his Mystics robbed the congregations blind. This sweet and fruity white wine charms the nose and tastes a little like heaven.

The moss-draped swamps of the Texas and Louisiana border sheltered the 40-mile stretch of No Man's Land known as the Free State of Sabine. Fleeing justice, the lawless and seditious haunted these snake-infested backwaters and bayous. Within the haven of the Devil's Playground, treasures were buried, legends were forged, and the independence of the Texas nation born. Our extraordinary wines reflect the adventurous myths of such saints and sinners. Uncork a bottle to create your own legend.

Welcome to Free State.
