

We work for a sustainable and competitive industry

Techtank is an industrial cluster and a regional development organisation in Blekinge, southeastern Sweden, whose mission is to strengthen the competitiveness of the industry. Our business is aimed at industrial and technology companies as well as industry-related companies, both small and medium-sized and large companies. We work actively and close to the companies to identify their needs, and coordinate efforts to meet the challenges – in the present and in the future.

Techtank is owned by Blekinge Regional Council along with Blekinge's five municipalities: Karlshamn, Karlskrona, Olofström, Ronneby and Sölvesborg. We work to strengthen cooperation between industry, society, research institutes and academia. We have a well-developed network and often act as a link and facilitator between the companies and the resources available to support the companies in their development work. Together with various partners, we run projects and efforts that provide concrete benefits in areas such as strategic competence supply, production efficiency, digitalization, automation, robotization, innovation, circularity and sustainability.

VALUE CREATING ACTIVITIES IN SEVERAL AREAS

Techtank focuses on three business areas to promote the development of industrial companies and thus contribute to increased growth in the region:

- Competence Development & Skills Provision
- Technological Development & Innovation
- Business Development & Growth

INCREASED COMPETITIVENESS FOR THE COMPANIES

The industrial cluster that Techtank operates consists of industrial and technology companies of all sizes, from small and medium-sized enterprises to multinational global leading companies.

By joining Techtank's industrial cluster, the companies can benefit from several different projects, initiatives and activities that have been developed specifically to suit the needs of our member companies, and targeted at both senior management and employees.
