

Greetings!

Summertime - for most of us, it's our favorite time of year. And why not? Here in the northeast, warm weather and sunny days are relatively fleeting. We find ourselves spending a lot more time outdoors enjoying our beautiful beaches, parks and recreational areas, as well as tending to gardens and heading out on family vacations.

Summer, however, also exposes us more to the dangers of the sun, insects, and allergies.

While it's always good practice to heed our mantra of wearing sunscreen daily, it's never more important than now when the sun's strength is at it's peak.

It's also important to protect ourselves from insect bites, some of which can lead to Lyme disease, of particular concern here in New England.

Bottom line - get out there and enjoy. But be careful. Wear sunscreen, cover up, and take some time to pamper yourself with some of the wonderful specials we offer to keep you looking and feeling your very best at this most special time of year.

"Protect your birthday suit...wear your sunscreen daily!"

The skin on our lips is more vulnerable than the rest of our body. Sun exposure destroys collagen, so it thins the lips over time. And because lips have no melanin, they are left unshielded.

When you're in direct sun - on the beach, at the park, out walking or in your convertible - wear a lip balm with a broad-spectrum sunscreen.

Applying a 30 SPF or higher lip balm every day protects the skin and the collagen beneath it in exactly the same way regular sunscreen use prevents skin damage and eventual sagging and aging of the skin on your face and body.
